Spees Criticizes 'Slow Moving' Administration

George Spees, a candidate for the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees this week criticized the village administration for moving slowly along with having $1.6 million in excess or surplus funds.

Spees of 140 Crest Ave. is one of four candidates seeking election to a two-year term April 20.

In an advance copy of a speech to be delivered tonight before the Jaycees, he charged:

"Our village fathers have accrued the tidy sum of over $1.1 million in water reserves in surplus funds in the water department."

"That's full water service for every home in this village for the next year and one half—free—if that money were returned to the public."

SPEES SAID when he moved to the village eight years ago from California he found the rates here one half more than there, even though where he lived in California water had to come 400 miles.

"I was informed at this time that this was because the village had just purchased the water system from Centex Corporation but the water rates would go down in a few years."

Well my bills have only gone up," he said.

George Coney, village finance director, asked to explain Spees' charge, said the $1.1 million is in investments "committed for future expansion of wells, and reservoirs and control systems." Water wells and reservoirs cost about $200,000 each, he said, adding that water rates have "never been increased" since the village purchased the system.

Spees also said the village had $500,000 in excess funds in investments from the corporate fund.

CONNEY SAID that as of Feb. 28 the village had $280,000 invested from the general corporate fund and that these investments would mature between March 4 to May 31 to be used to operate the village. February expenses alone were $191,000, he said.

"Funds collected throughout the year are invested periodically to get the greatest return to the village. They are invested to mature to satisfy demands for operating expenses out of the general corporate fund," Conney said.

Additional funds are in pension and retirement investments that cannot be used for the operation of the village, he said.

He said the village uses the investments when it needs the money such as now because of late tax disbursements resulting from the late mailing of tax bills this year by Cook County.

Spees also charged that a few years ago when the village was going to build a bridge over Salt Creek at Clarendon Drive, Centex Corp. was to provide half of the approach and the village the other half.

He said the village "let Centex off the hook in exchange for some creek side land it probably would have gotten anyway."

SPEES SAID "It is disgusting to every citizen when government moves slowly—and our village has a history of still being in first gear in many areas."

He criticized the village for being 8 years overdue on its comprehensive zoning ordinance, the reduction of odor pollution from the Chicago-Magnet Wire Corp., 901 Chase Ave., and the capital improvements committee for not having a long range spending program.

THE EASTER BUNNY came to Randhurst Shopping Center this week and delighted youngsters every bit as much as Santa Claus. This fascinated girl is Karen Lukas, 18 months, from Wheeling.

Teens, Parents To Discuss Center

Parents or teens who have gripes against the Elk Grove Park District Teen Center will have a chance to make them public at a special presentation planned early in May.

The presentation will deal with how many people use the teen center and when, according to Park Board President David von Schaumburg. He said many people are not aware that other groups also use it.

The basic reason for the meeting, however, "is to get parents out who are not permitting their teens to go to the center and find out why," he said.

He said that if their criticisms were found valid the park district would then know in what ways to begin changing the center, and if not parents could at least be given correct information.

At the park board meeting last week the board members decided that most of the criticism of the teen center was based on rumors. Their discussion prompted plans for the special meeting.

The teens the park administration and board have admitted a problem in attracting a majority of the teens to the center. Defining that problem is something that has not been done although the administration said it has been working on it.

"WE HAVE DONE better than any other district in the state but that's no good enough I guess," Sandra Little, recreation superintendent, said in reference to rumors that the center was considered a failure by residents.

She said "We still would like to continue with activities I think we can come up with a good program."

Mrs. Little said the programming has to be generated by the teens to be successful. She said the teen center staff, headed by Bill Hughes, has questioned them on what they want.

"They don't know what they want," she said.

According to Edward Hauser, board member, part of the problem is lack of cooperation from the high school and ministerial association, which had earlier said they would help get the center off the ground.

"All the people who were rah rah about it haven't helped a bit," he said.

DANIEL GILBERT, board member, said, "When we set it up we knew it wouldn't be an instant success. We haven't given it a chance to work. I think we're going to have to give it several years before we can determine its success."

A date and place for the meeting has not been set, but von Schaumburg said it would be "as soon as possible" and indicated early May. He said the meeting would probably be in the teen center, 180 Kennedy Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

He said "The problem is that all the negatives will probably stay home. We want them to come out. We would like to get it out in the open instead of having these behind-the-door comments. I think the problems are exaggerated but how do you stop rumors when they're not in the open?"

In a related area the board has scheduled a special meeting for 8 p.m. today to listen to a request from the youth services committee of Elk Grove Village Community Service to combine efforts in reaching the teens.

"Our youth services committee has been actively involved with teens on many levels for some time. We feel our youth activities and those of the park district could be more effective if created cooperatively through the teen center," said Irwin Helford, committee chairman.

He said "Needed is a positive but varied magnetism for the many interests of village youngsters."

PRESENTLY THE youth services division of Community Service is working out of the Community Service office in the Park and Shop Center.

However, the social service agency is considering moving to other offices.

Helford and his committee will present a proposal to the park board and staff at the meeting tonight at the park district offices, 499 Biesterfeld Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Hospitalized Pastor In Good Condition

Rev. J. Ward Morrison, pastor of Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church in Elk Grove Village, is reported in good condition at St. Alexius Hospital where he was admitted last weekend. Father Morrison, 63, is in for tests hospital officials said.

Power Failure Test Successful

The Elk Grove Village municipal building was without power for 16 hours Tuesday while firemen simulated conditions that would occur in an actual power failure.

Electrical power was provided by an 85 kilowatt generator in the fire department headquarters building at Wellington Avenue and Biesterfeld Road.

Instead of waiting for a tragedy or power failure to occur we did this to see how we could operate under those conditions," said Capt. William Clifford.

"It was a success," he said.

A need for more lights that operate off the generator found the fire department kitchen and basement where persons in need of shelter may stay in an emergency and outside the fire department building.

He said the generator was powered by natural gas but that should that source of fuel not be available in an emergency LP gas was available.

$176,000 Road Budget Approved

A $176,000 road budget for Elk Grove Township was approved Tuesday by about 15 voters. The budget represents a $25,000 increase over last year's budget.

Though originally proposed as a $156,000 budget, $20,000 was added for the blacktopping of some roads in the township.

The township has 24 miles of road in unincorporated areas bounded by Central Road, Devon Avenue, Mount Prospect Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

"I just better not find any holes in the road," said one member of the audience after he voted in favor of the budget.

Hour-Long Lunch Is Bringing Happiness, Profit

Lunch has become an hour-long affair at Elk Grove High School and the trial plan seems to be meeting approval from students, teachers, administrators and local food service businesses.

Students and teachers are usually provided with a 25 minute lunch period but the hour-long lunch was instituted last week for a three-week trial.

The plan is to implement it into the regular operation of the school next year if it works during this time, Robert Haskell, principal, said.

Several other schools in Dist. 214 already have the longer lunch time, he said.

"It allows students to break routine and get out and get some fresh air. They have a longer period to eat, or a chance to go home and eat with parents," Haskell said.

Listing the advantages: "THOSE ARE the good parts. I don't know the bad parts of it yet. Things are going so well right now," he said.

Meanwhile the drive-in restaurants, snack shops and carry out businesses have increased their lunch time business and record no complaints over a noon avalanche of teens.

Asked if he noticed any additional teenage patrons at noon, Pat O'Malley, manager of Corky's in the Grove Shopping Center, said, "You don't have half the school come in here and not notice it." He added, "They've been real well behaved—excellent."

Other places receiving additional business since the one-hour lunch began, include Chicken Unlimited on Devon Avenue, and McDonalds on Higgins Road.

Edward Schneider, manager at Chicken Unlimited, commented, "The youngsters are great. They are very orderly."

JACK CARTER, general manager at McDonalds, said he couldn't tell how many more people were coming in since the change but there were definitely more students there. He added that he saw no drawbacks in the program. "It's good from the business viewpoint, anyway," he said.

The cafeteria is crowded, since students who were split into four groups for eating before are now divided into only two. However, it is not overcrowded, according to Haskell.

He added, "Sales are down in the cafeteria. How much I don't know yet. Ours was one of the schools in the district with the largest sales prior to this."

Haskell stressed however, "I don't feel we're in the food business. It should not be the factor in whether we continue or not."

THE TEACHERS seem to advocate the idea with one calling it "delightful." Another pointed out "the halls are quieter."

Even some parents have commented in favor of the program, according to Haskell. He said several parents he talked with enjoyed having their children come home for lunch.

"It gives the students more time to socialize. For some of them it is the only time they get to see their friends," said George Ergang, instructor.

How do the students feel? Some of them like the longer time to just sit and eat and talk. Others use it to study or work in the library. Many of them, however, were "out to lunch."

nearly 200 civilians in one of the worst such assaults since the 1968 Tet offensive.

The Weather

Much of the nation was basking in the warmth and sunshine of an unusually beautiful spring day but cold air crept into Montana and the rain turned to snow.

Croppi To Speak Sunday At Freedom Festival

James E. Groppi, activist civil rights priest from Milwaukee, is scheduled to speak Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

Rev. Groppi will speak at a memorial service and freedom festival commemorating the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the assassinated civil rights leader.

He will appear on a program that includes Anna Langford, one of two women recently elected to the Chicago City Council.

Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, who brought the Sidewalk Academy speaker's forum to the Northwest suburbs last year, is the promoter of Sunday's affair sponsored by the Catholic Interracial Council.

Brooks said Father Groppi has been arrested 12 times attempting to help the poor and disenfranchised over the past few years.

I feel there is a relationship between Father Groppi and Dr. King other than that they both have been arrested," Brooks said. "They both helped disadvantaged Americans and both were ostracized by the church and criticized from one end of the country to the other."

Rev. Groppi led a civil rights march last year to protest cuts in welfare payments. He has also led marches calling for open housing.

He was to have appeared in October 1969 at Harper College in Palatine but the program was canceled when the priest was in jail in Dane County, Wis., on a charge of contempt.

His arrest followed a civil rights demonstration in the Wisconsin State Assembly at Madison where he and 1,000 of his followers protested cuts in welfare programs. The group was reportedly responsible for causing an estimated $26,000 in damage to the assembly's chambers.

A former youth adviser for the NAACP, Father Groppi is currently an associate pastor at St. Michael's Catholic parish.

Also appearing on the program will be the Englewood Gospel Choir and Betty Washington and the Ebenezer Spiritual Choral.

Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. There is no fee for children under six.

Elk Horn How Many People Really Live Here?

by TOM JACHIMIEC

A curious note about Elk Grove Village's latest population figure of 25,516 as reported by the U. S. Census Bureau:

In September, 1969, a census at that time indicated the population at 20,000 exactly. Seven months later in April in another census the bureau reported the population grew to 21,516. And then in February of this year the bureau revised its April figure to 24,541, "as of April 1, 1970." That's an increase of 4,541 people in a span of seven months from September, 1969, to April, 1970.

No one seems to know where these people came from or where they are. What is known is that the census bureau has credited the village with 446 mobile homes or trailers when there are hardly any in the village corporate limits though there are several trailer parks outside the village.

The bureau also reported the median of 4 persons living in each housing unit in Elk Grove Village. My guess is the government erred and credited the village with some 1,784 or more excess people by including trailers in the village census.

All of which pushes the village population closer to 25,000 and the addition of new home rule powers under the new state constitution that goes into effect July 1.

While other communities (Des Plaines is one of them) complained to Washington that they did not lose the people the census bureau said they did, Elk Grove gained.

You won't catch any village official asking for a recount because the more people Elk Grove has the more money it receives in motor fuel tax monies and income tax rebates.

LOCAL ELECTIONS Trustee Ronald Chernick, who is seeking reelection, has charged that Robert Landahl, a trustee candidate, should fix up the sidewalks outside one of "his" buildings on Pratt Boulevard before he runs for trustee. The sidewalk was broken up by Landahl trucks, charges Chernick.

You may hear more about this one as the village election gets closer so I asked Landahl about Chernick's comments.

The building and property isn't mine, said Landahl, vice president of Landahl Inc. of Bensenville. He said he had nothing to do with the property on Pratt Boulevard. "I think it belonged to my brother," he said.

Landahl added that if something is wrong with the sidewalk there Chernick should have had those responsible for it

"pinched." "Why wasn't something done about it then," he asked?

Clyde Brooks and Louis Archbold of Elk Grove Village were recently named to the Board of Directors of the Catholic Interracial Council.

A comment frequently heard about the election posters going up in the village: "The winners always take them down but the losers never do."

Condolences to the Everding family on the passing of Durrell F. Everding, 47, of 2814 E. Higgins Rd. Everding was the owner and president of Adventureland, Inc., an amusement park near Addison, and Santa's Village in West Dundee. Traces of his first amusement park still remain at the southwest corner of Elmhurst and Ill. Rte. 72. The backyard amusement park was once known as Storybook Land.

'Loot' Found Behind Files

More than a thousand dollars which had been reported stolen in a burglary of a store in Wheeling four months ago has been found behind a filing cabinet in the store.

Wheeling police said that burglars took a safe containing $238 from the Ben Franklin store last Nov. 30 but missed $1,176 which apparently had fallen behind the cabinet.

Employees discovered the money while moving office equipment in the store, at 1920 S. Wolf Rd., this week.

The early morning burglary was discovered by two Wheeling policemen who noticed an open door at the store while on patrol.

Three men have been charged with the Ben Franklin burglary and with a burglary at the Hapsburg Inn at 600 River Rd., Mount Prospect. They are awaiting trial on burglary charges, Wheeling police said.

The men are Burkhard Stein, of 146 Anita, Mount Prospect, Vincent Badalamenti, 1727 E. Foundry, Mount Prospect, and Steven Bass, 224 Graylyn Dr., Mount Prospect.

Wheeling police explained that the reduction in the amount of money believed taken in the Ben Franklin burglary will not affect the charges in the case.

A SUCCESSFUL launch is made by Model Rocketry Club, as another member helps.

Walker To Speak At WHIP Rally Dinner

Daniel Walker, the only announced candidate for Illinois governor in 1972, will speak at a rally and dinner in Wheeling on April 13.

Walker is being brought to the village by the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) which is seeking election April 20 to the village board in a write-in campaign.

Walker is seeking the Democratic nomination for the governor race in 1972.

Author of the famed Walker Report on the disturbances during the 1968 Democratic convention, and former chairman of the Chicago Crime Commission, Walker was campaign chairman for the successful U.S. Senate bid of Adlai E. Stevenson III last year.

The fund raising rally and dinner for WHIP will be held at the Hartmann House at 393 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling.

THE DINNER, a roast beef buffet, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for the dinner can be made by calling 537-2049 evenings. The price is $7 for an individual and $12 for a couple. Reservations must be made for the dinner before April 12.

Roads, Bridges Budget OK'd

The Schaumburg Township board of auditors approved the 1971-72 roads and bridges budget Tuesday night after only one person attended a public hearing on the budget.

The new budget, effective March 1, shows an increase of nearly $9,000 over the previous year, with a major increase for road maintenance, at $40,000 last year and up to $50,000 this year.

Ralph Wilkening, roads superintendent, listed areas slated for road work. Sunset Drive and Monterey Lane in the Sunset Hills area are to be blacktopped, he said, with revenues from the towns receipt of motor fuel taxes. All streets in Pleasant hills are to receive a seal coat of tar and chips, he said. Also to be seal coated are Pratt Boulevard between Roselle Road and Lincoln Street, and all streets in an area bounded by Albion Avenue, Lincoln Street, Sewer Street and Arthur Street. Many areas in the unincorporated township are listed for ditch improvements, he said.

A 50 per cent decrease, or $5,000 was listed for road construction. Wilkening said the money is for work on Rodenburg Road, which is being constructed with

Daniel Walker

Persons unable to attend the dinner can attend the speech and rally beginning at 8:30 p.m. by paying a $1 contribution at the door.

Walker will be the main attraction at the rally and dinner being sponsored by the WHIP organization.

The party has been supporting a write-in election of Michael Moran, Otis Hedlund, Donald Duncan and Harold Fagan to the village board since the municipal electoral board removed the WHIP candidates names from the ballot.

The Village of Schaumburg paying half the cost.

One question was raised on the $1,000 allocation for weed control. Last year the township spent more than was allocated for that budget category. Wilkening explained last year the township went into the "junk car" business, removing 28 abandoned autos from vacant lots. He expects less need for that this year, he said. The allocation is to allow cutting weeds where property owners fail to do so. The owners then are billed for the work, but the township maintains its own mowers.

Students Set Up Miniature Cape Kennedy At Addams

by NANCY COWGER

Every Thursday Jane Addams Junior High School becomes a Cape Kennedy in miniature.

When weather permits, rockets are launched at the "Cape" for heights of as much as 3,000 feet, and at speeds as high as 400 miles per hour. When it doesn't, the crew of the "Cape" spends its time in "Mission Control," a science room that doubles as the home of the school's model rocketry club.

The 20 to 25 diehard members of the club may use small, relatively inexpensive rockets. But their problems at countdown are the same ones that mean success or failure for every NASA launch. And the seventh and eighth graders understand those problems and deal with them each week, said Gene Kujawa, club advisor.

THE CLUB members make their own rockets, except for the engines. Beginners use kits, with all the pieces prepared for them. Members with more experience design their own rockets, sometimes making the individual pieces and sometimes combining parts they buy individually that are manufactured commercially.

The most experienced club members build the entire rocket system, excluding the engine, themselves. There are five members in that category at Jane Addams, said Kujawa. They use a variety of materials for the rocket body — newspapers soaked in a glue solution, cardboard tubes from paper towel rolls, balsa wood are common construction basics.

All the students must be concerned with two basic questions, which make necessary an understanding of many areas of science, said Kujawa. The questions are, "Will it get off the ground?" and, when it does, "Will it fly correctly?"

The rocket launchers study the stability of their individual crafts, calculating whether they will fly true and straight up. They test the balancing of their rockets, considering wind factors, fin lines and air resistance. They inspect the wadding of their firing mechanisms, to be sure they are fireproof. They pack their own parachutes for rocket recovery, and determine which type of parachute is most suitable for a specific rocket design.

THE PUPILS ARE concerned in general with the flight worthiness of their rockets. Before each launching, they perform a pre-flight check of all components, including such technical matters as electrical circuitry and how it will be affected by varying air temperatures, on the ground and over 1,000 feet up.

In cold weather, said Kujawa, the club members found the dry cells they used to power launchings did not put forth enough power over an extended time. Not enough rockets could be launched with the dry cells. So with Kujawa the youngsters arranged a system using a motorcycle battery. The battery ignites nickel chromium wire, which threads to the launch pad. As the ignition travels the wire it fires the rockets' solid powder propellants.

Working with the rockets helps the youngsters pick up basic concepts of meteorology, learning rain and wind factors for launching, physics, with energy, propulsion, weight, balance, gravity, electronics, including circuitry, power requirements and temperature factors, safety, and radio communications. The club uses walkie-talkies to track the rockets, with a recovery crew in constant communication with the launching crew. Launches are not haphazard affairs.

The club has a launching officer, a safety officer and a recovery officer, above and beyond the president-to-secretary roster of club officials.

Each rocket must be inspected by the safety officer before launching. If, after checking such factors as stabilization, fin construction and engine packing, he determines the rocket is not flight-worthy, it does not go off. If he agrees the rocket should fly, the launch control officer takes over. His duty is to be certain all is proper on the launch pad — no one standing within 15 feet of the pad, no planes flying overhead and all rocket systems "go." After launch, the recovery officer is in charge.

THE CLUB members get their basic knowledge from rocketry magazines and fliers published by manufacturers and mailed free to youngsters who request them. Kujawa said he is on duty more to fill supervision requirements than to work with rockets. The kids run that part of the show themselves, he said.

And rocketry club teaches the youngsters more than science, he said. "It is very finicky. Everything has to be precise," said Kujawa.

Learning such detailed procedures and the sense of accomplishment that comes with a successful launch carry over into other aspects of the pupils' lives, said Kujawa.

And he adds, the real "Cape" might find more of interest than rocket launching at the Jane Addams "Cape." Women's Lib has struck even there, he said. The club already has one feminine member, and the boys who belong have asked for more.

Coalition Ticket Suggested

The possibility of a coalition ticket in future years to keep national party politics out of village elections in Hoffman Estates, has been proposed by John Morrissey, Schomburg Township Democrat in Council Bluffs.

The Democrats are appealing to Hoffman Estates residents to put the party's choice, Morrissey, in the village board race. Morrissey said he and Mrs. Patricia Schomburg, in the village board to put a Republican in the village board post.

If the three Democrats are elected the Democrats will hold the position of village board clerk and three council members, Morrissey said.

Morrissey said he and Mrs. Schomburg are all board seats.

We are not talking about incidents of corruption. We are talking about the potential corrupting influence that absolute power can bring about, he added.

Morrissey maintains that the Republicans stated this business of party involvement in our local elections.

But he said an agreement can be reached where both parties sit down to talk and come up with a coalition slate in future elections.

He said it would have to be done through an advance agreement. Morrissey is not optimistic that the Republicans would agree to a coalition ticket, but said it is possible.

It's been done in other villages, Morrissey added.

In the time distributed to residents the Democrats have pledged to cooperate with the Republicans in the future to prevent either party from gaining absolute control over local government.

"Under the present circumstances, with the Republican Party determined to control all local offices, the Democratic Party offers the only meaningful way to provide the safeguards of checks and balances," Morrissey said.

Excell said he and his running mates believe in the need for checks and balances, but it is not their primary issue.

The Democrats' platform offers clear objectives on things that need to be accomplished in Hoffman Estates, he added.

Once on the board, Excell pledged to put his party label aside and work on programs felt to be in the best interests of the community.

If the Republicans proposed a good means to solve a village problem I would vote in favor and put my party label aside," Excell said.

BLAM — TURKEYS should be within 40 yards before the hunter takes his shot. They are an extremely wary bird and only 5 to 20 per cent of the hunters who seek them, will bag one. Only 23 birds were taken by 1,000 hunters last year. They are located in Illinois' Shawnee National Forest.

State Slates Three-Day Turkey Hunt

It is 8 a.m.
Deep in Shawnee National Forest it is silent, except for the rustle of leaves and the song of a wild turkey.

"Gobble gobble... gobble-gobble..."
A second later the great bird is answered.

The call is made by a hunter and is perfect.

It should be. The hunter spent months last winter listening to an old turkey-call record and practicing in the bath tub until he had it down just right.

Now he is deep in the woods under a hot sun, wedged between an old tree and a clump of thick brush like a Viet Cong guerrilla.

He is hard to see because he is wearing camouflage clothing. He just waits. In his lap is a 12 gauge shotgun.

Ten minutes pass.

He calls again.

THE TURKEY keeps quiet. He is dumb like a fox.

At 8:10 a.m. a 25-pound gobbler begins circling the area. He is a big, stupid-looking bird with excellent eyesight and an uncanny sense of danger, especially for hunters.

The hunter lifts his weapon, squats and takes careful aim on the wary bird, stalking it by sight like a sniper.

At 8:20 a.m. the bird moves in dangerously close. Then he struts into the kill zone, less than 40 yards away from the hunter.

At 8:22 a.m. the hunter pushes the safety button and gently squeezes the trigger.

A shotgun blast rips the moist spring air and echoes for miles in the forest.

But... silence.

A cloud of dust and black feathers float down. The bird lies still in the sun.

He is dead.

And the turkey hunt is over.

THIS YEAR THE Illinois Conservation Department will have a special three-day turkey hunt, April 16, 17 and 18, in Shawnee National Forest, located in southern Illinois.

This will be the second turkey hunt in Illinois since the bird disappeared from this state at the turn of the century.

Jack Calhoun, leader of the turkey project, said "Illinois will never be a major turkey hunting state because there are only limited hunting areas that will accommodate the bird."

"Turkey hunting doesn't appeal to a great many hunters anyway. It takes an awful lot of pre-season preparation and takes a lot of patience. And then only about 5-20 per cent of the hunters bring home a bird."

Only gobblers or male birds, will be taken. The killing of gobblers doesn't affect the size of the flock to any great extent.

Turkeys were restocked into the Shawnee National Forest in 1960. The last record of turkeys in Illinois, before the stocking program, was in 1903. Since 1960, the flock has increased annually.

"AT FIRST WE TRIED to stock turkeys we raised on our state game farms," Calhoun said. "But these birds always ended up in some farmer's barnyard, so we decided we had to have wild birds."

Seventy-eight of the big birds were acquired as gifts from Arkansas and Mississippi and through trading of deer with West Virginia, and today the flock probably numbers several hundred.

This year 1,200 hunters will be out in Union, Jackson and Alexander counties in quest of the gobbler.

"The most important thing about hunting turkeys is finding out where they are," said Calhoun. "Turkeys are creatures of habit and follow the same patterns pretty much. Hunters should ask around where turkeys have been heard or sighted and plan to hunt there."

Turkey calling is the next important item to the hunter. There are many types of calls available to hunters such as the wing bone, the box call, standard bird call and slate and cedar call. Some hunters can use a piece of grass or leaf to call, and there are a few hunters skilled enough to call by mouth.

It takes several hours of practice to get the call down perfect. A beginner should learn from an experienced caller or from a record of turkey calls.

THERE ARE THREE basic calls the hunter uses — the "yelp," "putt" and "gobble."

The "yelp" is the most common and easiest to learn. It is the high pitched sound that the hen makes. It is repeated by the caller three or four times.

The "putt" call is difficult and dangerous to use for amateurs because it is very similar to the alarm call and will scare off birds if used wrong.

The "gobble" is sometimes used, but is not too effective. One of its problems is that it attracts other hunters as well as turkeys, and they will scare any gobbler who might be coming.

"The mistake made by most hunters is calling too much," Calhoun pointed out. "You have to call enough to lure the bird toward you, but if you make a mistake when he is coming, he may turn away. About every 10 minutes is a pretty good rule of thumb. You should call just enough to keep him coming in your direction. The hunter must remember that we are reversing the order. The hen generally goes to the gobbler, but we're trying to get the gobbler to go to the hen."

CAMOUFLAGE IS important to the hunter. Turkeys have excellent eyesight and are not colorblind as are some animals. They pick out alien figures easily and they look carefully around each area before moving into it. They are an extremely wary bird.

Camouflage shirt, pants and hats are a minimum. A face net or camouflage paint for the face and hands are recommended. It also helps to take the glint of the shotgun barrel. The hunter has to be pretty well hidden in brush and thicket before a turkey will be lured in.

Turkeys try to keep out of clearings as much as possible. They prefer the thick woods to open areas. When they approach the caller, they will generally circle the area to make sure of what is there before venturing in.

The best time to hunt birds is early in the morning. Around 9 a.m. the hens leave the gobblers and it becomes easier to call the gobblers, but they generally come without answering or returning the calls, which makes it hard for the hunters.

Young gobblers are more susceptible to a caller than older birds. They are less wary and do not have the natural sense that the older birds have.

The turkeys have to be about 40 yards or closer before the hunter shoots if he is going to kill the gobbler. They have to be hit in the neck or head to kill them immediately. They might die from body shot, but they will be far away from the hunter when they do.

CALHOUN RECOMMENDS sizes 6 and 7½ shot for hunters and urges they use no larger than fives. The hunter wants as much shot as possible if he is to hit the neck and head, and weeds and grass take a lot of the shot out of the pattern.

Turkey hunting, like pheasant and quail hunting, improves the strain of the bird. The birds that are less wary and not alert are the ones usually taken while the wary, alert birds live and pass these characteristics on to future generations.

Having a spring hunt as opposed to a fall hunt is beneficial in two ways. First, it gives hunters a chance to hunt at a different time of the year, as they are used to fall and winter hunting. Secondly, it is the nesting time and the hens are not in evidence as much as any other time in the year.

"There's no excuse for confusing a gobbler with a hen," said Calhoun. "But I'm sure there are some hunters who would shoot the hen if it were around. Spring hunts are a safeguard against killing off any of our hens."

"Gobblers are a much larger bird than the hens, weighing from 14 to 30 pounds, while the hen is usually only around eight pounds. Gobblers are very black and iridescent, and have long beards. They stand very erect and appear to be very alert. Hens are only about half the gobbler's size and a dull blackish-brown color and do not appear to be as alert or stand as erect. There are some hens that have small beards."

Game biologists from the Conservation Department have tried trapping turkeys for the last couple of years in an effort to learn more about their habits, mortality, population and movement.

AN AREA IS baited and a cannon net is used to trap them. The net is a 40x60 foot net that is shot over the birds by three small rockets.

"We've baited areas all over the Shawnee National Forest trying to catch them," Calhoun said. "But we haven't had much luck. The problem is that there is too much natural food for the turkeys and they ignore our bait. They continue to feed where they always have until the supply is gone. We've tried all types of food for bait — fruit, grains and even raisins, but they still ignore it."

The biologists trapped only nine birds last year and are presently ready to switch to a permanent-type trap. Green plastic coated wire is being used to make large cage like structures that blend into the habitat. They will have a foot trip wire to release a door and biologists hope to have more birds trapped by the end of 1971.

The idea of a permanent trap is to let them trap themselves. The cannon nets require the presence of the biologist while trapping is going on.

After the turkeys have been trapped they are banded and moved to other areas of the Shawnee National Forest where they do not exist at the present.

At first, all of the turkeys were leg banded, but now a wing tag is used for the gobblers. They were strong enough to jerk the band open if it caught on brush or thicket, and therefore leg bands were ineffective.

THE IDEA OF moving the birds to other areas is to populate new areas. The birds would eventually move to these areas on their own, but biologists are speeding the process along.

U. S. Supreme Court Rule On Hiring Procedures

Test Limits, No Hindrance

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

A recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling which limits the types of job testing an employer may give has not limited the effectiveness of hiring procedures used by many Northwest suburban industrial companies.

According to several company spokesmen, the high court's ruling which states that no employer may use any hiring or promotion qualifying test that is not a test directly of the skills needed for the specific job in question is in concert with their established methods of determining a job applicant's ability. The Supreme Court ruling given last March 8 was the court's first interpretation of the racial bias provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act section on equal employment opportunity.

DIM DEFERRING, director of personnel for Littlefuse Inc., a Des Plaines company which manufactures electrical products, said his company is not test conscious.

"We prefer to evaluate a person's background," he said, "the individual's education and previous work history and how he relates to the job in question are the criteria we use for judging an applicant."

Deering added that in the case of a trainee, that is someone without previous work experience, the company might administer a standardized mental aptitude test.

For people coming in for factory employment, Deering explained, we give them a manual dexterity test. It has nothing to do with how intelligent they are or what their interests are.

"WE DO NOT" use tests for discriminatory purposes. We prefer to evaluate a person on things other than tests. A test would be just one measuring stick within a series of measuring sticks," he said.

Dan Callahan of the H. B. Fuller Co. in Palatine said the only test his company gives a prospective employee is a physical examination.

"We have no academic type testing," Callahan said. "We hire on the basis of past work experience and previous employment. Our office people are hired through an employment agency," he added.

The Standard of America Life Insurance Co. announces the appointment of David O. Meyer as regional manager of Illinois. He will be responsible for all individual and group sales in Illinois.

He attended Carthage College in Illinois and served in the Navy Reserves.

Meyer has been active in the insurance business since 1947, working in various capacities.

He previously was employed by Equitable and Country Life working in various capacities. He joined with Standard of America as an agent in Peoria, Ill., and later as manager of Peoria and Springfield, to manager of the down state area. Prior to his promotion to regional manager of Market Development, General Agents and Broker.

Meyer is married and has four children. He resides in Elk Grove Village, Ill. He is a member of the Shriners and is Chairman of the Administrative Board for Peoria Chapter of United Methodist Church.

The Standard of America Life Insurance Co. offers life and accident and health insurance coverages on both an individual and group basis throughout the United States. It is a subsidiary of The Standard of America Financial Corporation of Park Ridge, Illinois. Affiliated companies include a data processing, consulting firm and several agencies.

Paul E. A. Pedersen, 204 North Elm St., Mount Prospect, was recently honored with Tele-Tel Corporation's 1971 Engineering Recognition Award for his outstanding contribution in engineering innovation.

The award was presented to Pedersen by Robert Thompson, committee representative of Tele-Tel's fifth annual program in observance of National Engineers Week.

The executive director for the Arlington Heights office of Roland Employment Agency said her company gives clients tests which directly relate to the job they are seeking or jobs they will be placed into.

We give skill test such as steno and typing said Mrs. Bea Simon. These are given to everyone who has the skills and will be using them on the job. We use clerical aptitude tests which check a person's aptitude in vocabulary, math and details to give us an idea of what areas a woman can work in.

Mrs. Simon said it's difficult to be sure that a person's test score reflects her ability. "We take everything possible into consideration on their scores. We have a scale that is adjusted according to an individual's background so not everyone fits into the same standards."

Jack Rhind, director of personnel with Method Manufacturing in Rolling

Meadows, said his company places a great deal of emphasis on an interview with a future employee.

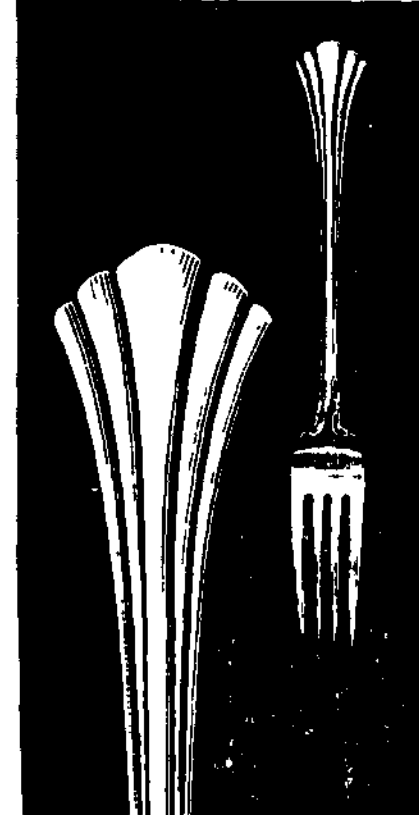

"We try to match skills," he said. "We determine through his past employment if he can learn the job here. His past employment check is also very important. We see if he left his job in good standing if he has ability to work with others and how good his attendance on the job has been."

Rhind added that his company resorts to outside psychological testing for people who apply for management positions.

A spokesman for the Ekco Products, Inc. said his company does test prospective employees but would not elaborate on the types of tests which are administered.

All of the company spokesmen questioned did say that they employ minority group members in their organization.

Dubrow On TV

by Rick Dubrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Almost three-quarters of adults want some kind of restriction or control of televised political advertising, according to a survey taken immediately after last November's elections.

This is the finding of the Foote, Cone & Belding Agency in a survey summarized in a report on the public's reaction to political ads.

Of those polled, 65 per cent favored controlling the ads themselves, and nine per cent felt the length of the campaign should be restricted.

"The most frequently specified concern," said the report, "is that all candidates should have equal time and money. That is the opinion of 24 per cent of all adults polled."

The report added: This was a more prevalent feeling among men, people 25-34, college educated, in professional occupations, middle income and from large cities — a profile essentially similar to those believing that advertising had the greatest effect.

NON-WHITES, the survey said, tended not to ascribe great influence to television advertising for political purposes.

"Compared to the other groups," the survey went on, "they were more likely to have no opinion of its effect other than to say it was not influential. A similar pattern is found among service and unskilled laborers — among whom non-whites are highly over-represented."

According to the report, "the overwhelming majority of adults" believe video political ads had some influence in affecting voting.

"Belief in the influence of political advertising varies only slightly by party afiliation," the survey added, "with Republicans and Independents somewhat more likely to feel that advertising was ads highly influential."

The report observed that "people from the East expressed somewhat greater concern about control over political advertising expenditures."

On the other hand, it noted, "the Western region appears to represent a different situation. People here are much more likely to feel that advertising was extremely influential and to believe that the content of the ads should be restricted."

The pattern that seems to emerge, said the survey, is that persons who think televised political advertising is extremely influential "want restrictions on those areas yielding unfair influence — extra money, or untrue or dishonorable content."

NBC-TV TUESDAY night presented a concise, colorful hour about Scotland Yard, focusing a good deal of the time on its tradition of dealing with the public with compassion, courtesy and lack of firearms.

The program noted at the end, however, that such rapport with the public has sometimes been difficult to maintain on the same level in recent years because of the new viciousness of some troublemakers, as well as new forms of unrest.

David Niven was the host and narrator of this hour, which was produced by Lucy Jarvis, and although it was difficult to do justice to Scotland Yard in such a short period, the program nevertheless managed to combine a nice mixture of history, personalities and point.

State Law Protects Your Reputation

If you received a "poison" pen letter falsely accusing you of committing a murder, would you be likely to win in a libel suit against the writer?

The answer is no, according to the Illinois State Bar Association, unless a copy of the letter was sent to, or read by, at least one person other than yourself.

According to Illinois law, you cannot defame a person unless the false and hurtful information is communicated to someone other than the person spoken of or written about. If the communication is written or broadcast on radio or television, the defamation is libel; if it is spoken it is slander. Thus, you safely may accuse someone privately of wrongdoing, but not in public or where anyone else may hear you. The law protects only our reputations, not our feelings.

A PERSON WHO is slandered or libeled can bring a civil suit against the offender for damage to his or her reputation. If the communication is such that it tends to provoke a breach of the peace, the offender may be prosecuted for criminal defamation and, if found guilty, fined an amount not to exceed $500 or imprisoned up to a year, or both.

Contrary to a widely held belief, truth is not always an absolute defense to a libel or slander suit. It is also required that the truth be communicated with good motives and for justifiable ends. For example, if you made a malicious statement about a neighbor for the purpose of injuring his business you might be legally wrong even though the information was correct.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the airlines has been running double page ads in some newspapers to impress people with the size of the stand-up bars and cocktail lounges in its 747 jets.

You won't believe you're on an air plane — say the caption over a photograph of two spacious drinking compartments.

At 100,000 feet, airlines have discovered the secret of success. Which is to shut passengers from the fact that they are flying.

It was to be found to make passengers believe they are somewhere else — the airline business, which has been in a bit of a slump lately, should increase beyond all dreams.

PREVIOUS EFFORTS in that direction, such as making passengers believe they were in a movie theater, have fallen short. Most passengers continued to feel they were watching a movie aboard an airplane.

Unmet says that displaying the plane as a barroom, larger than most living rooms, will work better. Over the years, airlines and alcohol have become closely identified in the public mind.

Indeed, many passengers never drink except when they're flying. So it is doubtful that the cocktail lounge motif will cause them to dissociate themselves from airplanes.

Disguising the plane as a pool hall or a putting green may be more effective. Since neither billiards nor golf has been regarded as an airborne activity, both have limited appeal.

THE PERCENTAGE of passengers who are golfers or pool shooters is pretty small compared to the percentage of drinkers. Therefore, neither facility will create a widespread feeling of claustrophobia.

If I were an airline and if I had some extra space in the rear of a 747, I'd tell you what I would do — I would open a shopping center.

A small but elegant boutique and maybe a first class delicatessen where the passengers could browse around, trying on hot pants and sniffing the liverwurst to make sure it's fresh, would in my judgment do more to suspend belief than a dozen stand-up bars.

There are, of course, always a few passengers who actually like airplanes. Let them catch a bus.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I just had an appendectomy and was told by the surgeon that it had been chronic and then turned acute. He found it to be perforated. When I asked what this meant he told me that the next step would have been peritonitis. Can you explain this?

Dear Reader: Chronic appendicitis is usually considered to be rather rare. Intermittent attacks of pain, not clearly appendicitis, sometimes are noted before a definite attack occurs.

Appendicitis simply means inflammation of the appendix. The appendix is a small, fingerlike projection at the blind end of the large intestine. When it is inflamed, it becomes enlarged and swollen. In the process, with the pressure inside of it, the appendix sometimes ruptures or perforates. The hole through the wall of the appendix then allows juices and contents from the intestinal tract to leak out into the abdominal cavity.

The abdominal cavity is completely lined with a thin membrane which we call the peritoneum. The intestinal contents contain a lot of bacteria as well as chemically irritating elements. It is usually the bacteria, however, that set up an inflammation of the peritoneum called peritonitis.

The organisms involved, and the extent of the infection, determine how serious it really is. In the days before antibiotics were available, peritonitis, following appendicitis, was a very serious complication. It still is not a pleasant experience, but it is far less dangerous today than it was formerly.

Dear Dr. Lamb: I have had pus in my urine and, after extensive examinations, was found to have prostatitis. If a man has to have his prostate removed, can he still have sex relations?

Dear Reader: We are concerned with the ending ITIS in medical terminology. Prostatitis means inflammation of the prostate gland. The tiny prostate gland surrounds the urethral tube that allows urine to flow out of the bladder. Inflammation of this small gland is very common in men. This can be an acute infection, including some of the types of bacteria that are normally present in the intestinal tract. Acute infections of this sort can cause pain and even fever. If the bacteria can be identified, the proper antibiotic is administered.

In older people a prolonged form of prostatitis sometimes develops which causes the prostate gland to enlarge or squeeze down on the urethral tube at the outlet of the bladder. This is the usual reason for an operation on the prostate gland. Usually, the person can return to normal sex life after complete recovery from the surgery.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 288, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Com. Ed Rate Hike Hearing Slated

Preliminary statements were presented Tuesday before the Illinois Commerce Commission on the proposed rate hike of 10.4 per cent by Commonwealth Edison Co.

Among those filing an appearance at the session was Robert DiLeonardi, attorney for the city of Des Plaines. Other municipalities which filed appearances at the meeting were Niles, Oak Lawn, Hinsdale, Aurora, Kankakee and Norridge. The Illinois attorney general, City of Chicago, Chicago Transit Authority and Park District also appeared in the opposition lineup.

Another hearing date was set by the commission. Full hearings are slated to start April 17.

"Both the City of Chicago and the state presented comprehensive testimony," said DiLeonardi. "To the extent that we are satisfied with it, we will not present additional testimony."

"Part of the objection to the rate hike proposal relates to the utility's pollution control efforts."

"CERTAIN GROUPS, such as the Campaign Against Pollution and the City of Chicago, presented objections before Commonwealth Edison had a chance to submit their testimony. But we sided with the Illinois attorney general in letting Commonwealth Edison first present evidence that they have complied with the 1969 order of the commission to take certain anti-pollution measures. These included a reduction in the amount of heated water released into Lake Michigan from its facilities," he said.

According to Richard Ferguson, attorney for Commonwealth Edison, the proposed rate increase would bring in an additional after-tax income of $44 million. He cited the firm's five-year, $2.5 billion construction program as the firm's biggest financial need.

Act To Provide Public Hearing

Sometime this week, Springfield lawmakers will receive a proposed measure that would tighten the statutory provisions governing appropriations for the Cook County Forest Preserve District.

The proposed amendment was drafted last week by legal experts for the Cook County Board. Formal approval by the board's legislative committee was given Friday.

Committee action on the proposal came at the request of County Commissioner Floyd T. Fulle of Des Plaines who in turn was supported by virtually every one of his fellow commissioners.

Specifically, the amendment would require the Forest Preserve District to hold public hearings on its proposed annual budgets. The measure would bring the district's fiscal requirements in line with those governing spending procedures of other Cook County public bodies.

Fulle initiated county action last month after the Herald disclosed that for more than 50 years the Forest Preserve District's annual appropriations had been approved without benefit of public hearings. Our investigation determined there was no attempt to sidestep the law rather statutory requirements for public hearings on district fiscal matters for some unknown reason simply had not been made a part of the law.

We subsequently urged in an editorial that steps be taken to remedy this problem. We pointed out that residents of Cook County had a basic right to be heard on how their tax money was to be spent by the Forest Preserve District. This right was underscored by the fact the 1971 appropriation of $212 million called for $17 million in taxes.

We commend Fulle and other commissioners for taking such prompt action.

We also recognize that County Board Pres. George W. Dunne's announced support of Fulle's proposal served to hasten the process of preparing necessary legislation.

And of course, we are gratified the Herald was able to perform a service in calling this shortcoming of the statute to the county's attention.

The fate of the measure now will be determined by the state legislature. Although we recognize the General Assembly is inundated with legislation we hope the obvious need for adding this provision to the statute books will stimulate strong bi-partisan support and thereby hasten its passage as a "non-controversial" matter before the end of the current session.

If the lawmakers can display the same non-partisan approach as did the county board, we are confident that Cook County residents next year, at last, will have the right to be heard on how their tax money is spent by the Forest Preserve District.

POW Threats Should Be Muted

If Ross Perot, the Texas multimillionaire, continues to insist that the pressure of public opinion will eventually force North Vietnam to release its American prisoners of war.

"We hold the key to the release of these men in our hands," he told an audience at Baylor University in Waco the other day.

From a cultural point of view, he explained the North Vietnamese don't think we should want these men back. They consider their own prisoners to be disgraced men. But the good will of the American people is so important and the POWs so unimportant that the North Vietnamese are reluctant to anger the American public.

He notes that 85 per cent of the mail that has been received from the prisoners has come since pressure from the people began.

"You've got to couple persistence with patience to secure their release," says Perot.

In view of this, it may be unfortunate that President Nixon has begun warning Hanoi that some U.S. troops will remain in Vietnam as long as any Americans are held prisoner. "Face" is also important to the North Vietnamese.

It will be many months yet before U.S. troop strength in Vietnam approaches a residual, token level. Until that point is reached perhaps we ought to mute the threats and give public pressure that much more time to work.

Establishment Tackles 'Dirties'

How ya gonna beat the Establishment?

A New Jersey company has brought out a product called DWR, designed to erase graffiti and other defacements from walls.

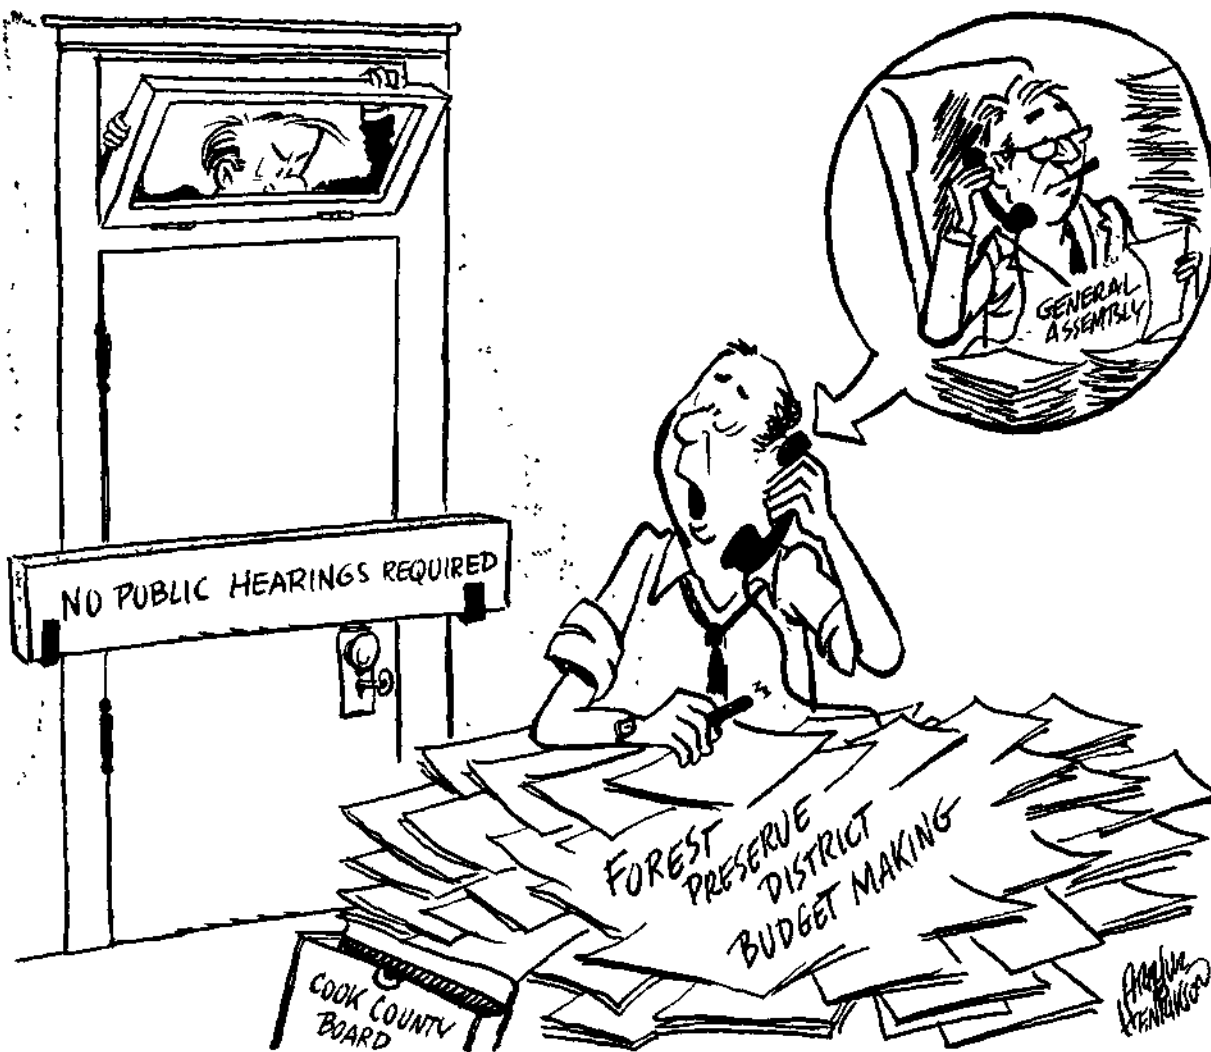

DWR stands for "Dirty Word Remover."

Speaking of new products, for the family that has everything, and any family with its own swimming pool would seem to qualify, the Wall Street Journal reports that a company in Farmingdale, N.Y., has developed an electronic buoy that sounds an alarm when unauthorized persons try to sneak in for a midnight dip.

HELP NEEDED — JOB FOR VIETNAM VETERAN

Name: Joe Doakes
Education: High School Class of 1968 Experience: Rifleman, March 1969-71
Age: 21
Marital Status: Married
Children: Girl, 15 Months

This year more than one million servicemen will be returned to civilian life. Of these 70,000 will return to Illinois and 40,000 will be looking for work.

But there is one problem: there aren't enough jobs. And it's because of this that the Jobs For Veterans Program was started last year at President Nixon's request. It is a nationwide program involving American business, organized labor, veteran's organizations, and state and local government. And its aim is not to create jobs, but to make employers keenly aware of the problems Vietnam veterans are facing today.

A few years ago business and industry sneered at the fellow just out of school who hadn't completed his military obligation. He was a 1-A reject.

Today the situation is worse. The fellow who finished school, high school or college and completed a hitch in the Armed Forces, is still holding the short end of the stick.

Now that he is free to pursue a career or be trained in the occupation of his choice, he finds there simply are no job opportunities for him.

For many, the search is for their first real job. These are the ones who enlisted right after high school or college.

They are men who have always known "good times" and never had to want because their balloon was filled with good air. But now it has burst. And they are drawing unemployment compensation while they continue to look for work. Disillusioned, they feel their country somehow let them down.

All they want is a fair shake, a chance to make the most of the talents and skills they acquired in the military. But they cannot find a place in today's economy very easily.

We are at a point in history where being an American is not popular. The flag and the uniform, the war in Vietnam and the draft... they mean something different today than they did during World War II and the Korean Conflict. But the men, despite their personal feelings, left anyway and now they are home.

They are 20-24 years old and 30 per cent of them are married with more than one dependent.

Many of these men don't have the money to go to college or enroll in long-range training programs.

They need jobs NOW. Today is a crucial point in their lives. More than 20 per cent of those returning home were trained for combat and have no marketable skills. They are handicapped by a lack of job-related experience.

Others were taught skills, but don't fierce and often goes to the man who has more experience.

Many men, perhaps 25 per cent of those returning home, plan to enter college this year and are simply looking for temporary work. But they are having trouble too.

Vets today, however, reportedly are getting more jobs than non-vets. Employers, partly as a result of this program, are giving preference to the ex-draftee if he is otherwise as qualified for a job as another applicant, provided there is an opening.

But here again, one of the biggest economic problems is the shortage of jobs in industry.

After a man has left a job, gone to war, been married, fathered a child... it's hard to face the unemployment line. It cuts deep into his self-respect, his budget and most important, his family life itself.

A long face, empty pockets, disillusioned, bitter about things governmental and military, baffled by the job market and bitter his chances have been cut to almost zilch for the time being... this is the Vietnam veteran.

But he is also a disciplined man, mature and motivated, willing and desperate for a chance to prove himself.

If you're interested in seeing this man get a fair shake, or just wish more information, contact the Illinois State Employment Service offices in Des Plaines. Ask for John Cosco. Cosco is the man in charge of the Jobs for Vets Program, at the state level, for the Northwest suburbs.

Suburban Scene

know where to begin looking for civilian related work. Another 20 per cent have no high school diplomas. And 10 per cent belong to minority groups.

In 1970 over a million men were separated from the military and of these, 431,000 filed for unemployment. This figure is up 40 per cent from the year before, and the outlook for 1971 is no better.

Their military skills are varied, from aerospace to auto repairs. A veteran enrolled in an approved on-the-job training program can draw a monthly allowance from VA, that amount being determined by the number of dependents he has and the length of the training program. For example, a married vet with one child draws $1,428 during his first year of training.

For employers, this means they can pay him 50 per cent of his target salary to begin and 85 per cent during his last month of training, at which time he will be worth more to the company.

The adjustment to civilian life is a hard one. Perhaps as hard as adjustment to military life.

Only the world has changed since these men were away, and so has the economy.

Besides a lack of good jobs, competition for the few available ones is

Utility Tax Collection Questioned

I have gained from my efforts under eight points below.

1. I am informed at the village hall that the representatives of the utilities companies met at the village hall with the representatives of the administration and insisted the tax had to be levied.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor from the first chargeable date of the November bill (That is one and one half months before that tax is in effect.)

2. A letter from the Northern Illinois Gas Co. states, "Your village hall wanted it that way."

3. I understood the village government would receive the excess money so collected.

4. A letter from the Commonwealth Edison Co. says, if it is any satisfaction to you it would even up if the levy is ever removed. (Quite amusing.)

5. The public utilities will make an accounting to the village for its collections every 90 days. This means the company will always have a collection in its hands for 90 days before it must release it to the village.

6. The utilities have added a collection charge of 0073 to the .05 tax. This is a collection charge of fourteen plus per cent. Certainly they are not losing money on the collection of the tax and retention of the proceeds for ninety days.

7. I have no correspondence with the phone company. The phone bill had not arrived. I now find the same per-charge made on long distance calls of November and December.

8. A letter to the PRESIDENT of the village board was not answered or acknowledged. I realize he is a very busy and important man and can understand the breakdown of communication as I am not important, only a citizen.

I draw no judgments from the above eight points of information I have collected. I will let the reader do that. Perhaps there is some need for better explanations.

Teacher Cost Facts Stated

This letter is being sent to you in order to state the position of the Professional Relations Committee of the Board of Education and the Salary Committee of the District 207 Teachers' Association concerning an article which appeared in the Des Plaines Herald on March 17.

The story, headlined "Teacher Salary Cost Expected to Rise 2.7%", dealt with printed information regarding the financial position of District 207 which was distributed at the regularly scheduled board meeting held March 15, 1971. This information projected costs in the educational fund budget for the 1971-1972 school year. The projections included only monies sufficient to meet the 1971-1972 staff salaries based on 1970-1971 schedules. The story inferred that teacher salaries were expected to rise 2.7% for the coming school year. Since the Board of Education and the District 207 Teachers' Association have not as yet reached an agreement on a 1971-1972 salary schedule, it is premature to state any fixed dollar increase to cover the cost for 1971-1972 salaries until there is an understanding between the Board of Education and the Teachers' Association.

We should also like to point out that the concluding paragraph of the article refers to the teachers' organization as a union. Our teachers are not unionized. The District 207 Teachers' Association is an organization wholly local in character and has no affiliation with any state or national group.

Rotary Urges Support

There is a billboard sign on West Baldwin Road in Palatine that shows the future building site for the Countryside Y.M.C.A. It also mentions the Y's goal to promote the physical, mental, and spiritual welfare. That sign signifies a great deal of progress that has already developed and an even greater amount to come.

The Y's program has begun with activities as varied as swim instruction and father-son Indian Guides. A land site, convenient to all of us, has been donated. Now one important step needs to be taken. Each of us are now being asked to buy a brick to build a Y building. Everyone talks about today's problems — now each of us has the opportunity to do something constructive to solve some of those problems through the Y.M.C.A. The Rotary Club of Palatine urges all citizens of this area to give generously to the Countryside Y.M.C.A. building program.

Chairmanship Issue

In reply to a letter appearing March 17 in a local newspaper, "These three men (Trustee Barone, Trustee Scheuber, and Jim Kamradt) well know why Trustee Jensen does not have a committee. He does not have a committee assignment because Mr. Baker, village president and 'his board' has chosen not to make such an appointment. Let's keep the fact clear, fellows."

The fact is that Trustee Jensen was most definitely given a committee. He was appointed chairman of the Water Department on May 15, 1969. This is public record. After this appointment Trustee Jensen appeared at only two board meetings throughout the remainder of the year (June 4 and Sept. 4). He was removed as chairman of the water department by the village president on August 21, 1969. Trustee Jensen could not, or would not, function as a chairman.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — In feudal China the family physician was paid regularly so long as all the family remained healthy. If somebody got sick the doctor was docked until the patient got well.
 "That's the way investment advisors and money doctors ought to be compensated in the United States today," said Leonard M. Heine Jr., 46-year-old president of Management Asset Corp. of New York.
 Not long ago, Heine was a stockbroker earning as much as $100,000 a year in commissions. But he decided that there was an inherent flaw in the Wall Street system by which a stockbroker advises his customers but makes his own income by a turnover of stocks.
 "This creates a serious conflict of interest for the stockbroker," Heine said. "It seemed to me that the dilemma could only be solved by removing the incentive for more activity and creating an incentive for performance as the feudal Chinese gave their doctors an incentive to keep the family well."

So Heine gave up brokerage and created an investment counseling firm that makes its living out of a fee of 2 per cent of the customers' gross portfolios yearly.
 If the client's portfolio goes up in value, Management Asset Corp. makes more; if it goes down, it makes less. The company makes nothing out of turnover although, of course, the client must pay the usual fees to a broker when buying and selling is done.
 Heine believes his approach to the smaller investment account will spread. So does John Terry, who manages First National City Bank's Investment Selection Plan for accounts as small as $25,000. Citibank charges the client only one per cent a year on market value of the assets with a minimum of $250. Citibank doesn't assume quite as much responsibility as Heine's plan. It merely recommends securities to the client whereas Management Asset takes responsibility for all buying and selling.
 But both are incentive plans. For either Heine or Citibank to make profits, the customers' accounts must grow.

Littelfuse Develops Mini Action Plunger

A series of six newly designed miniature, momentary action, plunger type A.C. switches with exceptionally long life in excess of 500,000 operations and designed for use in major home appliances, computer hardware cabinetry and communications equipment, had been developed by Littelfuse, Inc., Des Plaines, Ill.

 Three different plunger styles are available with N.O. (Normally Open) and N.C. (Normally Closed) contact designs. The Series 780,000 A.C. switches are designed for switching 125 volts to 5 amperes and 250 volts to 2.5 amperes. All of the new switches are Underwriters Laboratories approved per specification UL-20 and meet the waterproofing requirements of UL-250 for appliances.

Littelfuse Miniature

Miniature in size, the new switches require no mounting hardware. They snap in to a .750" diameter mounting hole in .040" to .100" thick plastic. The plunger, bezel and switch housing of each of the switches are completely insulated and manufactured from white or transparent nylon. The bezel has a diameter of .875", the plunger has a diameter of .350" and the switching assembly extends approximately .381" behind the mounting surface. Each switch has rear mounted, 3/16" wide, right angle quick-connect type terminals.

For additional data on the new switches, contact Littelfuse, Inc., 800 E. North-west Hwy., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016.

Late Payment Penalty Set

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 imposed a new penalty with regard to failure to pay taxes when they are due.

Under the previous law, a penalty was imposed upon failure to file an income tax return when due, unless the taxpayer could show that the failure was due to a reasonable cause and not willful neglect. The penalty imposed was 5 per cent for each month or fraction thereof that the return was late. This was imposed on the amount of tax due, and could not exceed 25 per cent.

In addition to the penalty, interest at the rate of 6 per cent per year was required to be paid on the amount of the total deficiency (amount due plus penalty).

The imposition of the "delinquency" penalty resulted in taxpayers filing their return timely to avoid the penalty, but not paying the amount due with the return.

To alleviate this situation, the Tax Reform Act of 1969 imposed a penalty for failure to pay the tax. This does not eliminate the delinquency penalty. Thus, it is provided that unless a taxpayer can show that the failure to pay the tax, on or before the date prescribed, is due to reasonable cause and not willful neglect, a penalty of 0.5 per cent (1/2 per cent) of the tax shown on the return (amount due) will be added for each month or fraction of month that the payment is late. This cannot exceed 25 per cent. This penalty does not apply to payments of estimated tax, or to periods of time covered by an extension of time to file.

If, for any month, the penalties for failure to file and failure to pay both apply, then the amount of the penalty attributed to failure to file is reduced by the amount of penalty computed under failure to pay tax due.

The failure to pay penalty will apply to failure to pay any deficiency on the due date.

The 6 per cent per year interest charge is still applicable to either of these penalties or any other amounts due.

Ask The IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q: My job requires me to keep in fairly close touch with some of my customers. To do this I must use my own car. Are my car costs deductible if I'm not reimbursed for them?

A: The use of your car on company business is a deductible expense to the extent that you are not reimbursed by your company. Driving back and forth from home to work, however, is a personal expense and not deductible.

Many taxpayers find that the standard mileage rate of 12 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 9 cents a mile thereafter, is a convenient way to figure this deduction. It only requires a reading of your speedometer at the start and end of your business driving. Parking fees and tolls may be added to the mileage costs.

If you prefer, you may deduct the actual expenses of operating your car. Include depreciation, insurance and similar costs but be sure to prorate them between the business and personal use of the car.

Q: For some years I've provided a home for my father. If he moves to a nursing home because of ill health will we still be able to claim him as a dependent?

A: A close relative does not have to be a member of your household to qualify as a dependent. In the situation you describe, as long as the other dependency tests are met you may continue to claim your father as a dependent.

Furthermore, if your father is in a nursing home primarily because of the medical care provided there, the entire cost of his maintenance is considered a medical expense. If personal or family reasons prompted the decision for him to enter the home, only those expenses specifically for medical care will be considered deductible medical expenses.

Q: Can I deduct the pledge I made to my church's building fund drive?

A: No, however, you may deduct the amount you actually paid this year on your pledge as a charitable contribution. That part of your pledge which is paid in succeeding years may be deducted when paid.

Q: How does a farmer handle conservation expenses for tax purposes?

A: You may deduct some of these costs but must capitalize others. The cost of structures or facilities subject to depreciation must be capitalized with the costs recovered through annual depreciation allowances. This covers such items as water wells, pipes, tiles and concrete dams.

You may elect to deduct, within certain limitations, the costs of drainage ditches, diversion channels, earthen dams and ponds along with certain other expenditures. If you deduct these expenses you must do it the first tax year you have such expenses.

Details are contained in Publication 225, Farmers Tax Guide. It's available free from your County Agent or by sending a post card to your IRS District office.

We have made local people $16,000,000 richer...

We have fostered local home values by making $125,000,000 available for home purchases

An interview with Donald F. Morton, President, Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Association

Arlington Heights Federal Savings has had an extraordinary record of growth since it was founded 18 years ago.

Indeed it has. In this relatively short time we have reached a point where, with total assets of $70,000,000, we now rank within the top 10 per cent of the nation's 6,200 savings and loan associations.

Our savings growth since our establishment in March 1953 is well illustrated in this graph:

A strong 12.7 per cent growth in savings deposits was recorded in 1970 as savings capital rose to a new high of more than $58,000,000. The growth record for the past decade is shown in these figures:

Year	Net Savings Gain	% of Gain
1960	$1,600,972	27.4%
1961	3,255,399	19.1%
1962	3,180,486	15.7%
1963	3,413,339	14.7%
1964	3,825,936	11.2%
1965	3,219,904	10.5%
1966	3,406,933	10.0%
1967	5,539,167	14.8%
1968	4,573,011	10.7%
1969	4,044,019	8.5%
1970	6,545,348	12.7%

Every year the Association's net savings gains have been well ahead of the industry's, ranging as high as 300 per cent above the national average rate of growth.

Net additions to savings well in excess of $1 million for each of the first two months of 1971 indicate a rate of growth double that of last year if current savings trends continue.

Just how big and important is the savings and loan industry to the nation's economy?

Savings and loan associations are the third largest type of financial institution in the country. Only commercial banks and life insurance companies have greater assets.

Since our primary interest is financing homes and home improvements, we are specialists in this field and therefore exert a significant influence upon the American economy. The home-building industry is heavily dependent upon the financing we make possible by the encouragement of savings.

Nationally, savings and loans are financing more than 40 per cent of all home mortgages in the country. In the metropolitan Chicago area, the record is much more impressive — close to 70 per cent.

How safe do you consider this investment in homes?

Can you think of a more cherished possession for the average American family than its own home? Aside from the sentimental value, there is an economic interest in each home that a family does everything necessary to protect.

Keep in mind too, that the loan on a home is made for only a percentage of its conservatively appraised value. Consider these factors which protect the Association's equity in the home:

1. Loans are made for only a percentage (generally from 50 to 80 per cent, under special conditions 90 per cent) of its appraised value.

2. The total loan portfolio of any association involves a cross-section of old and new loans in process of payment, with a range of balance due from 90 per cent to less than one per cent of the value of the home.

3. Despite the fact that most loans are made for twenty or more years, the life of a home mortgage loan, according to national averages, is only about seven years. Ours currently is 5.15 years. This includes mortgages terminated by re-sale of the house as well as payments in full.

With all these considerations, we believe that the investment in American homes is among the safest and soundest that can be made.

Would you comment on a statement of the financial editor of the Chicago Tribune to the effect that "The associations as a group have been innovators among financial institutions"?

It was the savings and loans which found ways of making home ownership more financially feasible and promoted them. Years ago, for example, if you needed money to buy a home, you were given five years in which to pay it back, plus interest on the entire principal for the full term of the loan. Savings and loans were the first to utilize a new method of lending which enabled borrowers to amortize their loans over a longer period and make monthly payments toward principal and interest so that at completion of the term of the loan their obligations were fulfilled.

As a result, the dramatic growth in home ownership is indicated in the fact that well over 60 per cent of all U.S. non-farm families now own their own homes. Moreover, the age at which home ownership is acquired has steadily gone down. A generation ago the average man was 48 years old before he could buy his first home. Today he is under 30.

Another area of innovation spearheaded by savings and loans has been the encouragement of family and personal thrift. It seems unbelievable for those of us with short memories that there was not always the active competition for savings dollars that exists today. Since savings deposits were a minor phase of their operation, many banks did little or nothing to encourage them. Only ten years ago the American Bankers Association reported that 1,400 commercial banks had no savings accounts and another 1,000 paid no interest on savings or time deposits.

To attract savings, associations offered a variety of thrift plans, engaged heavily in advertising campaigns, increased interest rates, offered premiums, improved facilities, and scheduled office hours and trained staffs to give special attention to savings customers.

You do offer a wide range of savings programs.

Yes, most people are unaware of the variety of possibilities open to them in setting up their savings accounts. We have over a dozen kinds of account ownerships that safeguard the intentions of account holders.

Our passbook savings account, of course, is the most popular and flexible type of account we have. No minimal balance is required, and earnings, the highest allowable by Federal regulations, are compounded continuously and paid quarterly. And we also have certificates of deposit earning higher interest in return for being committed as savings for various periods, the shortest being three months.

Are savings accounts now insured for $20,000?

Yes, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the U.S. Government, has increased the insurance protection for each account from $15,000 to $20,000. The FSLIC and its twin agency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), were established by Congress to insure the funds of savers in savings and loan associations and banks, respectively. The provisions of the Federal Code covering payment by the FSLIC and FDIC are identical.

Not all savings and loans are members of the FSLIC. As a Federally chartered association, Arlington Heights Federal Savings must be a member and must operate therefore in accord with the rules and regulations of the FSLIC.

While the FSLIC can boast, justifiably, that not one penny has been lost in its insured accounts since the Corporation was established in 1934, we think of this insurance as customers' "back up" protection. The best insurance that savers have is the sound policy and efficient management of the Association itself. Ours has established a high reputation in these respects throughout the savings and loan industry. One yardstick is our strong reserve position, 44.6 per cent above totals required by Federal regulation.

Talking about management, what was your income and expense picture for 1970?

Total income for 1970 ($4,516,125) was an increase of 19.4 per cent over 1969. Meanwhile, expenses rose 18.9 per cent to $839,128, so that the Association managed a reduction in costs in relation to earnings for the fourth consecutive year. This was accomplished despite the addition of six employees, bringing the Association's fulltime staff to 41 members at the end of 1970.

Each dollar of income was expended as follows during 1970:

Interest to savers.....	58.8%
Operating expenses.....	18.6%
Additions to reserves.....	13.5%
Income taxes.....	4.6%
Interest on short term loans.....	4.5%

You will note that there are no dividends to stockholders in this picture. Arlington Heights Federal Savings is a mutual institution and is therefore owned by its patrons. All income, after additions to reserves, is distributed to savers as interest.

How do you assess the value of an institution like Arlington Heights Federal Savings to the northwest suburban community?

Let's put it this way: In our short lifetime we have generated almost $16,000,000 in new capital through interest paid to our savers. In 1970, savers' earnings were $2,657,897. Each year, as we grow, this annual distribution mounts.

Looked at in another way, we have made $125,779,550 available to help local families achieve life ambitions of home ownership. During 1970 alone, mortgage lending by the Association totaled $13,800,369.

The availability of an institution like ours to complete home purchase and sale transactions is important to the local community. Without such funds, the marketability of homes is crippled. Thus, home owners can see that their self-interest lies in investing their savings locally to help potential buyers find ready financing when they place their own homes up for sale.

Is your present building expansion a reflection of your growth?

Yes, the Association has six and a half times the total assets it possessed when the present building was erected with single-story wings in 1958. The present expansion will double the capacity of the Association offices when it is completed late this year.

This is the third expansion in the 12 years since the Association left leased facilities on north State Road in December 1958 to occupy its own quarters. Second-story wings were added to the original building in 1962-63.

Our expansion program will provide these changes:

- Eighteen teller stations, instead of the eight now available.
- A first-floor lobby three times its present size.
- A self-service elevator to all four floors of the new building.
- Three separate drive-up islands for easier customer car access.
- Walk-up windows conveniently located near our large private parking lot.
- Doubling of overall capacity from a present 16,800 to 36,000 square feet.

Based on a projection of 10 per cent annual growth rate, the building program should serve the Association's needs until 1980. Whether sooner or later, this will be determined by our patrons, the men and women and children who entrust their savings to us for investment in the development of local communities.

... Swing into Spring!

A sure sign of Spring is the appearance of bats, baseballs and young boys enjoying the healthy outdoor fun of sports.

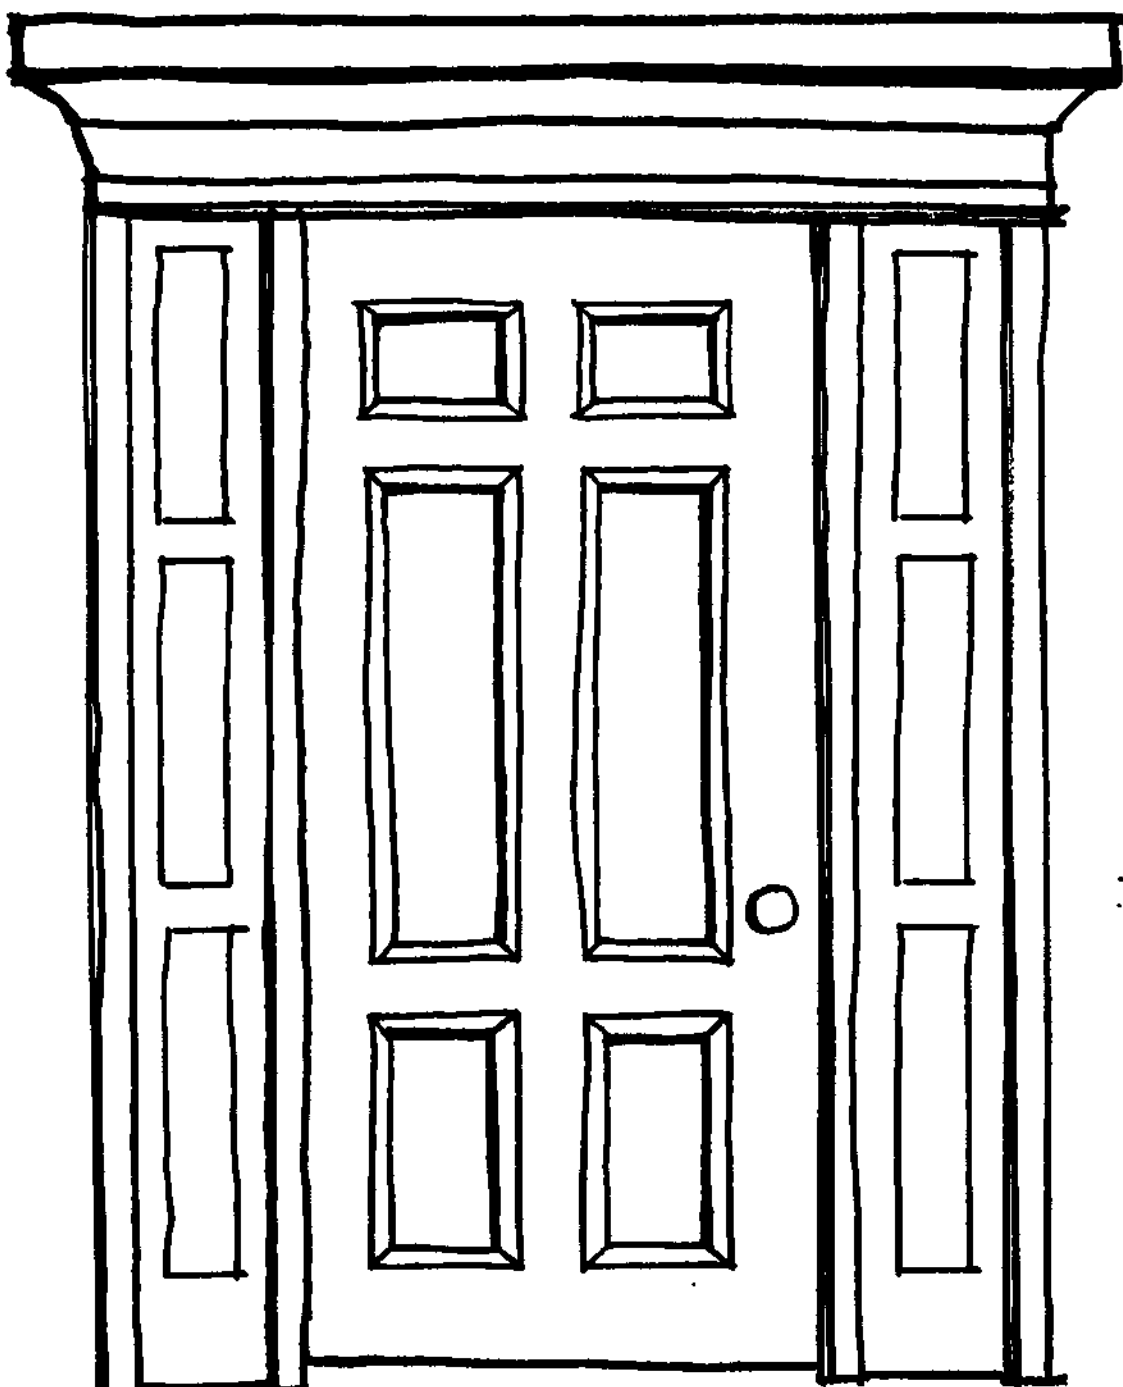

Here, in the Northwest Suburbs, there are many beautiful, well maintained parks and playgrounds ideal for year 'round recreational programs and casual enjoyment ... one of the big reasons why Northwest Suburban Children grow up healthier, happier and stronger, and one of the big reasons why the Northwest Suburbs are one of America's most desirable living areas.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

We'll loan 80% to move you in.

Now you can get into the home of your choice with 80% financing.

Since the first of the year, we've experienced a tremendous savings inflow. So we have plenty of mortgage money available. And we're ready to loan it to you.

But that's not all. We've also lowered our mortgage rates on all conventional, FHA and VA loans. So not only can you get in for less, but you pay a lot less, too.

That means your monthly payments will be lower—maybe even lower than what you're now paying for rent. To get an idea of what your monthly payment would be for any size mortgage, just call us at Financial 6-1000. Ask for one of our mortgage counsellors.

We're also giving FHA loans. With them you can finance up to the maximum limit of $33,000 for a single family dwelling. Or if you're a veteran, you may be able to own a home with a VA loan that requires no down payment.

Now that you know you can get in for a lot less and pay lower monthly payments, maybe you've just lost your last excuse not to buy a home.

We hope so.

Robert Jacobson of 536 S. Phelps St., Arlington Heights, was recently promoted to assistant distributor sales manager for Salerno-Megowen Biscuit Co. in Niles. Jacobson has been associated with Salerno-Megowen for six years, most recently as Zone C sales manager.

Four model interiors, the result of market research and personal interviews with prospective buyers, are now being shown in the Brookwood on the Greens condominium development in Wood Dale. Jack Childs of Childs-Dreyfus, the interior design firm for the $28-million development, said that long before the models were a reality, sales had begun for Brookwood on the Greens. Buyers had a three-part interior design consultation that covered color preferences, carpeting, fabrics and basic design concepts. The results of these consultations plus additional demographic research formed the marketing directed base for design of the four models, he said.

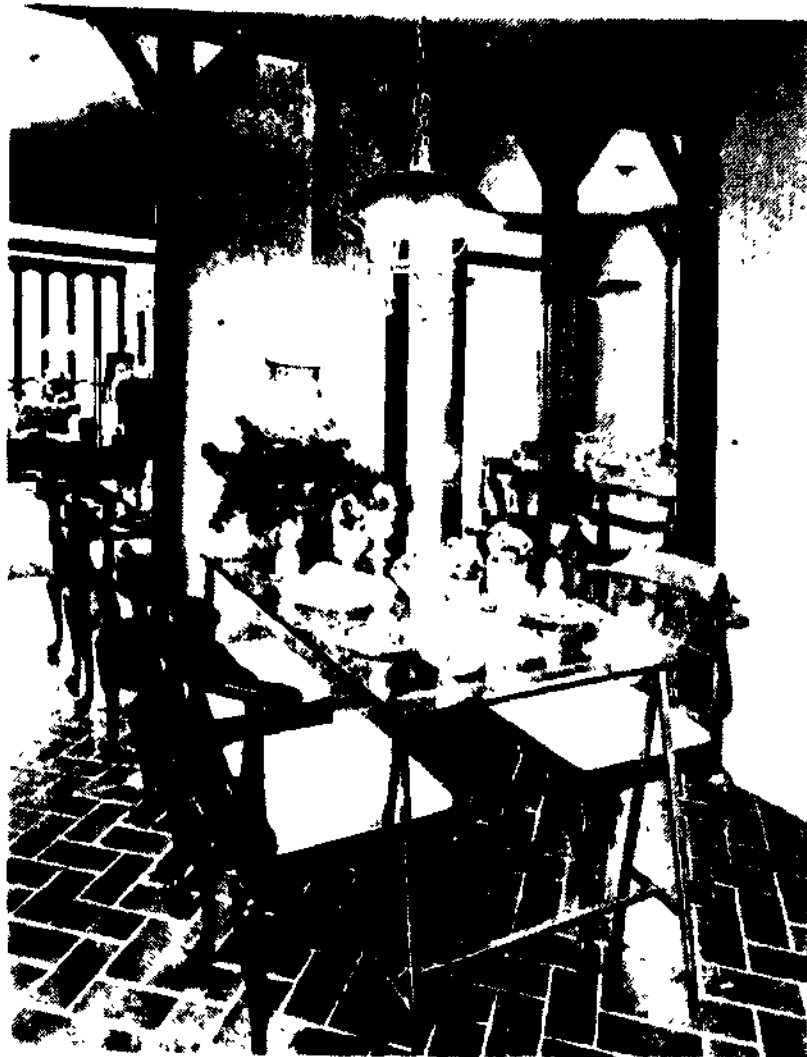

Brookwood on the Greens features one, two and three-bedroom condominium apartments. The two-bedroom, two-bath models from the Dunham to the Crofton are planned to give visual emphasis to exterior views.

Childs emphasized the importance of spatial treatments in the condominium homes. "Our buyers are people who have been accustomed to larger houses," he said. "We have tried to demonstrate through interior treatments how space can be visually expanded. In the Dunham, for instance, the quarry tile floor is carried through the entry, kitchen and into the dining area. While this is ostensibly part of a large living area, it is subtly set off by the flooring treatment. However, the soft orange of living room carpeting and quarry tile are close enough in color relationship to continue the flow of space. Another visual expander is the mirrors we used in the Dunham dining area."

Preliminary color consultations indicated Brookwood on the Greens buyers prefer soft spring greens, sunny yellow and splashes of orange, said Childs. These colors are used in the models, but with variances to illustrate the many possibilities to be found within a tri-color family, he said.

All the custom touches from beams to floor treatments found in some of the models are available to buyers. Standard selections include more than 133 tile selections for kitchen flooring; choice of any paint colors requested; carpet allowances; and air conditioning.

Brookwood on the Greens is located at 190 S. Wood Dale Road. Models are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily, including Sundays. Prices range from $28,400 to $46,000.

Public's Voice Will Be Heard

The real estate professional as well as the public can have a day in court, he says, the professional standards committee of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors (NWSB) according to Kenneth M. Gunsteins, board president.

Gunsteins served for several years on the board's professional standards committee. He is also a principal of Bee Real Estate in Park Ridge.

The purpose of this committee is to act as a court of jurisdiction to see that the Realtor Code of Ethics is followed and Gunsteins said this code is followed by all the Realtor boards in the United States. The National Association of Realtors (NAR) said that a Realtor who does not follow the code is not a Realtor.

Kenneth M. Gunsteins

A Realtor agrees to have his name listed in public to go before his peers before taking any matter to court, said Gunsteins. Complaints brought before the professional standards committee usually involve differences between Realtor offices. Complaints can also be submitted by the public.

The committee serves as built-in machinery to insure the public of high standards according to Gunsteins. We want to build an image of a high grade professional real estate salesman," he said.

An example of complaints involving member offices is the splitting of commissions. The fee charged for brokerage service. For example, suppose I show you a house and you like it," said Gunsteins. Then you might go to another Realtor who shows you houses but sells you the house I showed you first. The commission goes to me, not the second salesman unless I abandoned you as a client," said Gunsteins. "If there is a question about the commission, we submit it to the professional standards committee."

The public also has a right to submit a complaint to the committee, said Gunsteins. The few cases submitted by the public usually involve misrepresentation. For example, a salesman must tell a buyer if there are sewage problems before a piece of property is sold."

The committee has the power to warn, fine or expel a member who is judged in violation of professional Realtor standards. The committee's actions are subject to the scrutiny of a national standards committee of NAREB.

The Realtor's Code of Ethics provides that board members must protect the public against fraud, ascertain all pertinent facts on properties to avoid misrepresentation, avoid the practice of law, keep an escrow account, represent a true picture in advertising and maintain fidelity to both seller and buyer. A Realtor cannot buy a piece of property for personal use without disclosing his purpose, make an appraisal without the permission of the owner or solicit employees of another Realtor.

2 At Conference Ink Specialties In New Location

Two area insurance executives participated in Prudential's Ordinary Agencies National Managers' Conference held recently in Miami Beach, Fla.

They are James J. Griffin, CLU, of 217 S. Lancaster Mount Prospect and Howard Eisen, CLU, of 1155 Landwehr Northbrook.

Griffin heads a Prudential agency bearing his name and located in Schiller Park. Eisen is executive development counselor in the company's Plaza Agency in the Prudential Building Chicago.

Griffin has been with Prudential since 1960. Mr. Eisen joined the company in 1962.

Ink Specialties Co., Inc., a subsidiary of Weber Marking Systems, Inc., has moved to a new office and plant located at 1436 E. Davis St. in Arlington Heights. This was done to meet the growing demand for products according to Roderick W. Mann, vice president and general manager.

Ink Specialties manufactures a line of inks under the brand name Canode for the office duplicating field, and also manufactures private label inks which are remarketed by many office equipment manufacturers. In addition, they formulate and manufacture specialty inks for the marking industry.

The company was formerly located in Forest Park. The move to a new headquarters and plant represents a 60 per cent increase in manufacturing and warehousing space with a layout designed to improve operations, according to Mann. Additional new and modern production and packaging machines will increase productivity. Ink Specialties has grown 50 per cent since it was acquired by Weber Marking Systems in 1967.

Auto Credit Takes A Dip

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, Seventh District, recently reported on auto credit and other district operations.

AUTOMOBILE CREDIT at commercial banks declined in 1970 for the first time in 12 years. Automobile paper outstanding at Seventh District banks was reduced by $160 million, or 5.4 per cent last year. Purchased paper, which comprises more than 60 per cent of the total, dropped 7.2 per cent and accounted for more than 90 per cent of the decline. Holdings of direct customer paper were off 1.4 per cent. The decline appears to have been much greater in this district than for the nation as a whole. Holdings of automobile paper at all U.S. commercial banks dropped about 2 per cent, with purchased paper down 3 per cent and direct paper down less than 1/2 per cent.

Much of the decline was concentrated in the last four months of the year. The U.A.W. strike against General Motors, which lasted from mid-September till Nov. 24, undoubtedly was a major factor, the bank said. Credit extensions fell sharply as auto sales dropped. During the earlier part of the year, the volume of auto loans made by banks was depressed by the restrictive loan policies adopted in the 1969 period of monetary restraint.

MULTIBANK HOLDING companies in the Seventh District controlled 97 banks as of Dec. 31, 1970, according to an American Banker survey. Deposits of these banks totaled $4.6 billion. This is an increase in deposits of 34 per cent from a year earlier. About 40 per cent of the gain stems from the formation of four new holding companies. The remainder is accounted for by the acquisition of additional subsidiary banks and deposit growth at affiliated banks.

Under the laws of district states, multi-bank systems are permitted only in Wisconsin and Iowa. Of the 15 holding companies in these two states, all are based in Wisconsin except two systems embracing 21 banks. Eight systems have three banks or less. Only four systems have more than ten banks. District banks affiliated with holding companies account for about 11 per cent of all U.S. banks in multi-bank systems. Their deposits were 5.6 per cent of the nationwide total on Dec. 31, up from 5.3 per cent a year earlier.

CERTIFICATE RATES declined in February. End-of-month reports on time deposits by banks in the District's urban areas indicate that offering rates on long-term, small denomination certificates of deposit were reduced by more than one-fourth of the reporters. Nearly all of the reductions were from the present Regulation Q ceiling rates on such instruments (5 1/2 per cent on maturities of two years or more). The amount of the rate change varied among reporting banks, but in most cases the decline was about 1/2 percentage point.

Rates on alternative forms of investment have declined substantially in recent months and a reduction in deposit rates has been widely expected. Interest paid on regular savings deposits, however, is being maintained in most cases at the 4 1/2 per cent ceiling rate. Both savings and time deposits have been increasing rapidly at district banks in recent months.

THE RATIO OF time deposits to total deposits for Seventh District member banks has more than regained the level reached prior to the 1969 time deposit runoff. The runoff was most pronounced at the large city banks issuing negotiable certificates of deposit, and these banks experienced the largest swing in the ratio of time to total deposits. A comparison of late-January ratios for the last three years demonstrates, without distortion from seasonal influences, the magnitude of these swings. By contrast, there was no reversal in trend for the banks outside the major cities.

The level of the ratios for individual district cities is influenced by the banking structure permitted under state laws. In Detroit, the high ratio reflects the predominance of branch banking. The relatively low ratio for Des Moines results in part from the importance of interbank demand balances in a state with many small unit banks.

LOANS TRANSFERRED from banks to their holding companies continue to decline. Outstanding "loans sold" to these companies or other affiliates by large commercial banks throughout the nation have dropped two-thirds from last summer's peak to a level of $2.6 billion. Commercial and industrial loans account for $1.7 billion of this total. Outstanding bank-related commercial paper, issued by bank holding companies to obtain funds for purchase of the loans, have dropped correspondingly.

The pattern in this district has been similar. As of March 5, outstanding loans sold by district banks to their affiliates were less than $400 million, compared with a peak of $1.3 billion last July. The reason for these transactions — to provide a source of loanable funds at a time when ceilings on deposit interest rates blocked deposit growth — has been largely removed by the decline in market interest rates to well below Regulation Q ceilings, the report concluded.

Specializing In Relocation

Serving the needs of corporate transferees has created a need for a relocation specialist in the real estate field, according to John Markay of Gladstone Realty in Elk Grove Village.

"Today Realtor has to do more than list houses for sale, advertise them and hope to conclude sales when prospects show up," said Markay. His firm represents Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc., in Elk Grove Village. Gladstone reached over $500,000 through the service in the past year.

Inter-City Relocation Service, a not-for-profit real estate referral organization, was established in 1960. The service is represented in more than 4,300 municipalities across the country.

Markay outlined the service offered through Inter-City. First, the house to be sold is given an appraisal. Information concerning his housing requirements is referred to his destination city. The receiving Realtor will make travel arrangements and motel reservations, if necessary.

Through an affiliation with POTERE, Inc. (Purchase of Transferred Employee Real Estate), Inter-City members can arrange special purchase plans for the homes of their clients. Under this program employees can be relieved of selling their home and will receive money for the purchase of a new home.

The manual provides data on Chicago real estate building costs. Current modifiers for the Illinois cities of Springfield, Rock Island, Moline and St. Louis, which also apply to the 90 properties covered, are included.

General coverage includes: basic costs by type of construction, unit cost by square foot and cubic foot where appropriate, per room costs, cost adjustment for size and height, and additions and deductions in unit cost for foundations, flooring, air conditioning, grading and leveling, fixtures, heating, plumbing, extra rooms, roofing, elevators, finishing, etc.

Homerica Offers Relocation Help

Transferred corporate executives often face the dual problem of selling their home and buying another out-of-state, according to Herb Carl, executive sales manager of Arlington Realty.

His firm offers service to out-of-state transferees through participation in Homerica, a national relocation network. Homerica includes 1,300 real estate brokers across the country.

Homerica is a division of Homequity, Inc., with major offices in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Arlington Realty has been franchised since 1960 as a representative of Homerica.

Carl said, "As a member Homerica firm, we send relocating corporate employees through Homerica to representatives in the city to which they are being transferred. Member firms in the new area then go to work to help the new employee select a new community and home that best suits the family's accustomed manner of life."

Homerica sales now account for approximately 10 per cent of Arlington Realty's sales. The firm receives date sheets on qualified buyers from across the country.

Carl said more information is available at any of the three area Arlington Realty offices. Free brochures are available to the public.

Spring Checkup For Your House

A spring checkup for your house is the first step in a program to avoid costly home repairs and to extend the life of your home and its equipment.

A 49-point checklist covering the 10 major areas of home maintenance is contained in the eight-page circular "Maintaining the Home," issued by the Small Homes Council, — Building Research Council of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The circular tells what to look for and what to do in the categories of foundation and basement, doors and windows, exterior walls, roof, interior surfaces, floors, electrical system, heating and cooling system, plumbing system, and grounds and yard.

The circular also suggests an advance study of mechanical systems to locate shut-offs for gas, water and electricity for each appliance or system and for the whole house to enable the homeowner to take prompt action should trouble develop.

Single copies of Circular A15, "Maintaining the Home" are available for 15 cents from: Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, University of Illinois, One East Saint Mary's Road, Champaign, Illinois, 61820. Illinois residents please add 1 cent tax.

Krause Heading Alexander Firm

Robert E. Alexander announced that Lynn L. Krause has been named president of the Alexander Construction Co.

Krause succeeds Alexander, who has been president of the firm since it was formed in 1946 and who now becomes chairman of the board.

Associated with the building company since 1960, Krause was named vice president in 1968. A graduate of the University of Illinois, he has been active in community and industry affairs and currently is serving on the legislative committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, and as treasurer of the Home Builders Association of Illinois. Recently he was elected vice president of the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland.

Krause lives in Joliet.

The Alexander Construction Co., which is privately owned and is headquartered in Lockport, moved its operations to Illinois from Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1968. During 1970, its volume of business in residential development exceeded $15 million. During 1971, the company expects to achieve a volume of between $20 and $25 million in sales and plans diversification into new communities and new types of housing, including planned unit development.

Premium Income Sets A Record

Record sales of more than $2.2 billion for 1970 were recently announced by New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., at the Boston-based company's 127th annual meeting.

Abram T. Collier, president of New England Life, said that individual insurance sales accounted for $1.65 billion and group life sales were $550 million, for a combined sales gain of 4.5 per cent over 1969. This is the second consecutive year total sales exceed $2 billion for New England Life, the nation's 12th largest insurance company.

At the close of the year, total insurance in force stood at nearly $15.3 billion, an increase of 8.5 per cent, and assets rose 3.4 per cent from $3.43 billion to $3.54 billion.

Collier also announced premium income for 1970 was up 6.3 per cent to a record $420.5 million.

Dividends returned to policyholders also reached new highs, amounting to $92.8 million, an increase of 6.8 per cent. Additional benefits paid to policyholders amounted to $143.6 million.

Investment dollars committed in 1970, exclusive of common stocks purchased, amounted to $75 million, down from $200 million in 1969. Collier explained the reduction in investment activity was attributed primarily to the unusual economic environment of 1970, resulting in large cash outflows for policy loans and a consequent shortage of funds available for new investment opportunities.

A similar pattern occurred in actual new investments, most of which were committed in prior years. In 1970, the company invested $130 million compared to $161 million in 1969.

Nelson Gains New Salesman

Named Cancer Society Crusade Coordinator

Buchholz

David L. Buchholz, 1615 S. Ridge Drive, Arlington Heights, has been appointed Crusade coordinator of the American Cancer Society's annual April Crusade.

Buchholz, a partner in Arthur Andersen & Co., will select and train volunteers, who will seek a financial goal of $85,000 in the Trades and Industry division, as part of a statewide goal of $3 million.

The Cancer Crusade also has an important lifesaving mission, to reach as many persons as possible with a specific message—how they can safeguard their lives against the disease.

The Crusade assumes a special urgency this year, not only because of the drastic cutbacks on promising research grants, but also because of the needless cancer deaths due to the public's ignorance or misunderstanding of the facts surrounding cancer and its curability.

Renters Prefer Homestyle Units

Bi-level apartments, featuring brick fireplaces and beamed cathedral ceilings, account for 60 per cent of rentals so far at Meritex Corp.'s Exeter Village in Crystal Lake.

The apartment community, which opened in November, comprises 100 one and two-bedroom, single and bi-level apartments, with rentals ranging from $195 and $240 respectively.

Leonard W. Besinger Jr., president of the building firm, said the design preferences reveal that there is a demand for apartments styled to resemble single-family homes.

The renters so far have included both young people and "empty-nesters." In Besinger's opinion all are seeking the atmosphere of a single-family residence, without the long-term responsibilities associated with home ownership.

Besinger said that young singles, in particular, are wary of long-term financial commitments and view apartment rental as the answer to their immediate residential problems. Besinger said that "empty-nesters," who accounted for 38 per cent of the residents so far, regard apartment living from a different viewpoint. "These are people whose children have grown up and left home and who now want to enjoy the carefree life available at an apartment community, where all exterior maintenance is taken care of by the management," he said.

The Exeter Village apartments are in nine bi-level buildings spaced over six acres of landscaped grounds which include recreation areas and equipped play areas for children. There are three separate garage buildings, with annexed storage rooms and fully-equipped laundry rooms.

Besinger, architect and builder of Exeter Village, designed the community so that all apartments would feature grade-level entry doors opening directly onto private patios.

The bi-level, two-bedroom apartment features a balcony dining area, 12x9'9", overlooking a living room, 23'4"x11'7". An optional wall-length brick fireplace is at one end. Insulated sliding glass doors open from the living room to a large front patio. A wood-paneled wall and a beamed cathedral ceiling are some of the available features.

an oven, range, refrigerator, dishwasher, double-sinks, Formica countertops and wood cabinets.

The bedrooms are located at the back of the apartment. The first bedroom, 14'x12', features a walk-in closet. The second bedroom, 14'x11, has a closet and private balcony. A fluorescent daylight ceiling is featured in the family bathroom, which includes built-in mirrored vanity and ceramic-tiled walls and floor.

Each apartment features individually-controlled central air-conditioning; free gas for heating and cooking; wall-to-wall carpeting and drapery rods.

Red Seal Homes Offers Options

VAULTED CEILING in the living and dining areas distinguishes the Iberia model home at LaSalceda in Northbrook. The development, by Red Seal Homes Inc. features a range of options for each model house.

The Iberia is a Spanish Castilian model open in La Salceda Northbrook, by Red Seal Homes Inc.

This model is priced at $51,150 plus site. The range of options starts with the exterior styling. In addition to the Spanish Castilian model, the New Orleans, colonial or contemporary elevations are available at $49,200.

One wing of the house includes the foyer, the living room (measuring 23 feet in length and nearly 14 feet in width) and the formal dining room. The latter is raised to overlook the living room, with its stone fireplace, and is set off by an oak railing. Over this entire interior area is a vaulted ceiling.

Past the dining room is the kitchen-breakfast area. This measures 20 feet by 11 feet. Appliances, counter and work areas, and custom matched wood cabinets — of oak, walnut, cherry or natural birch — are in a U-shaped arrangement in approximately half of this room. The remaining half — beyond a peninsula pass-through counter — is taken up by the country-sized breakfast area. Buyers are offered a choice of self-cleaning electric or continuous-clean gas double oven, in eye-level console or built in. Appliances include dishwasher, reversing disposal and double sink with spray attachment and hand lotion dispenser.

The family room is adjacent to the kitchen, in a corner of the main living area of the house. Features here are matched paneling, in a choice of colors and woods. Insulated glass doors lead to the patio.

All four bedrooms in the Iberia feature closet space. The master bedroom has two walk-in closets and a private bath with double vanity and multiple oval mirrors.

The Iberia and other models at La Salceda are located on Willow Road in Northbrook, about a mile east of the Tri-State Tollway (I-294). Homes and community are open to visitors daily from 10 a.m. until dusk.

Condo Units Are Two-Thirds Sold

Two-thirds of the condominium units at Green Acres in Arlington Heights have been sold, says the developer, Charles C. Mathies, Jr.

Green Acres includes 104 units in a matching pair of four-story buildings. One- and two-bedroom units are available, with prices ranging from $21,900 to $29,900. Living areas range from 1,010 to 1,210 square feet.

According to Charles Mathies, president of the development firm, people buy condominiums as long-term rather than temporary places of residence. He said for this reason they are selective about the location and the facilities.

Condominiums at Green Acres feature well-to-well equipped, individually controlled central air conditioning and electric heat.

Each unit has built-in kitchen appliances, including refrigerator, electric range, dishwasher, and built-in oven. Each unit also has a wood cabinet and built-in counter tops. The bedrooms have built-in wardrobes. The living room units all have dishwashers. Private storage areas, laundry facilities combination storerooms and screens are all provided. Private parking facilities or optional garages with electrically operated doors are available.

The 2-bedroom, 1 1/2-bath residence priced at $28,500 features 1,300 square feet of living space. A living room, 22' x 17', is adjacent to a dining area, 13' x 8'. Insulated sliding glass doors lead from the living room to a patio.

The bedrooms and family bathroom are all located off a central hallway. The master suite features a 17'4" x 12' bedroom, walk-in closet and half-bathroom.

Green Acres is located on Fernandez directly south of the Northwest Community Hospital. Furnished models are open daily and weekends 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Hersey Coach Seeing Doubles

by KEITH REINHARD
Lothar Peistrup is seeing double. More accurately, the Hersey head tennis coach is watching doubles. He's keeping a keen eye on the doubles portion of the lineup because this is where most of the question marks lie with regard to the Huskie net fortunes this spring.

Hersey is scheduled to commence their 1971 schedule this afternoon by journeying to Elgin for a non-conference dual meet. They'll attend a quadrangular at Mount West Saturday and host their first outing next Wednesday against Lake Park weather permitting.

During this first week of action Peistrup will try to firm up a set of doubles combinations that right now has about nine candidates in the running.

This sort of situation has evolved because all of Hersey's singles players are returning lettermen.

Heading up the list of returnees is Jeff Sroger, the number two man in the Mid-Suburban League last year at third singles with a 7.1 mark. He's been hiked to the second singles bracket where he figures to be one of the leading contenders for loop honors.

Meanwhile Rick Leadley will remain at first singles and he too should be a prime nominee for top conference attention. He had the third best league record at 6.3 last year and with the one and two men, Arlington's Greg Harris and Pala (Tim) Paul Burris both graduated could move right in to fill the void.

At third singles Rick Liston gets the call. He played some at second singles last season but was primarily a doubles contestant, teaming with Bill Hutton to forge a solid 5-1 mark in MSL play.

Hutton is gone this year as are Tom Rupprecht and Stein Ohlstrom, making for a wide open race to fill all the Huskie doubles berths. Right now Peistrup is looking hard at juniors Al Fritz and Guy Spinks at first doubles and Carl Biederman and Bob Meiches at second doubles but hasn't ruled out Chuck Oldenburg, Erik Maseng, Bob Meyers, Tom Cassidy or John Doeseckle.

It's going to be hard to replace Rupprecht and Ohlstrom. They were district winners last year. Peistrup noted, "I'm going to take a wait and see attitude until I've had an opportunity to see how all these youngsters develop."

Hopefully the waiting won't take too long. The Huskie mentor sees Arlington as the definite team to beat if Hersey has any pennant aspirations and the Cards will be visiting the Huskie den April 15 to open conference play.

Hersey had a total turnout of 60 for their tennis program this spring. At the varsity level they'll be aiming at improvement over a fifth place MSL finish and a 10 overall dual mark.

How Will Cubs, Sox Do? Read On...

by Paul Logan
The last couple of years you've made predictions in our column concerning the Chicago Cubs and White Sox. Well, here they are.

Yours took out calling the Cubs to finish second place. They have blown the final position for the Sox both times.

"What about this year?" I hear you ask. "The Sox in sixth? I hear you say."

OK, Arlington Heights.

Don't ask me. I'll never rate our Cubs in major league baseball teams so low.

I'll bet it's fun to write that the Cubs will finish where they did — in the Eastern Division.

Let's see. The Cubs are in the Eastern Division. The Sox are in the Western Division. The Cubs are in the Eastern Division. The Sox are in the Western Division.

When the stretch comes, the Sox will have the best record. The Cubs will have the best record.

The main reason for tossing away the pennant, pennant runner-up mantle in the end.

IRON SAVED — The Pig Cheese. The Cubs are going to be in the Eastern Division. The Sox are going to be in the Western Division.

FERGIE DENKINS — This talented player is going to be in the Eastern Division. The Sox are going to be in the Western Division.

JOE PEPTONE — This tackle some time. The Cubs are going to be in the Eastern Division. The Sox are going to be in the Western Division.

It Rose Bowl

Don't let the name fool you. The Rose Bowl is a tough game. The Cubs are going to be in the Eastern Division. The Sox are going to be in the Western Division.

It Beverly Lanes

Jim Cook had the highest scratch score, 130, and a 211 game in the Padlock Publications Mixed bowling league at Beverly Lanes. Other high scores were Phil Knuth's 116, Bob Reynolds' 115 and Bob Frisk's 112. Best handicap scores were Carol Reynolds' 594, Lall Burger's 560, Wally Myers' 561 and Gerry DeZonn's 557. John Bailey picked up the 128th and 47-10 splits and Bob Reynolds converted the 47-10.

310 batting average. Result the most valuable player award.

With this threesome leading the way, the team will be revitalized. Last year's returning regulars will come through at the mound on the field and at the plate. They'll be aided as never before by some sparkling rookies both in the bullpen and on the field.

The Cubbies won't stop their surge when they win the division title. They'll defeat the Western Division champs and then win a thrilling World Series.

Durocher will be named manager of the year. Ernie Banks will receive a new car for being the most valuable player in the series and the bleacher bums will be named the sports fans of the decade by Bowie Kuhn.

And guess who will lose a heartbreaker to the Cubbies in the series — the Southsiders themselves.

The White Sox will dazzle the sports world even more so than the amazing Mets of 1969. They'll be known as the Surging Sox.

All the Sox trades will pay off a hundred fold. The contenders in the Western Division will suffer key injuries and will not recover in time and the Pale Hose will capture the title on the final day of the regular season.

The key players in this tremendous reversal will be these White Sox:

TOMMY JOHN — marriage will settle down this big lefty and he'll enjoy his best year ever while tossing a no hitter. Result: a 1975 record.

JOE HORLEN — this much maligned righty will also have his greatest campaign. Result: an astounding 24.8 record and the Cy Young Award in the American League.

RICK RICHARDT — this sleeping giant will emerge as the next Mickey Mantle. Result: 45 home runs and 120 RBIs.

CARLOS MAY — after a year of getting used to his handicap, May will rake the opposition at the plate. Result: 25 homers, 100 RBIs and a .310 batting average.

BILL MILLON — his fearless play will be the talk of the league. But his bat will speak even louder. Result: 30 homers and 110 RBIs.

The defense will tighten up the pitching will be strong overall and the Sox will pull out many a close game.

Following their dramatic late season heroics, the Sox will nip the New York Yankees for the American League title.

All the world will be watching as the Chicago city series takes place. The Cubbies will race off to a 3-0 lead in games the Sox — guided by the brilliant Chuck Fanner, manager of the year — will come back to win the fourth game but lose the fifth in extra innings to the more experienced and too powerful Northsiders.

Those are my predictions. If you've believed what I've said so far, you're probably already standing on your head. So the rest of the column will be easy for you to read.

PACER PAT. Elk Grove's distance runner Pat Dunning crosses the finish line with impressive victory in mile run at the Wildcat Relays. Elk Grove will launch its outdoor track and field schedule with home meet next Tuesday.

A Sunday Watching The Professionals

Sheer Delight For A Tennis Buff

Managing Editor Jim Vesely, a tennis buff, was one of the many fans watching the championship play Sunday in the Sportface International Tennis Tournament at McGaw Hall in Evanston. These are his impressions.

A SLAMMING, DRIVING service that seems to come in over the net with all the characteristics of a freight train. That's Australian John Newcombe's service to Arthur Ashe as the two met at McGaw Hall Sunday.

Prospect Strong Again On Links

by JIM COOK
Prospect head golf coach Mike Nisen doesn't mind talking about his favorite sport. Neither does UCLA basketball mentor John Wooden.

When you win, the words seem to flow a little easier and Nisen has had five years experience in delivering victory speeches. As in UCLA's case, Prospect losses under Nisen can be counted on one hand.

The frosh-soph unit, also under Nisen's direction, hasn't lost a league match since he took the reins in 1966.

Revenge, however, is a part of Nisen's plans for this season. Last year was the first time he hasn't guided his Knights to the conference championship and he's ready to make amends.

Prospect suffered an upset loss to Wheeling and landed second to arch rival Arlington by a mere half point in the final 1970 standings.

Many feel that these two teams will carry the trophy race down to the wire again, but not Nisen. "I feel the league is much more balanced this year," he said.

"Look at all the schools, you just can't count any of them out. We found that out the hard way last year."

Four returning lettermen, however, should rate Prospect as a favorite. Senior insignia winners Tim Carson, Tom Neumann, Art Hagg and junior Curt Manning will give Prospect a solid club.

St. Viator Falls In Tennis

St. Viator debuted in the 1971 tennis season but if they had it to do over again, they probably would have postponed the undertaking.

Glenbrook North, a member of the Central Suburban League, visited the Laon courts and hung a snug 3-2 setback on the St. Viator netmen.

First singles entry Chuck Czeropski bowed in his match 12-2 while team mate Greg Allaire found the short end of a 1-2-4 final at the second singles position.

Our initial goal is to get outside," Nisen chuckled. "It's hard to tell exactly where you stand until you've been on the course a few times."

Prospect will hold their home meets at the Mount Prospect Country Club, a 6,000-yard par 71 will challenge The varsity will play the front nine (par 35) while the frosh soph tackles the par 36 back nine.

Probably the biggest obstacle facing Nisen's team is their schedule. The Knights face Wheeling, Arlington, Hersey and Fremd, all on the road.

"It's hard to measure," Nisen said, "but a home course advantage is worth about a shot a man plus the big psychology factor involved. Actually I like to play different courses because it makes a team stronger if they can adapt to strange situations when tournament time comes."

The Knights are slated to open their 1971 season this afternoon at Maine West at 4 p.m. Weather permitting it could be Nisen's first speech of the year.

Junior Mike McMahon earned Viator's first individual victory of the campaign by romping to a 12-7 decision at the final singles match.

The doubles team of Jim Skarzynski and Kevin O'Leary were halted by Glenbrook 12-0 but Lions Mike Reynes and Gary Aldrich posted a 12-9 verdict to make the eventual final score 3-2.

St. Viator will try to even their young record this afternoon when Ridgewood arrives for another non-conference meet.

Hersey Eyes Climb Up Loop Ladder

by KEITH REINHARD

First division bound?

At Steele would rather consider this a statement than a question as he reads Hersey's track team for their third varsity campaign beginning with a dual meet at home against St. Viator this afternoon.

After a humble opening year, the Huskie Runners began their journey into respectability last spring with a seventh place finish in the conference meet after posting the fifth best dual mark in the Mid Suburban League. This year the outlook is even brighter with a good nucleus of returning lettermen and a strong freshman unit coming up.

Steele has eight letterwinners to build his 1971 club around, led by Chris Kelsey, a fourth place finisher in the conference last year in the 100-yard dash. Kelsey teams with Terry Castree to give the Huskies a solid 1-2 punch in the sprints.

In the longer races too Hersey should be respectable with Ed Rieger and Frank Walworth, a pair of harrier standouts leading the way.

Steele will probably alter these two with sophomore John Jones in the varsity 800 yard events although Rieger teams with Walworth in the mile. Walworth, the team's miler and Jones the 800 yard runner, both turned in a 4:29 mile last year.

Other names the mentor hopes to get out of the closet from this spring are sophomore John Schepelz and a pair of juniors, John Browder, a sprinter as well as a long and high jumper, and a senior, Tom Thibault.

In the field events, Hersey's chief threats are Leon Zasady, Glen Johnson and Jerry Lee. Lee is a shot putter, Zasady a high jumper and Zasady a pole vaulter who has already notched 13 points in dual competition.

Steele names Fremd and Palatine will be the teams to beat this spring and Pleasant Grove as a title contender.

More Controversy

The Carolina Cougars set off a new American Basketball Association controversy by signing Western Kentucky star Jim McDaniels, the top draft pick of the ABA Utah Stars.

Cougar General Manager Carl Scheer, in one breath, called it "the largest contract ever paid to a professional basketball player" and in the next acknowledged he had no release from Utah to even talk to McDaniels.

"Jim McDaniels either plays with the Utah Stars or he won't play in the ABA," Utah General Manager Vince Boryla told newsmen. "If the Cougars signed McDaniels, they are in complete violation of the ABA bylaws."

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph said McDaniels' signing had not and will not be approved by the ABA Board of Trustees. "If and when the Cougars submit McDaniels' contract, I will not approve it."

Lloyd Promoted

Chuck Lloyd, who played his high school basketball at Arlington High School, was brought up for the closing weeks of the ABA season by the Carolina Cougars. Lloyd, who was drafted by Carolina after playing college basketball at Yankton, S. D., has been playing this winter with Reading of the Eastern League.

Wyllie Promoted

Larry Wyllie, who did some coaching at Prospect High School before moving to Downers Grove North, has been named head basketball coach at York. Wyllie had been serving a sophomore coach at York under Cecil Stinson.

Splitteroff Demoted

The Kansas City Royals announced the assignment of seven players to their minor league base at Sarasota, Fla.

Farmed out were pitchers Lance Clemons, Paul Splitteroff (former Arlington High star), and Bob Garibaldi, infielders Bobby Floyd and Tom Matchick and outfielders John Matias and Bill Sorrell.

Sense Of Humor

Joe Coleman, lying curled up on the ground with a fractured skull after being hit by Ted Simmons' line drive in a Detroit-St. Louis spring game at St. Petersburg, Fla., didn't lose consciousness or his sense of humor.

"Will I still have to run today?" were his first words when Billy Martin, the Detroit manager, came hurrying out to him after he was hit.

Northern Trackmen

Five boys from the Herald area are current members of the varsity track team at Northern Illinois University.

They are Greg Zachwieja of Arlington Heights, an Arlington High School graduate; Al Morrison of Mount Prospect, a Prospect H.S. grad; Terry Hammer and Gerry Kraunik of Des Plaines, both Maine West alumni; and Don Gereau of Schaumburg, who prepped in Yankton, S. D.

Zachwieja is a senior discus and javelin thrower majoring in physical education. Morrison is a freshman distance runner majoring in economics. Kraunik, a freshman middle-distance runner and Hammer, a junior hurdler, are both physical education majors. Gereau, another middle distance man, is majoring in business.

Northern coach Hal Morris feels his team could break several records and be the best ever at Northern, but the squad faces a rugged schedule.

Viator Trackmen In Debut

by JIM COOK

Spirit and dedication are helping the St. Viator varsity track team overcome the lack of a facility and a youthful roster, according to sprint coach Ron Klaus.

"We've been running in the locker room when the weather has forced us inside," Klaus said. "Hersey has been good enough to let us use their outdoor track when their kids aren't using it. We can't thank them enough for that opportunity."

Rising above the physical obstacles, though, is a determined team that is intent on making a good showing in their Suburban Catholic League debut.

"Some of these kids are natural athletes who have the desire to compete despite the absence of an indoor track program," Klaus said.

The second-year coach admitted that St. Viator would not be the best team in the area, "but we'll have several outstanding individuals that already guarantee a successful season."

Klaus cited sprinters Tim Gillespie and Gerry Richardson as two capable performers under his direction. "Tim will try the hurdles and the 100 and 400-yard dash events while Gerry will run the 100 and 220-yard events."

Double Trouble

Willie McCovey of the Giants has never been noted as a speedster but last season he still managed to leg out 39 doubles to finished second in the National League in that category. Wes Parker of the Dodgers led with 47 two baggers.

Klaus lost his best hurdler in Tom McNamara to a football injury, but feels that Gillespie can answer the challenge. Klaus also predicted that junior Rich Martin, in only his first year on the team, will crack the lineup for a starting sprint job.

In the distant department, Lion ace Steve Schlickman has been baffled by injuries that have forced a slow return. "We probably won't have him running until after Easter," Klaus said.

Juniors John Nelson, Pat McCue, and senior Bob Immen bolster St. Viator's strenuous running corps after a tour of duty with Ken Peck on the cross-country team.

In the field events, four-year veteran Ed Klingberg should round into one of the area's premier discus specialists while Terry McCue will handle the pole vault competition.

"We've got a tough road ahead," Klaus said, "especially with the fine competition of the Suburban Catholic League, but if we can keep our heads above water and constantly improve our own times, I'm confident we can make a good showing."

The Lions will get their first test of the season at Hersey today at 4 p.m.

One School Principal's Credo

Let Children Learn From The Outdoors

by BILLIE BACHUBER

"Up and away" might be used to describe Bea Amundson, principal of Feenhanville Grade School in Mount Prospect. She learned to fly a plane before she earned her driver's license, and her enthusiasm for all educational experience knows no bounds.

At present she opts for outdoor education, a way of learning she characterizes as "perhaps not new, but neglected."

Bea loves the outdoors and owns a camper, "a chassis mount motor home on a one-ton truck," she explained. On the camper's trial run, Bea camped out a whole summer in the Canadian Rockies. Another summer she spent in the Ozarks.

"I kept a journal and get lots of laughs reading it over," she reminisced.

RECENTLY the Feenhanville principal attended a crash program in outdoor education at Lowden State Park in Oregon, Ill. Originally an art colony, the Colorado Taft Outdoor Education Campus has been taken over and developed into an extensive outdoor education campus by Northern Illinois University.

"It's a glorified woods," said Miss Amundson.

With a master's in education and credits toward her doctorate in administration and education, Miss Amundson has taught fourth grade through junior college. She is not alone in her zeal for outdoor learning.

The need for reinforcing abstract learning with concrete experience was noted for Rousseau, Dewey, James and others, she pointed out. Outdoor education is now one of the most promising frontiers in education, she continued. Creative teachers use the outdoors to teach through first-hand experience and stimulate learning in subject matter.

PARENTS WHO ACCOMPANY children on field trips respond to the educational process that makes use of children's natural love of the outdoors and gives them opportunity to use all five senses, instead of just two or three utilized in traditional teaching. "It's beautiful to watch!" Bea declared, recalling her personal observation.

More important to educators is the children's response. Miss Amundson estimates it's possible to reach 98 per cent of the pupils when using the outdoors as a laboratory. "For the kids outdoor classrooms are fun!"

There are advantages for teachers, too, she said. Investigative teaching is structured in outdoor education so that children do not want anyone telling them the answers, she explained. This frees teachers to guide their students more effectively than through traditional teaching.

BEA AMUNDSON believes that schools have a duty to teach children some sort of moral or ethical standards to enable them to take a responsible place in society. She feels this goal can be reached through outdoor learning.

"Children learn to appreciate nature and to respect our environment. Developing respect for natural resources and surroundings, they develop respect for themselves." This can help in combating vandalism, increasingly a problem in the suburbs, in Miss Amundson's opinion.

Outdoor education need not mean traveling from the school site, said the lady principal. School facilities can be utilized, and she cited as an example the flag pole. A teacher might spend a week teaching around the flag pole — physics (rope pulleys), art and design (changing shadows), math and the use of the compass (wind directions and measurements) American history, English and creative writing (poems and stories created right on the spot).

HAS BEING THE only woman principal in District 26 caused any problems for the innovative administrator? On the contrary, answers Miss Amundson. "I've stayed here six years because of district policy and the freedom within its structure."

A forthright administrator, Bea Amundson believes in straight talk with men teachers ("We get along just fine") and likes teachers to exhibit enthusiasm, ambition, dedication and a desire to help children. She advocates understanding but consistent discipline for youngsters. "Here's security; it shows someone cares!"

Miss Amundson urges parents to listen to their children and to set boundaries. She believes children want to be taught right from wrong.

"AND I COUNSEL parents to fit in their other contributions after the children."

She believes values have become mixed up in affluent suburbia. Too many children are given everything materially but seem to have no self-respect, she says. She wants this situation remedied and thinks outdoor education may help.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION helps children appreciate nature and respect the environment, and in turn helps them respect themselves, says Bea Amundson, principal of Feenhanville School in District 26. She's a firm believer in the outdoor classroom and pushes its use in her school.

This Is No Joke

A Day For Every Fool

by MARY B. GOOD

"April Fool's Day" was always a corny little joke.

But thanks to the advertising media, the concept of "April Fool's" has been expanded into a corny big joke.

When hardly no one over eight believes in the tooth fairy or the Easter bunny, "April Fool's Day" gives grownup kids something to hang onto. And the battery of "mini Fool's Days" throughout the year perpetuate the idea.

Like "National Panic Week" for instance, it's a time to inject humor into any situation that creates unnecessary panic, according to the instigators of this obscure holiday.

"Panic Week" is preceded by "Mother-in-Law Day" (April 5), which seems apropos. For those who miss that one, April 6 is "Old Lady Day" as celebrated in Great Britain. But bear in mind, "Respect Elders Day" comes later on in the year, with a stick.

FOR THOSE THAT overlook "National Pay-Your-Bills Week," it's little comfort to know that "I Gave Day" falls on April 15, income tax deadline.

Foolish fads of press agency shift into high gear with "Fight the Filthy Fly Month." A mere seven days in June are set aside for "National Insectocutor Week." (It promotes the use of insectocutors to zap bugs with electricity.) June also heralds the arrival of "Ragweed Control Month," while June 16 is Bloomsday, but has no horticultural significance.

Do you have someone in mind to send to the National Hollerin' Contest Day in Dunn, N.C.? The Spivey's Corner Volunteer Fire Department sponsors this one to revive the almost lost art of hollerin' as a means of communication. (Evidently they haven't been to candidates' night.)

FOOD HAS ITS days — there are "Pickle Week," "Krautwich Week," "Root Beer Day" and a chicken festival during the summertime. It's no wonder that "National Indigestion Season" spans 37 days.

To capitalize on the American love of sports and recreation, someone has dreamed up a "Stone-Skipping Open," "Corn Dance," "Lumberjack Round-Up," "National Fence Painting," "Natural Chimneys Jousting Tournament Day," "We Love A Circus" weekend, "Arapahoe Glacier Hike Day" and "Bicycle Bellhops Boatsmeeting Derby" days.

Single girls endangered by spinsterhood will have to wait until Nov. 25 for the "St. Catherine's Day Parade of Unmarried Maidens," but then there's always "National Dog Week" in September. Not to mention the "Choosing of the Wine Witch" festival over in Oberwesel, Germany.

"National Smile Week" is one thing. But "Think of What You Can Replace With Plastic" week or the "Crusade Against Too" (Much or Little of Anything) are so-called observances just asking for the hook. Look what you spawned, April Fool's Day, you old joker, you!

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have two small children so I thought it would be safer to buy an electric stove rather than a gas model. Now I find that you are supposed to leave the oven door open when broiling steak. Is this true and, if so, why is it necessary?—Jill W.

It's true that the oven door should be left ajar — approximately three inches. This is so that the broil unit will give full wattage. Both the temperature control and oven switch are set at broil which is the highest setting. With the door ajar some of the heat is given off and the broil unit stays on. If the door were closed, the oven unit would cycle off when the thermostat sensed the temperature for which it was set. Keeping the broil unit on at full wattage cooks the food with radiant heat. In other words, with the oven door open, you get actual broiling; with the door closed it's more like baking.

Dear Dorothy: When we moved to an apartment I thought it would be safe to buy light carpeting. That is, it wouldn't be as likely to get dirty as having it in a home where one would come in directly from outdoors. I guessed wrong as our carpeting gets just as soiled as before. Would you have any help for us? —Corinne Abel

Suggest you have the apartment management put down treated mats leading from outside into the foyer. A treated mat on the floor of an elevator is also a great help. We now live in an apartment, too, and our carpeting is still spotless. I'm sure the treated mats are responsible.

Dear Dorothy: Does damage to the outside of a can mean the food is unsuitable for use?—Mrs. Robert Benton

Not necessarily. Rust or dents do not affect the contents of a can as long as the can doesn't leak. If the can is leaking or if the ends are bulged or if the contents have an abnormal odor or appearance, discard the can without tasting the contents.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

New Craftsmen Show Work At Countryside Gallery

Pottery, weaving and jewelry will be exhibited in Countryside's third craft show opening tomorrow.

Cecil Strawn, Ruth Duckworth and Sarah Hermanson are the potters who will be exhibiting their work in the craft show. Strawn, a member of the art department of Northern Illinois University, is concerned with the functional works, while Sarah Hermanson of De Kalb works with ceramic sculpture.

Turnout Low For School Candidates

by JUDY BRANDES

One speaker used to sell homes in Rolling Meadows, another is an airline pilot and a third designs microphones like the ones used on the podium.

Their backgrounds like the other 17 speakers on the agenda are all different but they have one thing in common: they are school board candidates.

The 20 speakers were candidates for election in four local school districts — Palatine Elementary Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211 and 214 and Harper College Dist. 512.

Each was given three minutes to explain his reasons for running and desires for election at the Candidates Night Monday sponsored jointly by the Palatine Township League of Women Voters and the Parent-Teacher Associations.

The candidate night was one of several scheduled in local school districts to introduce school board candidates to voters in a public meeting.

After all candidates for one school board spoke, residents were given a chance to ask questions. Over coffee and cookies at the end, voters and candidates mingled to talk more, but some candidates found themselves talking to each other, their wives or school administrators.

"I wish more voters had come out. I really wanted to talk with them," one school board candidate said.

I have a feeling I will see these people again but it will be difficult to reach the ones who will be voting April 10. I'd sort of like to see who they are since I may be their representative on the school board for three years.

THREE MINUTES is all each school board candidate got to speak at the Palatine Township candidates' night Monday at Plum Grove School.

Not overlooked in the furor caused by the "ax-grinding" issue have been other issues, such as class size and the role of career education. Some of the issues might overshadow the "ax grinding" charge by April 10, election day.

Sales Include Mutual Funds

A security salesman's license has been issued to Patrick H. Murray of Miles & Miles, Inc., 1040 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights.

This enables Murray to sell mutual fund shares in addition to property and casualty, life and health insurance.

Murray represents SAFECO Securities, Inc., which is affiliated with SAFECO Insurance Companies. He said the addition of mutual funds to his product line enables him to offer a complete protection and investment plan to clients.

Murray took a home-study course and attended a three-day seminar and took federal and state examination to qualify for the license.

Use Imagination In Home Heating

Regardless of the size of the home improvement project, heating modernization is vital to any remodeling plans, and it is limited only by the homeowner's imagination, according to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

In a hydronic system water is heated in an appliance-styled boiler and carried through a network of finger-size tubing to baseboard heating panels located in each room. This tubing can be extended, altered, and even removed without ripping apart floors or tearing down walls.

Extending the tubing from the heating system to an area behind the bathtub gives you a heated tub. When the thermostat calls for heat, the tub as well as the rest of the system gets warm.

The same principle can be used to heat an attached garage, a greenhouse, a finished basement, or a converted attic. Extend the tubing from the present system and connect it to baseboard heating panels in the new area and reconnect it to the system.

Other uses for hydronic systems are to raise the temperature of your backyard swimming pool and for automatic snow melting of your sidewalks and driveway. The council cautions you not to do these projects yourself, but to consult a qualified heating contractor.

One way to get more comfort and economy out of your hydronic system is create more zones, said the council. Zoning is a method of controlling temperatures in different areas of the house at the same time using only one boiler. Bedrooms often are on one zone while the kitchen and dining areas are on a second zone. Living rooms and play areas as well as an add-on room can be on a third zone.

If you want to convert your cellar into a basement, you may need a new boiler. There are boilers of all sizes, shapes and powered by any fuel — gas, oil or electricity, the council said. The boiler can also have an instantaneous hot water coil to provide hot faucet water.

Sugar 'n Spice

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Want to make dessert a hit? Then book one of the sweet attractions here for your table.

Like sour creamy Strawberries In The Round, easy-to-prepare gelatin into which sliced fresh strawberries and crunchy chopped pecans have been folded. More gelatin and tangy sour cream go into a second layer, molded to perfection on top of the nutty-strawberry mixture.

Another gala production is Coffee Peach Ice Cream Loaf. An almond and cookie crumb mixture shivers between layers of vanilla and coffee ice cream. More cookie crumbs go on top and an orange-peach sauce glistens over all.

Served with fruit and cheese, this next idea rates raves. It's a lemon-luscious Cottage Cheese Fluff with a hint of cinnamon. Delicious!

SWEET ATTRACTIONS

Festive Fruits meet Dairy Delights

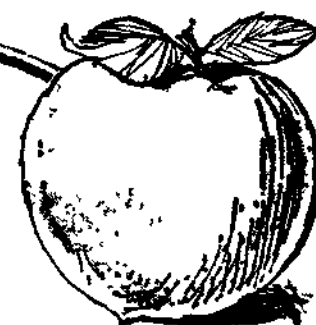

Strawberries in the Round

- 2 packages (6-oz. each) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 3 cups cold water
- 2 cups sliced strawberries
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 1 cup dairy sour cream

In a bowl pour boiling water over gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add cold water; chill until partially set. Toss strawberries with sugar. Into 2 cups gelatin fold strawberries and pecans; turn into 9-cup mold. Chill until set but not firm. In a large mixing bowl add sour cream to remaining gelatin; beat until foamy. Turn into mold; chill until firm. Makes 12-16 servings.

Note: Recipe may be halved for 6-8 servings.

Coffee Peach Ice Cream Loaf

- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 cup toasted slivered almonds
- 1 1/2 teaspoons rum extract

To prepare Loaf: Stand half-gallon coffee ice cream on its side. Cut horizontally into three slices. Place two slices on a tray, return to freezer. Wrap third slice for freezer storage. Cut one horizontal slice from half-gallon of vanilla ice cream.

Place on tray in freezer. Wrap remaining ice cream for freezer. Meanwhile, mix cookie crumbs with 1/3 cup almonds. Spread and press 1/4 cup crumb mixture on one slice each of coffee and vanilla ice cream. Place vanilla layer over coffee layer. Top with slice of coffee ice cream. Spread on remaining crumbs. Wrap in foil and return to freezer. Serve with Peach Sauce. Makes 10-12 servings.

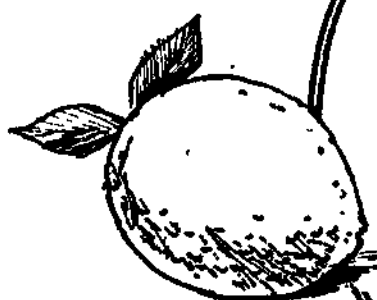

To prepare Peach Sauce: Drain and cut up peaches, reserving syrup. (If necessary, add water to make 1 cup.) In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan, combine cornstarch, peach syrup, orange juice and orange and lemon peels. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes. Remove from heat; add peaches, almonds and rum extract. Makes approximately 2 2/3 cups sauce.

Cottage Cheese Fluff

- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon

In a small bowl, beat cottage cheese until fairly smooth. Stir in sugar, then lemon peel, juice and cinnamon. Serve as dip or topping with fresh fruit in season.

Yield: 1 1/4 cups.

Corral Food Mart

Convenience Plus Quality

by FRAN HECKART

How do you take an idea and turn it into a business reality? John Norton says listen and keep trying. Listen to people and try to meet their demands.

Norton is half owner of The Corral Food Mart at 1050 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights. Edna Levin of Skokie is the other half. Their combined goal is to make The Corral attractive to suburban shoppers.

When the store opened last October, it was primarily a meat market and called the Meat Corral. A delicatessen, small bakery and cheese shop were the only side lines.

"Don't you have any mustard?" "Why don't you carry soups?" Customers began voicing their preferences and the owners listened. The "one-stop" shoppers now have a wide range of standard food products available at The Corral.

Rows of canned goods line the shelves. Fresh produce and dairy products have been added. Canned or frozen seafood also is available. Now, there's everything from detergent to decorated birthday cakes.

Addition of grocery and produce brought about the name change. "We had to let the people know that we were no longer strictly a meat market," said John. So the partners put their heads together and decided on The Corral Food Mart for their new mini-supermarket.

John says that meat is still the biggest attraction and accounts for the greatest percentage of sales. The Corral handles only prime and choice grade cuts and is earning a reputation for quality meats at competitive prices.

Full-time butchers are on hand to prepare special cuts. "Lots of people come to The Corral who couldn't care less if we had baked beans for a penny a can," said Norton. "They're only interested in our meat."

In the future, The Corral plans to sell fides of beef. As a guarantee of quality, the homemaker and her family will be invited to watch the beef being cut and processed.

Ed Piszczek mans the delicatessen. He handles the sale of bulk cheeses, cold cuts and assorted deli items. Ed has his own "special" recipe for Italian sausage which is gaining popularity. He wouldn't disclose his secret but merely shrugged and said, "Most customers who try my sausage ask for it again." Smoked Polish sausage is another of Ed's big sellers.

The atmosphere of The Corral is casual and "Western-like." The Western theme features chandeliers that look like wagon wheels. The clerks and butchers wear cowboy hats and sometimes appear in full Western garb.

As another attempt to please shoppers, The Corral has extended business hours. It is now open weekdays and Saturdays from 9 to 9 p.m. and 9 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

WAGON WHEEL chandeliers follow the Western theme of The Corral Food Mart. The atmosphere of the West adds a quaint and friendly touch for shoppers. The Corral stocks a large selection of deli items, meats, cheeses and the essential canned products.

Elegant Dinner For Two

The warm glow of candlelight, soft background music, bubbly champagne for two and an elegant dinner menu set the perfect mood for celebrating your engagement or entertaining that special someone.

But as special as the occasion may be, you need not spend long hours in the kitchen. In fact, if you're a busy career gal, you can prepare this meal after work and still have time to pamper yourself. Today's modern freezer-ready foods make this miracle possible.

An easy way to impress your fiancé or special date with your culinary ability is to serve familiar foods in an unusual manner. Brussels Sprouts Royale is a pleasantly attractive flavor surprise. "Elite" little cabbages, cooked in a rich butter sauce, are tossed with fresh green grapes, slivered almonds and a bit of sautéed wine to make an exciting company dish. The baby Brussels sprouts come frozen in their own specially seasoned butter sauce, and are in a flavor-tight cooking pouch, so there is no muss or fuss for the cook.

To keep your meal preparation simple, serve golden carrot nuggets in butter sauce, Chicken Kiev and rice verdi. The rice verdi is a tender long grain rice sparkled with bell peppers and parsley. Both the carrot nuggets in butter sauce and rice verdi come frozen in convenience cooking pouches so you'll want to prepare them in the same cooking water as the Brussels sprouts, thus eliminating two extra pans. To put the perfect finale on your meal, choose from any number of fully prepared pies, cakes and pastries available in your grocer's freezer.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS ROYALE

1 package baby Brussels sprouts frozen in butter sauce
1-2 cup seedless green grapes
2 tablespoons sautéed wine
1 to 2 tablespoons slivered almonds
Slip pouch of Brussels sprouts into boiling water. Bring water to a second boil; continue cooking 18 minutes. Do not cover pan.

Partially open pouch and drain butter sauce into a small saucepan. Add grapes. Cook only enough to heat through. Remove from heat; add sautéed and slivered almonds. Toss with Brussels sprouts. Yield: 2-3 servings.

Clam Chowder Any Time Or Day

New England, relying heavily on the Atlantic for its delicacies, is where regional American cooking actually began. A typically Northeastern culinary art, the old-fashioned clambake, allows friends to enjoy, on the seashore, the marvelous smells of fresh clams steaming over an open fire.

Although this Gourmet's Clam Chowder is a meal in itself, home economists at Thermo-Serv suggest adding a dash of white wine and supplementing the meal with slices of fresh French bread and butter.

Although you may want to save the clambake for a warm summer evening's gourmet production, there's much to be said about reviving the leisure meal... especially if it can be enjoyed out-of-doors.

New England Clam Chowder, a meal that can be enjoyed on the deck of a boat, as well as during a "lunch hour," need not be a major production, thanks to condensed frozen soups and the means to carry the soup. Thermo-Serv has introduced a new designer vacuum bottle with double-wall insulated top that keeps liquids piping hot, or frosty cold long after they have been poured.

GOURMET'S CLAM CHOWDER

- 1 can frozen condensed clam chowder
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 1-8 teaspoon basil
- parsley, diced

Combine the soup with milk, white wine, and bring to a boil. Stir in basil and sprinkle diced parsley over the top. Pour into vacuum bottle and tightly cap.

Oysters For Any Season

Oysters are great eating anytime, but reach their peak of perfection in May or June, according to both Home Economists and biologists of the Florida Department of Natural Resources. They are fatter and taste better during these two months because they're beginning to store food for the summer spawning season. The belief that oysters are good only during months that have an "R" in them is nothing more than a myth.

We are able to enjoy oysters all year round because they grew abundantly along the Gulf Coast and the coast of Florida in enclosed bays, sounds and river mouths.

Never out of season, oysters can be served in so many ways. Here they're combined with corn in a tastefully seasoned casserole. As an accompaniment, we suggest a pineapple-orange-avocado salad topped with shrimp.

With this savory seafood duo, Home Economists of the Florida Department of Natural Resources have come up with a combination that brings out the finest in these two Florida favorites.

OYSTER CORN CASSEROLE

- 1 cup (8 ounces) oysters
- Milk
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash cayenne
- 1 cup whole kernel or creamstyle corn
- 1/2 cup cracker crumbs
- 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Drain liquor from oysters, add enough milk to make 1 cup liquid and combine with beaten eggs. Add remaining ingredients and pour into greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, about 45 minutes or until firm. 6 servings.

PINEAPPLE SHRIMP BOAT

- 1 pound large shrimp
- 1 pineapple
- 2 large oranges
- 1 avocado
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cook and devein shrimp. Chill thoroughly. Cut pineapple in half lengthwise; remove core and meat; reserve shell for serving. Slice pineapple meat. Peel and section orange. Peel and slice avocado. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Fill shells with pineapple, orange and avocado slices. Arrange chilled shrimp on top. Serve with dressing. 6 servings.

Dressing

- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 2 tablespoons dry white wine
 - 1 teaspoon honey
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/2 cup olive or vegetable oil
- In a jar combine all ingredients and shake well. Chill before serving.

This Brunch Menu 'Stars'

Next time you entertain, consult the "stars" for a menu. Reading horoscopes of your guests can be fun and give clues about your guests' food likes and dislikes.

If they're born under the signs of Taurus, Virgo or Capricorn, they'll be "steak and baked potatoes" people. They like traditional meals — homey and hearty.

Leo, Aries and Sagittarius sign-bearers are partial to imaginative and elegant but convenient meals. Serve them a lovely quiche or perhaps a very special casserole dish.

A "dressed-up" omelet will win acclaims from Scorpio, Cancer and Pisces people. Somewhat gourmet but practical meals appeal to them — especially if the servings are large.

Your Gemini, Libra and Aquarius friends are fond of rich, fancy foods, like French pastry and fine wine and often overindulge in sweets.

Here's a brunch menu created especially for the last group. Serve fresh fruit kabobs — they look lovely and are fun to eat. Follow with eggs Suisse and glazed Canadian bacon. To satisfy their perennial sweet tooth, top the meal with Danish Rolls a la Orange — rich and gooey orange rolls with a sugary orange topping.

DANISH ROLLS A LA ORANGE

- 1 can (11 oz.) refrigerated orange Danish rolls with icing
- 1/4 cup Cointreau or dry white wine
- 1/4 cup orange juice

Topping

- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- Line 8 muffin cups with foil or paper liners. In small bowl, blend icing from rolls, Cointreau and juice. Spoon 2 teaspoons of mixture in each lined muffin cup. Separate Danish dough into 8 rolls; place one roll in each cup. Spoon remaining mixture over rolls. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Sprinkle warm rolls with Topping. Serve warm in liners. Makes 8.
- Topping: In small bowl, combine sugar and orange peel; mix well.

Innocent Spud

Diet-conscious people who avoid potatoes as if they were ice cream sundaes don't know what they're missing. A medium sized spud, boiled, baked or pressure-cooked, provides only about 100 calories, or about as many as a large apple or an orange. That same spud contains worthwhile amounts of Vitamin C, two important B-vitamins and the minerals iron, phosphorus and potassium. Naturally, sauces or gravies or fats used in frying will add calories. But baked or boiled potatoes moistened with a little skim milk and seasoned with salt, pepper, herbs such as parsley and onion make delicious but low-calorie eating.

Base Year Change Announced For The Cost Of Living Index

When you look at the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for January 1971, you'll note that the CPI has declined considerably. But this does not mean that prices have declined or that your living costs have decreased.

Karen Schnittgrund, University of Illinois Extension family economics specialist, explains that the Bureau of Labor Statistics is changing the base year of the index from an average of 1957-59 prices to an average of 1967 prices.

The purpose of the change is to put the CPI in a context to which most people can more intelligently relate. Most people can relate to the economic conditions of 1967 fairly accurately, but they have a difficult time relating to 1957-59 prices.

The Consumer Price Index, commonly called the Cost of Living Index, is a statistical measure of the average changes in prices of goods and services purchased by urban wage earners and clerical workers, including families and individuals, through the United States.

The index represents the movement of prices of everything these people buy for living. It is based on the prices of approximately 400 items known as the market basket. While this index may not provide direct information for a particular person or family, it does reflect price changes from period to period.

The index is given for each of the 400 items on a monthly as well as a yearly basis. The 400 items are grouped into major categories such as food, transportation, housing and medical care and the CPI is available for each major category as well as for all items.

Because the index numbers are given in terms of 100, it's easy to translate them into dollars and cents. Mrs. Schnittgrund says. For example, using the new base year of 1967, the price index for food in January 1971 was 117.5 and in January 1970 it was 117.5. That means the food you could buy for almost $1.14 in January 1970 cost you nearly $1.16 in January 1971.

Besides updating the base year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics is planning a new survey of consumer expenditures for 1972 and 1973. A new list of goods and services will be priced.

For example, the CPI does not now include economy cars, boots for men and women or panty hose. Perhaps these items will be priced in the revised market basket and other old goods will be dropped. Periodic changes are made in the market basket so that the CPI will accurately reflect the changes in our living patterns, our higher standard of living and new products on the market, explains Mrs. Schnittgrund.

A New England Brunch

Brunch is the perfect way to entertain friends, whether in a formal dining room setting or beside a sunny kitchen window. The menu should be as perky and fresh as the morning hour and as inviting as the aroma of fresh perked coffee.

Fresh apples, spices, maple syrup and chunks of smoky ham bubble out of a crisp, golden crust which invites seconds. Attractive, evenly-shaped ham cubes are easy to cut from the ham because there is very little fat to cut away.

Serve the pie still warm from the oven with traditional touches like Boston brown bread.

NEW ENGLAND HAM AND APPLE BREAKFAST PIE

Pastry for a 2-crust pie
1 pound ham, cut into 1-inch chunks (about 1½ cups)
6 large cooking apples, peeled and sliced
½ cup maple syrup
1½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon

1½ teaspoon ground cloves
1¼ pound (1½ stick) butter, cut into small pieces

Prepare pastry and line a 10-inch pie pan with first half. Cut ham into chunks. Prepare apples. Place half the apples in the pastry lined pie plate. Top with ham chunks. Fill with remaining apples. Pour maple syrup over apples. Sprinkle with spices and dot with butter. Roll out top crust and place over apples. Crimp and seal. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 40-50 minutes or until pastry is well browned. Serve to 6.

The Perfect Fried Chicken

To avoid serving stringy underdone or overdone fried chicken, home economists of United States Stamping Co. offer a foolproof method for cooking perfectly done fowl.

They recommend that you use an inch or 10 inch ceramic or steel chicken or which will deliver excellent heat insulation and be easy to clean later. For a golden brown chicken with skin follow these easy steps.

Wash chicken parts under cold water.

Pat dry with cloth or paper towel. Combine a cup of flour, a teaspoon of salt and a half a teaspoon of pepper and mix into paper bag.

Drop pieces of chicken into bag and shake vigorously until each is lightly coated.

Place chicken in hot oil one quarter cup of butter and one quarter of a cup of oil. It could be very hot.

Turn heat to medium and brown chicken pieces on one side and then turn them and brown the other.

Turn heat to low and put tight lid on chicken fryer.

Cook for about forty five to sixty minutes turning pieces over every ten minutes.

Serve directly from chicken fryer or on a platter.

Green Variety

Few things add so much to eating enjoyment as a crisp salad fresh green and aglow with nature's goodness. Are you getting variety in your salad bowl? Everybody loves hard lettuce. It's the classic salad green. But do you add other greens, too? Mix and match a number of leafy greens in season to make salad its exciting best.

Consider escarole, slightly frilled at the edges, with a flavor quite different from other greens. Escarole is some times called straight leaved endive which gives a hint to its flavor. Belgian endive comes in elegant ivory cones, a wonderful addition to the salad bowl. Romaine has all the dignity of tall green plumes. This green is crisp hand some and a great blender with other types of greens or use it alone as a salad variation.

Follow your own good taste to vary salad dressings according to what goes into the bowl. Many people like fresh lemon juice for a change when making a French dressing for a tossed salad. The creamy dressings are delicious with tossed salads that contain hard-cooked egg. Fresh fruit combines very well with greens in the salad bowl and a whipped cream dressing sweetened with honey is very good with them.

For extra color in salads call on carrots cut in curls or sticks on green pepper rings both red and green onion rings and a scattering of bright red radishes. Now is the season to enliven your salad bowl with a variety of the good fresh greens and vegetables so attractive at your market.

LORRAINE BORSKE'S Sunshine Cake knows no season. It is high, light and handsome — with both a delicate texture and flavor. An orange cream frosting, chocolate icing or a sprinkling of powdered sugar can be used to top off the elegant Sunshine Cake.

Mrs. Gordon R. Borske

Her Cake Is Sunshine

by LOIS SEILER

Bring a bit of springtime into your kitchen with the Sunshine Cake being featured today. It is high, light and handsome — with both a delicate texture and flavor.

Mrs. Gordon R. Borske of 309 Beech Drive, Schaumburg, makes this cake from an old family recipe which her grandmother brought with her from Sweden.

There is no shortening in the batter. Six eggs, with yolks and whites beaten separately, give the cake its airy texture and sunny yellow color. Lorraine Borske uses both almond and vanilla flavoring, but this may be varied to suit your taste.

Baked in an angel food pan, the cake may be served plain or iced. An orange cream frosting tastes refreshing, and Lorraine also recommends a chocolate icing or just sprinkling the cake with powdered sugar.

The Sunshine Cake is a favorite of the Borskes' sons, Mitch, 9, Brad, 6, and Andy, 20 months old. They also like their mother's Sandwich Cookies, although Lorraine classifies them as more of a party cookie than a child's snack.

"This is also an old Swedish recipe, but it was handed down in the family of a friend and not my own," she explained.

The basic dough consists of only three ingredients: butter, whipping cream and flour. After chilling, it is rolled out and cut in circles. Lorraine finds a whiskey jigger ideal for this task; it makes rounds that are just the right size. Dipped into granulated sugar and baked, they are assembled into sandwiches with a butter cream filling.

"THE FILLING may be tinted with food coloring and looks festive for a special occasion," Lorraine said. "Although easy to make, they take time," she added. "Because of their fragile texture, they must be handled with care. However, it is this delicate quality that also makes them melt in your mouth."

Another of this good cook's party specialties is an excellent recipe for shrimp hors d'oeuvres. Simple to make, it consists of marinated shrimp combined with a cheese mixture and spread on bread rounds. Broiled until lightly browned, these tempting appetizers are served piping hot. Even if she's not having a party, Lorraine occasionally whips up this recipe for the family as they enjoy these tasty hors d'oeuvres as snacks.

Moving from Niles to Timbercrest in Schaumburg a little over two years ago, Lorraine and Gordon quickly became involved in the community's activities. They joined the area's ski club and bowling league, and are on the social committee of the Home Owners' Association. Lorraine is also a member of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Newcomers' Club.

SUNSHINE CAKE

1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup water
6 whole eggs, separated
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon almond or vanilla flavoring (or ½ teaspoon of each)
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
Boil sugar and water together until syrup reaches thread-like stage.

While syrup is cooking, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, using hand or electric beater. Add hot syrup slowly to egg whites, beating constantly. Mixture should be beaten continuously until cool.

Beat egg yolks until light and fluffy. Fold into egg white mixture. Add cream of tartar to sifted flour and sift together. Sift over batter and fold in evenly. The smaller the amount of flour added at a time, the lighter the cake. Blend in flavoring and pour batter into an ungreased angel food cake pan.

Place in a cool oven. Do not pre-heat. Turn temperature to 325 degrees and bake one hour. Serve plain or frost with the following icing:

ORANGE CREAM ICING

2 1/3 cups powdered sugar
Grated rind of one orange Juice of one medium orange
4 tablespoons thick cream
Couple dashes of salt
Mix ingredients together and frost top and sides of cooled cake.

SANDWICH COOKIES

½ pound butter
1/3 cup whipping cream
2 cups sifted flour
Cream butter with whipping cream. Slowly beat in flour; mix well. Form into large ball and chill one hour. Divide ball into thirds. Roll out 1/8-inch thick. Use a whiskey jigger or cookie cutter to cut out circles.

Dip both sides of circles into granulated sugar. Place on cookie sheet and prick cookies with a fork. Bake at 375 degrees for 7 to 9 minutes. Cool and prepare the following filling:

¼ cup butter
¾ cup powdered sugar
1 egg yolk
½ teaspoon vanilla
Cream ingredients together thoroughly. Tint with food coloring, if desired. Handling carefully, use as a filling to put two cookies together making cookie "sandwiches." Yield: about 3 dozen.

SHRIMP HORS D'OEUVRES

1 can shrimp, drained and rinsed
½ cup lemon juice
2 dashes onion juice
1 large package cream cheese
2 egg yolks
Marinate shrimp in lemon juice and onion juice for two hours, stirring occasionally. Place on lightly-buttered bread squares or circles.

Beat cream cheese and egg yolks together thoroughly. Place a spoonful of cheese mixture on top of each shrimp. Broil until lightly browned. Serve hot. Yield: 2 to 3 dozen hors d'oeuvres.

Flipped Fillets? Easy To Make, Fun To Eat

How do you like your fish? Pan-fried to a golden brown — deep fried to an unforgettable crispness — simmered ever so gently to tender flakiness — plan cooked regularly with some of the season's vegetables — broiled lightly and quick — until sizzling hot and tempting — baked to moist succulent perfection. The choice of cooking method is yours, but whatever the choice, call on fish fillets — conveniently fresh frozen — to help you follow through.

We think you'll like these baked fillets. Don't let their recipe title, Flipped Fillets, fool you. Simply enclose single whole fillets, or perhaps serving-size pieces of fillets, rolled up, fastened shut, soaked in a pungent salad dressing, baked, tossed with butter and run under the broiler for golden high lights — and you've gotten the gist of this recipe. Oh yes, the fillets are flipped over and around perky green onions, strips of green pepper and dill pickle. There will be tantalizing tips of the vegetables peaking out at either end of the Flipped Fillets.

As long as the oven is on, slip some frozen corn bread in next to the fish fillets. Close to dinnertime, cook one of those modern frozen miracle vegetables, like carrots in butter sauce, unmold a tomato aspic salad, make the coffee and pour the milk — everything's ready for the Flipped Fillets.

By now you probably have gotten the idea that fish fillets, the fleshy sides of fish which are cut lengthwise away from the backbone, are pretty versatile, and you're right. Wonder of wonders, there are two other easy-to-prepare market forms — fish portions and fish sticks, cut from frozen blocks of cod, haddock or pollock fillets — which have nearly as many uses to their culinary characters. You may have to restrict yourself to the cooking and crisping methods outlined on their packages, but the sky's the limit insofar as recipes and menus are con-

There is always a great display of abundant fish and shellfish in your local market's freezer.

FLIPPED FILLETS

2 pounds frozen fish fillets
Salt and pepper
5 or 6 green onions,
4 inches long
10 or 12 green pepper strips
10 or 12 dill pickle strips ¾ cup Italian-style salad dressing
Thaw frozen fillets. Cut into 5 or 6 serving-size portions. Season with salt and pepper. In center of each piece, place an onion and 2 green pepper and pickle strips. Roll up, securing the ends with toothpicks or string. Pour salad dressing into a small bowl; roll each stuffed fillet in dressing to coat completely; place on a baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

What's Thawing For Dinner?

'South Of The Border' Foods

by CHARLOTTE ERICKSON

Recent food statistics seem to indicate that Latin American food continues to gain in popularity in the United States. One misconception being dispelled is that all Latin American food is not floating in chili and hot sauce. Many of the dishes are bland enough to appeal to the North American palate or they can be seasoned in this manner at the discretion of the chef.

The following Latin American recipes are easy to make and tasty.

PESCADO ASADO (Baked Fish)

2 pounds filleted red snapper or striped bass
1/3 cup lime juice salt
freshly ground black pepper
1 large Bermuda onion, thinly sliced
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon oregano
1 bay leaf, crumbled
1 cup chopped frozen onions
½ cup frozen chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped celery

1 1/3 cup grated fresh carrots
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons olive oil
¼ teaspoon pepper sauce
1 sprig parsley, snipped
1 cup fish or chicken stock
1 1/3 cup sliced almonds

Arrange fish in a large shallow pan. Cover with lime juice, salt and pepper to taste, and set aside, turning the fish occasionally. Arrange sliced Bermuda onion in the bottom of a large 9 x 13-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with thyme, oregano and bay leaf. Season with salt and pepper. In a medium size skillet sauté chopped onions, green pepper, celery, carrots and garlic in 2 tablespoons of olive oil until tender. Add pepper sauce, parsley and ½ cup of fish or chicken stock. Simmer for another 5 minutes. Meanwhile, drain fish. Pour marinade over onions in baking dish. Arrange fish on top of the onions in a single layer, if possible. Spread cooked dressing over the top, along with any remaining stock. Sprinkle with sliced almonds and parsley. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 30 minutes. Makes 4-5 servings.

ENCHILADAS CON POLLO

Chicken Enchiladas

1 1-pound can seasoned stewed tomatoes
½ cup chopped frozen onions
1 cup chopped frozen green peppers
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups chopped cooked chicken
¼ cup currants
¼ cup chopped stuffed green olives 12 large tortillas (fresh or canned) vegetable oil
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup parmesan cheese shredded lettuce sliced or mashed seasoned avocados scallions
sliced radishes

Combine stewed tomatoes, onions, peppers, salt and pepper in a sauce pan. Bring to a boil. Lower heat and simmer for about 10 to 15 minutes. In a small bowl combine chicken, currants and olives. Heat oil in skillet and dip tortillas in hot oil for a second to soften. Cool on absorbent paper. Beat eggs in a deep but shallow dish. Place a heaping tablespoon of chicken mixture on each tortilla. Roll up and fasten with wooden tooth picks. Dip tortilla into egg mixture and brown in oil for about 3 minutes on each side. (Oil temperature should be about 375 degrees.) Drain on paper towels. Remove tooth picks. Place enchiladas on large platter. Pour tomato sauce over the top. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and put under the broiler for a few minutes. Garnish platter with lettuce, avocado, radishes and onions. Serve immediately. Makes 12 enchiladas.

MEXICAN COFFEE

4 cups water
1/3 cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
2 (3-inch) cinnamon sticks
½ cup ground coffee
In a medium size sauce pan combine water, sugar and cinnamon. Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Reduce heat and let simmer for about 5 minutes. Add coffee and simmer for 2 more minutes. Remove from heat and let set until coffee grounds settle to the bottom. Carefully pour into heated coffee pot for serving. Makes 4 cups.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Skillet dishes, like casseroles, are standbys of the cook who wants to feed a number of people substantially with minimal preparation time. Most are combinations which with only the addition of a simple salad provide a hearty meal.

This recipe combines pork chops and potatoes. To serve 6, select that number of chops about ½ inch thick or a dozen thin chops, should you prefer. Rub well with salt and pepper (1 teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper).

You may use either an electric skillet with lid on or an iron skillet which can be covered and placed in the oven. I like the latter method, but either will do.

Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in the skillet. Brown the chops lightly on both sides, remove from the skillet and cook ½ cup finely chopped onions until transparent. Avoid burning. Remove.

Peel and slice thin 6 medium sized potatoes (about 4 cups) and place slices in the skillet. Arrange the chops on top.

Blend the cooked onions, 1 can undiluted cream of mushroom soup, and 1 cup milk. Pour this over the chops, cover, if using electric skillet, set temperature at 300 degrees and cook for 30 to 40 minutes when potatoes should be soft and well done.

Using the oven method, preheat to 350 degrees. Place the covered skillet in the oven and cook for 40 minutes. Serve from the skillet.

An interesting potato dish which we've offered to satisfied guests many times is a chive-flavored soufflé. To serve 4 to 6, you'll need 2 cups of hot mashed potatoes (instant will save time and trouble). Combine potatoes with ½ cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese, ½ sour cream, 1½ teaspoon salt, and 3 tablespoons chopped chives.

Separate 3 eggs. Beat the yolks until smooth and add to the potato mixture. Whip. Now beat the egg whites until stiff and fold in. Pour mixture into a well buttered casserole. Bake in a preheated oven at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Garnish with additional chopped chives. This dish must be served immediately.

Omelets Are Light-as-Air With New Mixes

The gossamer light omelet is one of those simple dishes that can be surprisingly difficult to master. Frequently, after beating the eggs, pouring the mixture into a well-buttered pan and cooking carefully, the result is disappointingly soggy or tough. But now the R. T. French Company has introduced three new seasoning mixes for fluffy omelets that makes this "fluffy" dish a virtually never-fail creation.

The mixes come in three flavors: plain, cheese and Spanish style. To prepare, just stir together the mix with 4 eggs and water and cook in a covered skillet for 10 minutes. What slips easily out of the pan is a proudly puffed and tender omelet.

And since eggs team beautifully with meats, fruit and vegetables, omelets can be more than a breakfast dish. To illustrate this versatility, French's Test Kitchens developed these recipes using the three mixes.

The complementary flavors of franks, tomato and cheese are combined to make a hearty filling for the Spanish style omelet. Served with cole slaw, mashed potatoes and crusty rolls, it's a nutritious, quick-to-fix dinner.

For a different brunch or late supper dish, spread the plain omelet with cream cheese and frozen raspberries. This dessert-type omelet is also an elegant lunch-dish to serve to the bridge club.

Sunday supper or midnight meals after the movies are frequently catch-as-catch-can. This Super Supper Omelet is designed for these occasions. It has all the "fixings" of the popular submarine — salami, lettuce and tomato. Folded inside a fluffy cheese omelet, it's a complete meal and eminently satisfying. Serve it, too, to the youngsters for lunch — they'll love it.

SPANISH FRANKFURTER OMELET

1/2 pound frankfurters, sliced
1 tablespoon butter

1 fresh tomato, chopped
(or 1 cup canned tomatoes, drained)
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.)
Spanish style seasoning mix for fluffy omelet
1 cup shredded sharp
Cheddar cheese

Cook frankfurters in butter until lightly browned; add tomato and cook 5 minutes longer. Prepare fluffy omelet as directed on package. Spoon half the frankfurter mixture onto omelet before folding; sprinkle with half the cheese. Fold and turn onto serving platter. Spoon remaining filling over omelet; sprinkle with remaining cheese. 4 servings.

WEEKEND BRUNCH OMELET

1 package (3-oz.) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon orange-flavored liqueur, if desired
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) seasoning mix for fluffy omelet
(Plain)
1 package (10-oz.) frozen raspberries, thawed and drained Beat together cream cheese, sugar and, if desired, liqueur until fluffy. Prepare fluffy omelet as directed on package. Spread with cream cheese and top with half the raspberries. Fold and turn onto serving platter. Spoon remaining raspberries over omelet. 4 servings.

SUPER Supper omelet

1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) cheese flavor seasoning mix for fluffy omelet
Mayonnaise
1/2 cup shredded lettuce
4 slices salami, cut into strips
1 tomato, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped sweet onion Prepare fluffy omelet as directed on package. Spread with mayonnaise; top with lettuce, salami, tomato and onion.
Fold and turn onto serving platter. 4 servings.

Gourmet Perch

Gourmet Perch Made With Cheese

If you're like most homemakers, the fish you prepare for dinner is served exactly the same way every time. Unfortunately, even the best fish becomes tiresome if it is served in the same old way week in and week out.

One way to dispel boredom is to occasionally cook a distinctively flavored cheese, such as blue cheese, with the fish. The delicate, yet zesty flavor of this cheese has wonderful affinity for the richness of lake white fish.

And to enhance the preparation and serving of the fish, dress up your table with a chafing dish. It's so easy and fun to use. And most recipes are easily adapted to the use of the chafing dish. It is not restricted to gourmet cooking any longer.

So, for a quick flavor change, and to make a special occasion, introduce your family to this exciting Gourmet Perch. A combination of fish, cheese, and chafing dish makes this main dish is accompanied by a big Caesar salad or fresh broccoli and a light pudding or ice cream dessert.

GOURMET PERCH

2 cups cooked flaked perch
2 tablespoons butter

- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 cup onion, finely chopped
- 1 Dash Worcestershire
- 1/2 cups milk
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons cream
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese, grated
- 1/2 cup blue cheese, crumbled
- 3 ounces crumbled
- Parsley

Prepare the fish ahead of time. Melt butter in top pan of chafing dish over low flame. Stir in flour, salt, pepper, paprika, onion and Worcestershire. When mixture is bubbling, slowly stir in milk. Cook until thickened and smooth. Place pan over bottom of hot water. Let sauce simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat egg and cream together. Slowly add to hot cream sauce. Blend well. Stir in Parmesan and 1/2 cup blue cheese. When cheese is melted, add fish, stirring gently. When mixture is thoroughly heated, serve on pasta shells or toast points. Sprinkle each serving with remaining 1/2 cup blue cheese and top with finely chopped parsley.

Evaporated milk is fresh milk with almost 60 per cent of the water removed. The product is homogenized to disperse the butterfat evenly, and Vitamin D is usually added for good nutrition. The milk is then heat sterilized in sealed cans to keep it safe. Evaporated skim milk is made in the same way from skim milk. It's often fortified with Vitamin A, which is lacking in skim milk.

As a main dish food salmon rates high nutritionally. Its protein content is substantial and excellent. Salmon also contains Vitamins A and D, thiamine, riboflavin, calcium, phosphorus and iodine.

Pacific salmon comes in five species—king, sockeye, silver, pink and chum. Their flesh varies in color from near white to the bright red of the sockeye or "red" salmon. In general the depth of color of the meat has much to do with the popularity of each species, increasing from the light colored chums through pinks, silvers, kings to the prized sockeyes.

For Brunch Or Breakfast

Here's a good breakfast or brunch special. Combine $\frac{1}{2}$ cup each of butter and firmly packed brown sugar and 1 tablespoon of light corn syrup. Bring to a boil in saucepan stirring constantly. Pour into $5\frac{1}{2}$ cup ring mold or a 9 by 5 inch loaf pan and tilt to coat sides and bottom. Sprinkle with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of chopped toasted filberts. Prepare rolled biscuits from a mix. Using $\frac{1}{2}$ cups mix and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of milk. Stack biscuits on sides and place around the ring pan or in two rows in loaf pan. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 30 to 40 minutes, or until biscuits are well browned. Invert onto serving plate. Let stand 5 minutes, then remove pan. Makes 6 servings.

Cranberry Dessert

Low calorie cranberry cream dessert is easy to prepare. Dissolve 2 envelopes of low calorie lemon gelatin in 1½ cups of boiling low calorie cranberry juice cocktail. By spoonfuls add 1 pint of vanilla flavored ice milk. Stir until ice milk is melted. Chill until firm. Spoon into sherbet glasses. Top each serving with 2 tablespoons of whipped topping made by beating 1 cup each of cold water and dry milk with 1 tablespoon each of sugar and lemon juice until mixture is the consistency of whipped cream. Chill. Makes 6 servings of 125 calories each.

Consumer Hints

Always cook meat and poultry at low to moderate temperatures. This provides maximum tenderness and juiciness and yields more meat less shrinkage. It also helps make sure the center is fully cooked without the outside being overdone.

Potatoes are an excellent food buy. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service says they provide some Vitamin C, iron, other minerals and starch.

Next to beef, pork is the most popular meat to come to the American table. We eat about 65 pounds of it a year.

Archaeological diggings in the Andes often turn up ceremonial ceramic pots in the shape of potatoes, or a blend of potato and human forms indicating the importance of this tuber to early South Americans.

Vegetable Treat, Not Treatment

A salad repertoire that includes a variety of marinated vegetable recipes can simplify meal planning. These kinds of salads are perfect substitutes for hot vegetables, and provide interesting complements to the rest of the meal.

Of course, marinated vegetables have some other noteworthy advantages. They are prepared ahead so that vegetables can absorb the marinade flavors, and once out of the refrigerator, they hold up better than most salads. And this last is important for a party buffet dinner.

Frozen whole green beans are the star in this Pyramid Salad. Simply cook as package directs, then drain and marinate in prepared Parmesan or Italian salad dressing.

For serving, pile the beans in pyramid fashion on a lettuce-lined platter and surround with the garnishes: sliced tomato, hard-cooked eggs, anchovy fillets, and olives.

PYRAMID SALAD

- 2 packages (9 ounce each) frozen whole green beans
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 envelope Parmesan or Italian salad dressing mix
 - Vinegar, water, salad oil
 - 1 medium tomato, sliced
 - 1 hard-cooked egg, cut into wedges
 - 1 can (2 ounces) anchovy fillets (about 8 to 10 fillets)
 - 3 to 4 stuffed green olives, sliced
- Prepare beans in water and salt as directed on package. Drain well. Prepare salad dressing mix with vinegar, water, and salad oil as directed on package. Pour over beans in a very shallow glass dish. Cover and marinate in refrigerator at least 3 hours, turning once or twice. Arrange beans in pyramid shape on lettuce leaves with tomato, egg, anchovies, and olives. Makes about 4 cups or 7 to 8 servings.

You may want to serve the salad with baked ham or sliced cold chicken plus plenty of French bread or frozen "home-baked" rolls and butter. For dessert serve a do-it-yourself shortcake and offer a choice of frozen fruits and berries — easy to do when you use quick thaw frozen fruits — raspberries, or mixed fruit, for instance.

PYRAMID SALAD

We've Eaten 36 Billion Pounds Of Meat In '70

by JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK UPI — By the end of 1970 — a few days from now — Americans will have eaten more than 36 billion pounds of meat, about 1 billion pounds more than last year.

Per capita consumption for the same period is expected to reach 185 pounds of beef, veal, pork and lamb on the hoof, a 3 pound gain over 1969.

But our knowledge about meat hasn't kept pace with our appetites. The American Meat Institute, which provided the figures at its ninth annual meat information conference in New York, also revealed some information gaps. They came in questions the institute's member companies receive from consumers.

ONE CONSUMER said she'd been told it was legal to put two per cent pork into products labeled pure beef. Not so. Products labeled pure beef by law must contain just that, no other meats, variety meats or extenders.

A Chicagoan accused a packer of "substituting large folded strips of a different grade of meat," in a package of bacon. Turned out the customer meant the half-slices, which sometimes must be used to make certain every pound of bacon weighs at least that much.

Another Illinois consumer accused a packer of shortchanging her on the number of sausages in a factory-sealed package. Seems the customer didn't know that fresh pork sausage is packed by weight. The link count may vary because natural casings are used which do vary in size and diameter.

A NEW JERSEY consumer objected to paying more per pound for a 1 1/2-pound canned ham than a 3-pound canned ham of the same brand.

The packer explained that the meat itself cost about the same, regardless of the size of the finished product. But the cost of labor and supplies, including the can, the lid and the packing box, was relatively higher for small sizes.

New products introduced at the American Meat Institute conference included canned ham salad and egg salad with bacon; 2 1/4-pound canned hams with a glaze mix in the cap atop each can; canned beef stew to be used as either a heat-and-serve item or, diluted with a canful of water, as beef and vegetable soup; and canned ready-to-use crumbled bacon in a resealable container.

Some of these products are in test markets. Others are in regional or national distribution.

The Versatile Potato

How good is a potato?

That depends on how good you make it, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The potato adapts to a variety of serving methods to please the palate of just about everyone.

Since current potato supplies are plentiful, now's a good time to experiment. For a starter, the Consumer and Marketing Service recommends the following:

POTATO STRIPS WITH CHEESE

Put 1 cup raw potato strips (cut as for French fries) into a greased baking dish and pour 1/2 cup milk over them. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper to taste. Cover and bake in a 425-degree oven for 40 minutes, or until tender. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup thinly shaved process cheese and 1 tablespoon finely cut parsley. Cover and bake 5 more minutes. Serves four.

FRIED SWEET-SOUR POTATOES

Cook 1 slice bacon until crisp. Remove from pan and chop. Using 2 tablespoons of the bacon fat, cook 2 1/2 to 3 cups diced raw potatoes over medium heat, without turning, for 15 to 20 minutes or until browned on the bottom. Turn the potatoes with a wide spatula. Add 1/2 cup finely chopped onion and cook for five minutes more. Add 1 tablespoon sugar, 3/4 teaspoon salt and 1/2 cup water. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove from heat and pour 1/2 cup vinegar over top. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Add chopped bacon and reheat. Serves four to five.

Haute Cuisine: Oriental Style

One of the basic principles of ancient Chinese high cuisine was offer only what was freshest and serve it immediately. You can imagine the sheer logistics of this when it was a common custom among chefs to assemble as many as 600 dishes for one feast.

Fortunately, in our world of convenience foods, we can subscribe to the principle and follow it through with ease and speed. Take today's Oriental-style recipe for instance. Dynasty Shrimp is a combination of fresh and frozen ingredients that are only as far away as your local market or even in your home freezer and cupboard.

The delicate flavor of the shrimp is protected by the stir fry method of cooking. The same quick cook treatment is given to the other ingredients, too: mushrooms, onions, and frozen tiny peas (an ideal substitute for the Oriental snow pea pods and a better bargain in these special frozen food sale times).

DYNASTY SHRIMP

1 pound mushrooms, quartered

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 pound frozen shrimp, cleaned
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced onions
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen tiny peas, partially thawed
- 1 cup sliced water chestnuts
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Season mushrooms with 1/2 teaspoon salt, set aside. Saute shrimp in butter in skillet until shrimp turn pink; remove shrimp from skillet. Saute mushrooms and onions in skillet until onions are tender and mushrooms are lightly browned. Add remaining ingredients and cooked shrimp. Simmer until peas are completely thawed and cooked — about 4 minutes. Serve over hot prepared rice with soy sauce, if desired. Makes about 4 cups or 6 servings.

Bus Company Considering Service To Woodfield Mall

by NANCY COWGER

When Woodfield Mall opens late this summer, store clerks and shoppers living in Schaumburg Township likely will be able to get to the stores without their cars.

Tentative plans for a full daily schedule of bus service to the shopping center are being developed by Schaumburg Transportation Company, Inc., said Walter and Del Fiene, company owners.

"We are just looking into it at present. It is completely in the planning stage. But we are fairly certain" the firm will offer bus service, said Del Fiene yesterday.

THE FIRM NOW serves township schools and provides two round trips for commuters using the Milwaukee Railroad station in Roselle and the Chicago-North Western station in Palatine, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Prior to the opening of local shopping centers, the company ran a full-time schedule to shopping facilities in Rolling Meadows. When local centers opened, patronage of the buses to Rolling Meadows dropped so low the company was forced to discontinue the service, said Del Fiene.

Patronage would be a factor in determining whether the Woodfield Mall routes, if established, would become permanent, Del Fiene said. He estimated the company would need to add two buses to its fleet to continue a permanent full daily schedule of service. To justify the bus purchase and the hiring of extra drivers, the line would need about 600 customers per day, said Del Fiene.

Del Fiene said his figures were estimates, and specific statistics are difficult to produce until routes and time schedules are determined. The schedules would be devised for the convenience of Woodfield Mall employees and shoppers, he said.

WALTER FIENE predicted the service would likely begin at around 6 a.m., and stop at about 10 p.m. each service day. Routes might be scheduled every two hours, he said, depending on their street patterns.

The earliest morning runs would service the commuter railroad lines, said Walter Fiene, and at about 8:30 or 9 a.m. buses would switch over to the shopping center. In the early afternoon, bus routes would begin servicing both the rail lines and the shopping center, while late evening service would be limited to the mall.

Service would be limited to the more populated sections of the township, said the Fienes, but they have made no decision on whether to extend routes to such points as Hanover Park. Specific route patterns have not been chosen, and Walter Fiene said he would try to cooperate with villages in choosing streets acceptable to them. He said he intends to present all his plans to the villages before initiating service.

The bus line does not require approval from the Illinois Commerce Commission to begin the service, or to drop any service during the tentative stage, said Walter Fiene. Once the service is permanently established, permission might be required for any eliminations, he said.

VILLAGE ADMINISTRATIONS in both Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates expressed approval of the bus line's plans. They view the service as a convenience for their residents, but they doubt the expanded service would mean additional revenue for village government.

"I'm happy that he is willing to take such a venture in the face of the fact so many bus operations have lost money, gone out of business, in the suburban areas. To have one of our own local people say he is going to give it a good honest try pleases us all," said Mayor Robert O. Atcher of Schaumburg.

Daniel Larson, Hoffman Estates administrative assistant, expressed similar sentiments, terming public transportation "a necessity in this society. It's a good venture, I just hope it succeeds," said Larson.

Classroom: 'The Cape' In Miniature

by NANCY COWGER

Every Thursday Jane Addams Junior High School becomes a Cape Kennedy in miniature.

When weather permits, rockets are launched at the "Cape" for heights of as much as 3,000 feet, and at speeds as high as 400 miles per hour. When it doesn't, the crew of the "Cape" spends its time in "Mission Control," a science room that doubles as the home of the school's model rocketry club.

The 20 to 25 diehard members of the club may use small, relatively inexpensive rockets. But their problems at countdown are the same ones that mean success or failure for every NASA launch. And the seventh and eighth graders understand those problems and deal with them each week, said Gene Kujawa, club advisor.

THE CLUB members make their own rockets, except for the engines. Beginners use kits, with all the pieces prepared for them. Members with more experience design their own rockets, sometimes making the individual pieces and sometimes combining parts they buy individually that are manufactured commercially.

The most experienced club members build the entire rocket system, excluding the engine, themselves. There are five members in that category at Jane Addams, said Kujawa. They use a variety of materials for the rocket body — newspapers soaked in a glue solution, cardboard tubes from paper towel rolls, balsa wood are common construction basics.

All the students must be concerned with two basic questions, which make necessary an understanding of many areas of science, said Kujawa. The questions are, "Will it get off the ground?" and, when it does, "Will it fly correctly?"

The rocket launchers study the stability of their individual crafts, calculating whether they will fly true and straight up. They test the balancing of their rockets, considering wind factors, fin lines and air resistance. They inspect the wadding of their firing mechanisms, to be sure they are fireproof. They pack their own parachutes, for rocket recovery, and determine which type of parachute is most suitable for a specific rocket design.

THE PUPILS ARE concerned in general with the flight worthiness of their rockets. Before each launching, they perform a pre-flight check of all components, including such technical matters as electrical circuitry and how it will be affected by varying air temperatures, on the ground and over 1,000 feet up.

In cold weather, said Kujawa, the club members found the dry cells they used to power launchings did not put forth enough power over an extended time. Not enough rockets could be launched with the dry cells. So with Kujawa the youngsters arranged a system using a motorcycle battery. The battery ignites nickel chromium wire, which threads to the launch pad. As the ignition travels the wire, it fires the rockets' solid powder propellants.

Working with the rockets helps the youngsters pick up basic concepts of meteorology, learning rain and wind factors for launching, physics, with energy, pro-

Roads, Bridges Budget OK'd

The Schaumburg Township board of auditors approved the 1971-72 roads and bridges budget Tuesday night after only one person attended a public hearing on the budget.

The new budget, effective March 1, shows an increase of nearly $9,000 over the previous year, with a major increase for road maintenance, at $40,000 last year and up to $50,000 this year.

Ralph Wilkening, roads superintendent, listed areas slated for road work. Sunset Drive and Monterey Lane in the Sunset Hills area are to be blacktopped, he said, with revenues from the towns receipt of motor fuel taxes. All streets in Pleasant hills are to receive a seal coat of tar and chips, he said. Also to be seal coated are Pratt Boulevard between Roselle Road and Lincoln Street, and all streets in an area bounded by Albane Avenue, Lincoln Street, Sewer Street and Arthur Street.

Many areas in the unincorporated township are listed for ditch improvements, he said.

A 50 per cent decrease, or $5,000 was listed for road construction. Wilkening said the money is for work on Rodenburg Road, which is being constructed with the Village of Schaumburg paying half the cost.

One question was raised on the $1,000 allocation for weed control. Last year the township spent more than was allocated for that budget category. Wilkening explained last year the township went into the "junk car" business, removing 28 abandoned autos from vacant lots. He expects less need for that this year, he said. The allocation is to allow cutting weeds where property owners fail to do so. The owners then are billed for the work, but the township maintains its own mowers.

Coalition Ticket Suggested

The possibility of a coalition ticket in future years, to keep national party politics out of village elections in Hoffman Estates, has been proposed by John Morrissey, Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman.

The Democrats are appealing to Hoffman Estates residents to put the party's three trustee candidates, William Brilliant, Lawrence Excell, and Mrs. Barbara Sherman on the village board to avoid a Republican hold on all board positions.

If the three Democrats are elected the Republicans will still hold the position of village president, village clerk and three trustee seats, Morrissey said.

"Power corrupts," Morrissey said, referring to the chance of all board seats becoming Republican.

"We are not talking about incidents of corruption. We are talking about the potential corrupting influence that absolute power can bring about," he added.

Morrissey maintains that the Republicans "started this business of party involvement in our local elections."

But, he said, an agreement can be reached where both parties sit down together and come up with a coalition slate in future elections.

He said it would have to be done through an advance agreement. Morrissey is not optimistic that the Republicans would agree to a coalition ticket, but said it is possible.

"It's been done in other villages," Morrissey added.

In literature distributed to residents, the Democrats have pledged to cooperate with the Republicans in the future to prevent either party from gaining absolute control over local government.

"Under the present circumstances, with the Republican Party determined to control all local offices, the Democratic Party offers the only meaningful way to provide the safeguards of checks and balances," Morrissey said.

Excell said he and his running mates believe in the need for checks and balances, but it is not their primary issue.

The Democrats' platform offers clear objectives on things that need to be accomplished in Hoffman Estates, he added.

Once on the board, Excell pledged to put his party label aside and work on programs felt to be in the best interests of the community.

"If the Republicans proposed a good means to solve a village problem I would vote in favor and put my party label aside," Excell said.

The Emil J. Rinne swimming pool, Hanover Park's first community swimming pool, is expected to open in June and park district officials say all village residents will be able to use the pool.

Women's Club Stages Benefit Teen Dance

A teen dance featuring "The Stone Savages," a rock group, will be held Friday at Vogele's Park in Hoffman Estates.

The dance is being sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Women's Club to provide an American Indian with a scholarship. The dance will be held between 8 and 11 p.m.

Profits from the dance will go to a junior at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

In previous years both the student, Louis Delgado, and his wife worked to support themselves and still allow time to attend college.

Delgado's wife will have a baby in July and can no longer work. Money from the dance will help the student to both attend school and support his family. Donated is $1.00 for those attending the dance.

The Women's Club held a shower Tuesday in honor of the young couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rusch.

Three Charged With Liquor Possession

Three Schaumburg Township youths were charged with illegal possession of liquor and a fourth, a minor, was reported to his parents, when their auto was stopped for a vehicle violation late Friday night on Golf Road near Valley Lake Drive.

Schaumburg Village police charged the driver, Gregory D. Rogers, 18, of 1161 Science Hanover Park, with having no license plate light, carrying an open liquor container in an auto, and possession of alcohol by a minor. Also charged with the second and third counts were Robert D. Charr, 17, of 715 Braintree Dr., Schaumburg, and Stephen J. Saidek, 17, of 123 Alca Ln., Hoffman Estates.

The pool, located at Ahlstrand Park, is named after Emil Rinne, incorporator of the village and long time resident of Hanover Township. Opening date for the pool is set for June 12.

While the majority of Hanover Park residents live within the corporate boundaries of the local park district, a portion of Longmeadows North subdivision is within the Schaumburg Park District.

There was some doubt whether these residents would be eligible to use the pool facility since they do not pay local park taxes.

HOWEVER, AS the park district announced registration (April 12 through June 11) the members decided to open the pool to all residents in Hanover Park regardless of what park district they live in.

Harold Humphreys, park district president, noted that Hanover Park residents who live in the Schaumburg Park District pay taxes to that district and are also eligible to use the Schaumburg Park District facilities.

Mrs. Nancy Neilson, park district secretary, explained that the Schaumburg Park District, when it set boundaries, grabbed a good portion of surrounding lands that were unincorporated at the time.

As Hanover Park developed within the Schaumburg Park District boundaries, the park district was approached twice for disannexation and granted two parcels of land to the Hanover Park District.

"The last time we asked the Schaumburg Park District to give up some land so the Hanover Park residents could be in our park district, they said, 'yes,' but warned it was the last time," she said.

'Focus On Marriage' Day Set At YWCA

People give time and energy to their children, hobbies, or favorite sports but often their marriages receive little attention. For this reason, the Elgin YWCA and the Fox Valley Mental Health Association are co-sponsoring a special Focus on Marriage day at the YWCA on Wednesday, April 1. Dorothy Hamilton, YWCA adult director, and Beatrice Wiener, Mental Health Education director of the Fox Valley Mental Health Association, are coordinating activities for Focus on Marriage.

This will not be a formal symposium with speeches by "experts." Dorothy Hamilton explained. Focus on Marriage will deal not only with problems but will offer information of value to any married person.

Initial plans for Focus on Marriage include informal discussions with resource people, a movie and group work shops. A day session from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and an evening session from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. are planned. Further details will be announced.

Modern Prints Show Opens Today At ECC

One of the exhibitions from the collection of modern prints from Mr. & Mrs. Joseph R. Shapiro, a group of four shows assembled by Dennis Ashton for the traveling Illinois Arts Council, will open today at Logan Community College, (ECC), Elgin.

Each of the four shows emphasizes a different significant trend in the art of the 20th century. The show appearing at ECC examines the prints from the recent pop art movement.

Prints by Andy Warhol, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Rauschenberg, and James Rosenquist head the roster of 24 "pop" works.

The Shapiro collection is renowned in America and Europe for its numerous examples of 20th century painting, sculpture and graphics. Shapiro is the founder and current president of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago.

The Illinois Arts Council is an agency of the state which brings art of all types to people within their own communities throughout the state. The ECC exhibit will make a 30-day run.

Police Investigate Metal In Candy Bar

When Mrs. James Plezbert of 118 Bode Rd. Hoffman Estates, bit into a candy bar Monday afternoon, she found more than the chocolate and toffee she expected.

Mrs. Plezbert found what she thought was a razor blade imbedded in the Heath bar and called police. Afraid she might have swallowed bits of the blade, she requested an ambulance to take her to St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital officials examined Mrs. Plezbert and the offending blade, and learned it was not a razor blade, but a piece of very fragile metal assumed to be carbon. They X-rayed Mrs. Plezbert and, finding no evidence of injury, sent her home.

Hoffman Estates police notified the Jewel Tea Co. at Hoffman Plaza where Mrs. Plezbert purchased the candy Friday, and store manager John Hayes agreed to investigate the incident, police reported.

Meet The Hoffman Estates Park Board Candidates

Barber: Better Parks On A Budget

Thirty-three-year-old Tom Barber will make his first bid for public office Tuesday in the Hoffman Estates Park District election.

Better Parks for Everyone at Today's Budget is the campaign slogan being used by the candidate, a five-year resident of the village and past president of the local Jaycees chapter.

He is hoping to be elected to a full six-year term on the park board and is known to have been interested in park affairs for the past several years.

A district sales manager with Montgomery Ward & Company, the candidate feels all residents of the park district are entitled to the best parks our money can buy.

HE IS DEFINITELY in favor of offering a diversified program to all residents of the growing park district even if budgeting is the only way to achieve this.

Barber also believes that all areas of the park district must be equally developed and feels that the neighborhood park concept is necessary to the community.

His reasons for running for the park district are simple Barber explains.

His association with the Jaycees made me aware of the community at large and its specific areas of need and I also dedicated me personally to the betterment of public services. Barber said.

Concerning the composition of the park board Barber feels that increasing the Interview stories on the candidates running for the Hoffman Estates park board were written by Herald Reporter Pat Gerlach. Candidates Bernard Bartosch, William Wermes, Edwin Frank, Thomas Barber, Robert Hill and Claude Crase are competing for two six-year terms, while William Pichler and Don Wade are running for one unexpired two-year term.

Interviews with the Schaumburg park district candidates will appear in Friday's Herald.

Frank Makes Second Bid For Park Board

Edwin L. Frank, a 41-year-old graduate of Rutgers University, is making his second bid for election to Hoffman Estates Park Board Tuesday.

Appointed to the board several years ago following a resignation, Frank served as a park commissioner for about 11 months and was defeated for a full-term board post in 1969.

A vice president of marketing for Tanka Washburn Advertising Agency, Aurora, Frank has openly criticized the past management of the park district and has charged the district with failure to provide programs necessary to the betterment of the community.

In a recent campaign launched in January, Frank has openly applauded the concept of master planning for the park district but contends that it is completely obsolete.

As a result of his criticism in his campaign, Frank feels the park board acted improperly in not continuing

Crase: Close Communications Gap

Claude W. Crase, a candidate for election to one of two full-term posts at stake in Tuesday's Hoffman Estates Park District election, lived in Palatine for 12 years before moving to Winston Knolls last year.

A principal in Basco Dist. 10, Crase, 35, and a native of Milledgeville, Mo., also serves as director of outdoor education for that school district.

A graduate of Southeast Missouri State College, Crase holds an M.S. in administration from Northern Illinois University and completed his thesis on the utilization of park and school grounds in outdoor education programs.

He is currently working toward a certificate of advanced studies at Northern Illinois University and has also served as program director for an eight-week summer camp program for boys conducted in Eagle River, Wis.

CRASE'S WIFE, Wilma, teaches in Dist. 10.

Crase has been vocal regarding the further development of neighborhood parks in Hoffman Estates and believes in "first things first."

He is concerned about communications between the park district and village and feels that there is an immediate need for improved relationships and better dialog between the two taxing bodies.

Following a recent tour of the entire park system, Wade expressed amazement at the lack of facilities in a growing community.

Although he comes from the newest area of the park district, Crase leaves little doubt in discussing his interest in the overall area.

"An effective park commissioner has just got to take the entire district into consideration — there's no other way and if anyone thinks I am running just to represent Winston Knolls he couldn't be less correct," Crase stresses.

number of commissioners from five to seven might be helpful.

"ALTHOUGH diversified interests are good on such a governing unit, consideration must also be given to the amount of time required."

Barber says also that he is inclined to believe that a six-year term is "a bit long for practicality" but also he thinks that the total complexion of a board should never completely change.

"An option of running for either a two, four or six-year term could be preferable in today's society because it is difficult, if not impossible, to commit oneself for a total six years," he feels.

IN THE AREA OF obtaining federal or state funding for park districts Barber does not object other than to "strings which may be attached because I just

Pichler Hopes To Continue Fight For Lighted Fields

"The overall course of the Hoffman Estates Park District must be capital improvement through referendum which current park master planning will lead to," says William F. Pichler, an appointed incumbent seeking election to a two-year unexpired term on Hoffman Estates Park Board.

An 11-year resident of the village and active member of Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA), Pichler joined the board last December following the resignation of Robert L. Schuhr.

Although he has been active in HEAA football programs, founded the Hoffman Raiders, ponytail softball and pee-wee football teams, Pichler emphasized that his service as a park commissioner does not serve this special interest group alone.

"THE ONLY interest group in this community or park district that I serve is the kids," Pichler said, and explained that his idea of a park district is one set up primarily in favor of youth interests.

He is convinced that results of the community survey now being undertaken by park planners working in the park district will bear out his contention that to retain a planning firm engaged several years ago while he was still on the board.

He was and still remains, one of the loudest critics of The Aquarius, an expansion program defeated by the voters last year.

WHILE FRANK has openly referred to the proposal as a "white elephant" he admits to having no objection to the concept, only to the fact that the districts could not support such a facility and that many facets of its design were inadequate.

The candidate is adamant in his thinking regarding employment of a professional park director "because only with such a professional can the system serve the taxpayers properly."

He believes the park system is "big business" and wants to reduce and eliminate deficit spending.

Frank further contends the park commissioners must reorient their thinking and become a policy making body,

HE FEELS, however, that as soon as possible services must be extended to that portion of the park district and facilities made operational "but we do have a total district to consider."

Although this is Crase's first bid for public office he has been engaged in many community activities throughout his residence in the area which include scouting and little league.

Crase felt the park district went too far in presenting the Aquarius for voter approval last year and believes that basics must come first before frills are added.

Being an educator, Crase feels that he is in tune with youth — its needs and wants — and in this respect could be an asset to the park district.

Bartosch — Only Incumbent Seeking New Term On Park Board

The most experienced candidate running in Tuesday's Hoffman Estates Park District election is Bernard M. "Bud" Bartosch.

Bartosch, 43, is the only incumbent commissioner seeking reelection to a full term. He has been active with park business for eight years, serving on the board since its creation in 1964.

Bartosch has been president of the district and held every other office as well on the board, he has also served as chairman of all of the board's various committees.

During his tenure with the district, Bartosch is proud of having missed only three board meetings and having attended "hundreds and hundreds of committee and other park-related gatherings."

IN THE AREA of selecting professional park directors, Bartosch strongly can't see another governmental body attempting to exert control in this manner.

"I think we have a great growing community of concerned and active people," he feels and makes it clear that as a park commissioner he plans to solicit assistance from all interested persons and organizations.

While he feels that relationships between the park district and village have improved, he favors a pulling together of all governmental organizations.

Concerning employment of a professional park director "I am for anything that the park district can afford in order to get the job done — provided it is financially possible," Barber says.

The candidate, his wife, Jackie, and their four children live at 294 Lancaster Ln.

lighted football and baseball fields are high on the priority list.

Citing a recent successful referendum in Glen Ellyn, which has approved over $2 million dollars in bonds to be sold by the park district with which to buy land ($800,000 of this Pichler says will be devoted to establishment of lighted fields) Pichler says he feels that, "in view of the 1,000 kids who signed up with HEAA to play baseball this year" this is the way to go.

Although Pichler feels that a six-year

Wade: 1st Step, Get Funds

Although new to Hoffman Estates, Don Wade, who lives in the Winston Knolls subdivision and is running for a two-year unexpired term on the park board, has lived in the Northwest suburban area since 1965.

Wade, 46, of 431 Dixon Dr., is an operations specialist with the corporate catalog division of Montgomery Ward & Company and holds a journalism degree from the University of Kansas.

He believes that one of the first things the park district must do is obtain the necessary funds to set up local recreational facilities — namely neighborhood parks within the district.

Although from the newest area in the district, a subdivision annexed last December, Wade is not parochial in his approach to park district service.

"I THINK THAT an effective park commissioner must serve all areas of his district and attempt insofar as possible to reflect a cross section of thinking," Wade said.

He does not believe that a seven-member park board would be preferable to the present five-member structure "because if all commissioners get together, take definite stands and do a job — that should be all that is required and additional manpower won't make any difference."

He does, however, feel that a term shorter than the six year period would be preferable and would be inclined to favor a staggered term structure.

Master planning presently being conducted in the Hoffman Estates Park district "is after the fact and should have taken place in advance of the Aquarius referendum," an expansion program defeated by park district voters last year.

In the area of Hoffman Estates Athletic Association, Wade is enthusiastic about moves to extend the facility to his subdivision "because this is a very worthwhile endeavor."

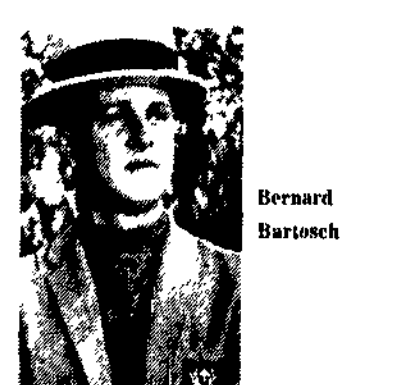

WADE IS concerned about communication between village taxing bodies and feels that improvement in this area is mandatory to the success of the park district.

The candidate, who has a broad background in administration and public relations, admits that the park district has not always represented the best image to the community but feels that this can be rapidly improved.

He feels that the district must devote itself to internal development through neighborhood parks in order to provide the necessary facilities to its residents.

With additional leisure time becoming an integral part of most people's lives, Wade emphasized that park districts have an increasing responsibility to develop programs and facilities for utilization of this free time.

Wade, his wife, Deane, and their two daughters lived in Des Plaines and Schaumburg before moving to Winston Knolls last year.

Bernard Bartosch

feels the need for "a professional not just experienced in recreation but heavy on the administrative end" as well.

He does not believe that expanding a park board to include seven members

TOM BARBER

Boys Club Worker Seeks Full-Term Park Post

Robert Hill, one of six candidates seeking full-term park district posts Tuesday, is probably one of the busiest and best known men in Hoffman Estates.

During the nine years he has lived in has been active in the Jaycees, Hoffman has been active in the Jaycees, Hoffman Estates Athletic Association, Hoffman Estates Home Owners Association, Conant Boosters and several parent-teacher associations.

But he is probably best known for his work with Hoffman Estates Boys Club, in which he has served as vice president for five years and at the same time, director of activities for the group.

Although he is heavily occupied with all Boys Club activities, Hill has spent much time teaching and coaching the club's football teams.

For the past 15 years, Hill has been personally involved in organized football, having played four years each while in high school and the Marine Corps, and later as a semi-professional with Elmhurst Travelers.

For the past five years he has personally supervised almost all activities at the Boys Club Barn, on village hall property.

Presently the park district is planning, after recent village approval, to take over the operation of Chino Park which is adjacent to the Barn.

Park property is used for football practice both by Hoffman Estates Athletic Association and the Boys Club and village officials have asked the park district to honor a long-term lease on the Barn held by the club.

Presumably, Hill has decided to run for the park district in the hope of solidifying a relationship with the Boys Club, although The Herald has not been successful in attempts to reach Hill for a discussion of his candidacy.

For the past several months he has been attending park board meetings on a regular basis and has, when asked, provided consultation on electrical service problems at Vogelei Park.

His primary concern, as evidenced in his history of community activity is youth and through his efforts, the Barn on several occasions has been opened to girls in the village for specific activities.

Through Hill's efforts also, the Jaycees have taken a definite interest in the Boys Club, and have pledged funds to complete the upper level of The Barn Jaycee wives, too, have assisted in Boys Club activities.

Hill, his wife, Barbara, their four daughters and infant son, live at 202 Briarcliff Ln.

Wermes Eyes Maintenance

A frank questioning of the operation and efficiency of Hoffman Estates Park District's maintenance department has led Bill Wermes, 225 Washington Blvd., to candidacy for a six-year park board term.

The 46-year-old candidate, a salesman-driver for Shell Oil Co., worked as part-time park maintenance foreman for four years prior to his departure from the park district last July.

Attending a recent park board meeting, Wermes showed a roll of movie film pointing out maintenance problems at almost every park site in the district.

His films showed skating warming houses in disrepair and he told park directors at that time that, although the ice skating season had apparently ended, the buildings had not been properly secured.

Wermes' movies also showed broken fences and several dangerous areas at park ponds.

The candidate also questioned board members on the necessity of having two maintenance staff members man snow plows.

Wermes, as well, told park officials that he has observed many entire days when maintenance equipment has never left its storage place at Vogelei Park and openly questioned the work presently being done by the maintenance department.

In reply, Bill Zack, hired as maintenance superintendent when Wermes left the district, told the candidate that much of the work pointed up in his films has been repaired since the movies were taken and also noted that he feels it is a necessary safety practice to man plowing equipment with two people.

Apparently waging a relatively quiet campaign, Wermes told The Herald that his entire candidacy is based on his criticism of present maintenance practices.

He explained that as foreman he made out the operating budget for the park maintenance department and said he experienced little difficulty in obtaining outside season help when required.

Wermes further noted that he sees no logical explanation for the current condition of parks and said he believes that maintenance will become increasingly important with the expansion undergone by the district in the past year.

"As a candidate for commissioner, I believe the park board should talk directly to the people, listen to their suggestions, learn their views and keep an open mind. This will establish a better relationship between the board of commissioners and the people of Hoffman Estates," Wermes said.

If elected park commissioner, Wermes pledges to "see that more work is done in the park district for the taxpayers' money and better maintenance conditions will prevail. I am aware of what the people want in this area and I'm willing to see that it is achieved."

A Marine Corps veteran, Wermes also has played semi-professional football with the Elmhurst Travelers and enjoys skiing, two-way radios, flying small planes and snowmobiling.

He and his wife, Joannmarie, have three children.

and to playground sessions in other areas of the district.

Bartosch was also involved in re-negotiation of a park-school lease agreement with Dist. 54 transferring ownership of lands adjacent to elementary schools in the village to the park district.

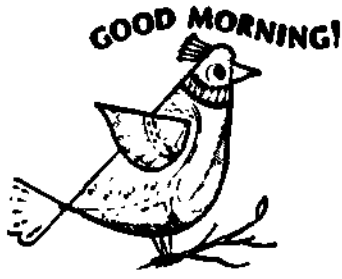

This week he announced finalization of a lease agreement with High School Dist. 211 which will be approved at the April 6 park board meeting and is anxious to have a similar document with Dist. 15 approved.

HE IS STRONGLY in favor of park co-operation and continued communications with other taxing bodies and believes "the park district must serve and provide for all the people."

The candidate, his wife, Joan and their three daughters have lived at 294 Milton Lane since 1959.

Official Predicts No Flood Unless Bad Storms Ensue

A federal government official has predicted flooding in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area will not take place this spring unless, "we have some rather heavy storms."

Lee Bridgeman, of the United States Soil Conservation Service, a branch of the Department of Agriculture, said yesterday none of the predicted Mississippi River flooding will effect the northwest suburban area.

Bridgeman said Buffalo Grove and Wheeling's current flooding problems are not related to the larger rivers, but rather to construction on areas that were farm land, or are in flood plains.

"Under normal agricultural drainage, the creeks can take it," Bridgeman said, but added the creeks cannot handle "urban-type drainage" from commercial and residential developments.

"When you pave an area with concrete, you cover soil which used to absorb water. A roof has no absorption at all," Bridgeman pointed out.

"When you add this together, you have a run off that the creeks cannot take," he said.

Bridgeman said construction on the watershed north of the village "will definitely have an effect on the flooding in Buffalo Grove especially when there is a sewerage treatment plant that constantly discharges water into the watershed."

Lake Zurich which is at the northern end of Buffalo Creek, has opened a new sewerage treatment plant recently in connection with the development of the Old Mill Grove subdivision. Some construction has started in the 1,500-home development.

Bridgeman said to solve the flooding problems "it takes over-all planning, including restricting construction in the flood plains. People have the tendency to develop in the flood plain and then complain about their losses when it floods," he said.

According to Bridgeman, a "river basin planning staff" is being formed to study all stream basins in Cook, Lake, Kane and DuPage counties. The project is being financed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District for the first year.

AFTER THE first year the cost of the project would be shared between the soil conservation service and the MSD.

Bridgeman said the study is "long term and could take as long as 10 years to complete. In the study we intend to identify locations where flooding structures can be developed," he said.

He said the project would identify as many as "two dozen" retention basins, which would be built as work continues on other areas of the study.

The basins would be built with soil conservation service funds, Bridgeman said.

'Loot' Found Behind Files

More than a thousand dollars which had been reported stolen in a burglary of a store in Wheeling four months ago has been found behind a filing cabinet in the store.

Wheeling police said that burglars took a safe containing $238 from the Ben Franklin store last Nov. 30 but missed $176 which apparently had fallen behind the cabinet.

Employees discovered the money while moving office equipment in the store, at 1929 S. Wolf Rd., this week.

The early morning burglary was discovered by two Wheeling policemen who noticed an open door at the store while on patrol.

Three men have been charged with the Ben Franklin burglary and with a burglary at the Hapburg Inn at 600 River Rd., Mount Prospect. They are awaiting trial on burglary charges, Wheeling police said.

The men are Burkhard Stein, of 146 Anita, Mount Prospect, Vincent Badalamenti, 1727 E. Foundry, Mount Prospect, and Steven Bass, 224 Graylawn Dr., Mount Prospect.

Wheeling police explained that the reduction in the amount of money believed taken in the Ben Franklin burglary will not affect the charges in the case.

L.O.V.E. Missing

What the Randhurst Cinema needs now is love, sweet love.

The manager of the theater told Mount Prospect police Monday that the letters L.O.V.E. were stolen from the marquee. The Cinema is currently showing "I Love My Wife," starring Elliott Gould.

Eight letters, which spelled "love" on both sides of the marquee, were stolen. Value of the letters was estimated at $100.

THE EASTER BUNNY came to Randhurst Shopping Center this week and delighted youngsters every bit as much as Santa Claus. This fascinated girl is Karen Lukas, 18 months, from Wheeling.

Nizzi: Programs For All Residents

by ANNE SLAVICEK

"I want to look for every possible way to offer activities to the people of Wheeling," Wheeling Park District candidate Gus Nizzi explains.

Nizzi, a 34-year resident of Wheeling, is principal of Eugene Field Elementary School and a member of the village youth commission. He is one of three candidates seeking a place on the board. Two seats are open.

Nizzi has also worked as a supervisor of various recreation programs sponsored by the park district.

Nizzi is the only one of the three candidates who raises questions about the district's tackle football program.

"I HAVE VERY strong questions whether tackle football at the age of 6th or 7th grade is healthy," Nizzi said.

"It provides a lot of recreation, but I would investigate it from two standpoints. Primarily, is it a safe thing for the kids at this age; secondly, the money that we use for this — is it best used for that or is there a better priority for which to use it?" he said.

When asked about the park district's biggest problem, Nizzi says, "There seem to be factions that instead of working together are each one pulling off in a separate direction. That, to me, is a problem."

To solve the problem of a divided community, Nizzi says the facts should be made clear to the public. He says board decisions and their reasons, such as lack of funds, should be explained.

"In my field there are so many things we have done because of tradition and they've been accepted because of tradition. Nobody's ever questioned them and so we keep doing them."

"Well that's not a basis for doing them that way. Now I think that it applies to most bodies that serve the community. What I plan to do is to question — to question anybody that's to be questioned and if people get touchy about questions then I know that there's a reason for that," he said.

NIZZI SAID HE thinks the district's programs have been fairly well located to serve the various areas of the community. He said that it is necessary for the district to expand its active park facilities. "I think that's necessary because most of the places in the village have young people there," he said.

The candidate explains that recreation for all ages is needed but that the district must concentrate on the young because Wheeling is a young community.

Nizzi said he thinks the district should have fishing ponds.

He said he favored development of existing park lands as a priority over purchasing additional land.

"The parks that you have now, if you don't keep them up and develop them even better, you just waste them," he said.

Nizzi said he would like to see park commissioners speak before various local groups such as PTA's or study groups to "bring it to the people."

He said the district should have more face to face communication with the public so it can accurately assess what the community wants. "The ones who go to district meetings and complain to commissioners in my experience have been the ones with gripes. That's unfortunate because then you get emotions and that sort of thing," he said.

Gus Nizzi

ON THE MINIBIKE issue, Nizzi said, "I think there should be some place in the village where kids can take minibikes. I don't know if it's up to the park district alone — it should be a community team effort with the police and the school district," he said.

On snowmobiles, he said they should be allowed on park property "if it's set up so it can be controlled in a designated area and if it's safe."

Nizzi said he would favor use of park lands for retention basins only "if there's nothing else that can be used."

"I think park property should be used for the recreation of the community. I think it's a very poor use to have a retention basin take up a park," he said.

Nizzi said his experiences with park district activities is that supervision is adequate.

He explained that his experience as a park district supervisor in past years taught him "you can't just open up the facilities and let the kids go in and out."

Nizzi praised the district for restoring the Community Church building in Chamber of Commerce park. "If there is some way to preserve facilities to teach our kids where we came from and what we did, that in itself is a beautiful lesson."

NIZZI SAID HE disagreed with a rule that park buildings cannot be used over night. "Two exceptions in specific cases have been made in the past."

"Why have the rule when we pay interest on the money we borrow all year round, night and day?" he asked.

"People should feel this is 'our' park district. Let's use it to every possible extent," he said.

Nizzi stressed that the district must provide facilities for its residents rather than programs. "If you provide the facilities people can come up with the programs themselves. People are very interested and hobby-minded," he said.

Nizzi lives at 157 Mockingbird Ln. in Wheeling with his wife Sandra and their four children.

He said he would be a benefit to the park board because "I have a knowledge about the young people in the community and about how they have used the facilities in the past that would give me a better idea of possible uses in the future."

Walker Slated To Speak At Rally Dinner

Daniel Walker, the only announced candidate for Illinois governor in 1972, will speak at a rally and dinner in Wheeling on April 13.

Walker is being brought to the village by the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) which is seeking election April 20 to the village board in a write-in campaign.

Walker is seeking the Democratic nomination for the governor race in 1972.

Author of the famed Walker Report on the disturbances during the 1968 Democratic convention, and former chairman of the Chicago Crime Commission, Walker was campaign chairman for the successful U.S. Senate bid of Adlai E. Stevenson III last year.

The fund raising rally and dinner for

Daniel Walker

WHIP will be held at the Hartmann House at 393 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling.

THE DINNER, a roast beef buffet, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for the dinner can be made by calling 537-2049 evenings. The price is $7 for an individual and $12 for a couple. Reservations must be made for the dinner before April 12.

Persons unable to attend the dinner can attend the speech and rally beginning at 8:30 p.m. by paying a $1 contribution at the door.

Walker will be the main attraction at the rally and dinner being sponsored by the WHIP organization.

The party has been supporting a write-in election of Michael Moran, Otis Hedlund, Donald Duncan and Harold Fagan to the village board since the municipal electoral board removed the WHIP candidates names from the ballot.

Turnout For School Board Candidate Forum Is Low

Future growth in School Dist. 96 and plans for educating high school youth in Dist. 125 highlighted the discussion Tuesday at a forum for candidates for the school boards of the two districts.

A small group of residents in the two Lake County school districts turned out for the forum, held at Kildeer School in Long Grove.

Three candidates are running for two four year terms on the Dist. 96 board and four candidates are running for three four year terms on the Dist. 125 board in the April 10 election. A two-year Dist. 125 term is uncontested.

James Duncan of Buffalo Grove, a candidate for the Dist. 96 board, stressed the need for "constant dialogue" with village plan commissions. The dialogue is necessary, he said, so that school district views on proposed new developments can be incorporated into plan commission recommendations to the village boards.

"Rapid growth" will characterize Dist. 96 in years to come, Duncan stated.

"SCHOOL BOARDS are at the mercy of village government" as far as development is concerned, and for this reason it is "important to be on the offense with village government" to avoid playing "catch-up ball" in handling increased enrollment, he said.

Dist. 96 candidate George Dickson of Long Grove told the audience that he feels the current school board "could have taken more positive or faster action regarding school sites."

Dickson said that planning for future sites is "one of the things the board must face up to. The most important aspect of the board is to do everything possible to avoid split sessions."

In his presentation at the forum, Dist. 96 candidate Frank Clayton of Buffalo Grove stressed "community involvement and commitment."

He said he "can't find fault with the present school board" and stressed that the district "is only beginning to look at the problem of growth."

"WE WILL HAVE to work very hard to provide school sites and adequate finances to pay for schools," Clayton said.

Incumbent Dist. 125 candidate Walter Zorn of Buffalo Grove, who is running unopposed for a two-year term on the board, outlined some of the action taken recently by the board to improve education in the district.

He said that the new senior study program which will allow eighth semester seniors to work on independent projects is designed to remove lagging interest in schoolwork which sometimes affects seniors due to graduate shortly.

Mrs. Justin Fishbein, speaking for her husband, an incumbent board candidate from Half Day, said that her husband believes it necessary to "develop a sense of individuality in youth."

At the same time, however, she said Fishbein feels that "Community norms are necessary to curb unruly behavior."

She said he supports a sound curriculum for college preparatory students and a strong work-study program for non-college bound students — and increased use of school facilities during non-school hours by the community.

Incumbent candidate John Balmes of Lincolnshire, said he feels the Dist. 125 board has a good long-range plan to handle increased growth and at the same time keep district expenditures in line with income.

HE SAID THE district is "one of the few" in the area to have such a plan.

Balmes said he felt the "biggest detriment" at Adlai Stevenson High has been the 72-minute class sessions.

He said he feels that the new scheduling system to go into effect in the fall, which will vary the length of classes will help the situation by "gearing the time to the needs of the subject rather than to the needs of the clock."

Heinz Loeffler, incumbent candidate from Long Grove, said he feels the role of the school board is to "give the best possible education at the lowest cost to the taxpayers."

He said education should attempt to instill a sense of patriotism in students and the need for observing laws and regulations.

He also said he feels that the status and prestige of the Stevenson student council should be increased and that the school board should pay attention to its suggestions.

Loeffler said he is concerned with maintaining discipline at Stevenson High School. He feels, he said, that "Education at public expense is a privilege, not a right. The repeated offender forfeits that right."

THE FINAL candidate for the Dist. 125 board to speak was Glen Miller of Long Grove, who has never served on the school board.

Miller said he feels the high school has a serious discipline problem.

"I favor the three R's, but I would also add two others, respect and responsibility. I feel we have lost much of this in the past few years," Miller said.

Miller said that the parents and students at Stevenson have to develop a feeling of working together.

Board Told To Check Proposed Retention Basins

The Wheeling Village Board has been warned to check to insure that retention basins in two proposed developments are large enough to control flooding.

In a recent letter to the board, the village consultant engineer on the flood control program pointed out that the retention basin sizes may have to be updated.

John Crane of Harza Engineering told the village that the only formal agreement existing between the village and the developers of the Lakeside Villas and Tahoe Village planned developments, in western Wheeling is the agreement resulting from the settlement of the Cambridge suit.

That settlement called for the inclusion off a pond large enough to hold 6 acres of water one foot deep in the Tahoe Village development to take drainage from the Cambridge area of Buffalo Grove, Crane said.

IN 1969 HARZA computed proposed sizes for the detention and retention basins in Tahoe, Lakeside and a multi-family development being built by Miller Builders in Arlington Heights west of Buffalo Grove Road.

Because Harza hasn't been asked to review the latest submittals of plans for the developments), the values we computed about one and a half years ago may no longer be applicable," Crane told the village.

He noted that the corrections in the basin sizes might be necessary, "especially since in the agreement with Richard J. Brown (the developer of Cambridge) the village was to allow a variation in the number of homes constructed to compensate for the amount of land lost by expansion of the detention basins."

The engineer also pointed out that the village should be concerned about the methods used by a developer to select the basin size and about the intensity of storm the basin is designed to handle.

CRANE POINTED out that village ordinances require the flood control systems be designed to handle a 10-year storm (a storm of such unusual intensity that it occurs on the average of only once every 10 years).

The developer should use a rational basis to select a basin size, Crane said.

Harza determines "the rate of storm runoff using rainfall patterns for selected frequencies, infiltration rates based on soils and land use, and depression storage," Crane said.

"We develop inflow hydrographs (a plot of time vs. flow rate) and calculate the amount of storage required for various outflows by either pumped or gravity flow or a combination," he said.

Crane warned the village that instead of the Harza method "there is another method being used by some consultants which although simpler than the Harza method has little hydrologic basis."

"THIS METHOD generally results in detention basins smaller than those designed by the method we used," Crane said.

Moreover, "naturally, most developers prefer to lose as little land area as possible and therefore favor this latter method," Crane told the village.

Final approval for the plan of Tahoe Village was granted just recently by the village.

Final plat approval for the Lakeside Village development is expected Monday.

The village has voted to refuse both developments building permits until the Cambridge suit is settled.

The two developments are located south of the Cambridge subdivision, west of Jackson Drive, north of Hintz Road, and east of Buffalo Grove Road.

A FOLDING WALL at right can be opened up to join two classrooms at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove. The new school, built in a "pod" type of design, has folding walls throughout the building to enable more flexible types of teaching arrangements. Carpeting in each of the classrooms cuts down on noise.

School Innovates With 'Pod' Type Design

by SUE JACOBSON

When it comes to innovations, the new Willow Grove School on Checker Drive in Buffalo Grove ranks high on the list.

The school, which opened in February, is built in a "pod" type of design, which is becoming increasingly popular among school architects and educators.

In this design, a group of classrooms are clustered together in one part of the building. Instead of traditional solid classroom walls, the classes are divided by folding walls, which can be opened to join several classes.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman said the new design will enable Willow Grove teachers to more easily start co-operative or team teaching programs at the school.

"I DON'T want to detract from the traditional type of building, for I feel there is a place for the traditional school building. But I do feel this type of arrangement is more beneficial to students."

It should enable us to individualize our instruction and teach the students on a more one-to-one basis," he said.

Some of the folding walls are not in operation yet but we hope to use them more and more as time goes on. Next year we plan to develop programs designed to make the greatest possible use of the folding walls," said Robert Lanum, Willow Grove's principal.

There are three separate pods in Willow Grove. One includes the kindergarten and first grade classes; one, the second and third grades and one, the fourth and fifth grades. Each pod feeds into a large resource center in the center of the school.

Lanum said the folding walls won't be used to create a large classroom for large group instruction by teachers.

"WE DON'T feel it would be beneficial to lecture to a large class at the elementary level. The children probably wouldn't learn much from it," he said.

Instead what we will probably do is have all the students at one grade level considered a large homeroom for all the teachers. All of the students would be taught by all of the teachers for that grade.

For example, one teacher could teach all the science classes or all the reading classes at one ability level. The fundamental subjects, reading and math, would be grouped by ability.

"Subjects like social studies wouldn't be ability grouped, but the teachers would concentrate on letting the students progress at their own ability. One child could be using a third grade text, while another could be using a text for seventh grade. The goal is to have as much small group and individualized instruction as possible."

"AND WITH the folding walls, students won't have to pass through the corridors from classroom to classroom.

They just go back and forth between the folding walls. It generally creates a more flexible arrangement."

Although this system hasn't been put into effect yet, Willow Grove teachers have already combined their classes with the aid of the folding walls for movies and special guest speakers.

Another aid to individualizing instruction at Willow Grove is the centrally-located resource center. Six thousand books are a fundamental part of the center, but it will also be stocked with an assortment of audio visual learning aids. The aids are, "aimed at reinforcing the skills and concepts learned in the classroom," according to Lanum.

Fourteen individual listening stations, or carrels, have been built into the resource center. Students will be able to listen to educational cassette tapes in the carrels.

A PERMANENT rear projection screen has been built into one wall in the resource center. It is already in use for showing slides, filmstrips and movies.

Two televisions will enable students to watch educational TV programs.

"We used one of the sets to watch the Apollo moon shot this year, and the second and third grades use it to watch a literature program," the Willow Grove principal said.

Gradually, the school hopes to build up its collection of books and film strips, Lanum added. Another future project could be to allow older students to produce their own original tapes to teach children in the lower grades, he said.

Zone Unit To Review Cases

Recommendations from the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals on seven rezoning requests are on the village board agenda for Monday.

In each case the board can either vote Monday to deny the rezoning or can have the village attorney prepare an ordinance to approve the rezoning.

If the board chooses the ordinance preparation a final decision on the request will be delayed for a week or two until a vote is taken on the ordinance itself.

The items on the board agenda include a rezoning of the property at 231 S. Wheeling Ave. from single-family home to multiple-family zoning. The rezoning seeks to allow use of the building on the lot as a duplex for two separate families.

A SECOND REQUEST asks the village to rezone property at 3115 N. Buffalo Grove Rd. from single-family home zoning to general business district zoning.

A third request seeks a setback requirement variance for an addition to be built on the Pierce Food Products Inc. plant at 482 N. Milwaukee Ave.

The board is also considering the setback requirement variation for an office building proposed by the late Arthur Fassbender Sr. on the southeast corner of Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

Rezoning to grant a special use for a Mr. Steak franchise dinner restaurant in the Dunhurst Shopping Center is the fifth item referred by the zoning board to the village board.

A height variation to allow an eight story office and bank building on the northeast corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road will also be considered.

The seventh rezoning matter is a request to rezone the vacant gas station property on the northwest corner of Jeffery Avenue and Milwaukee Avenue for a real estate office.

Also featured on the program will be Wheeling High senior Wynnvan Williams in a piano solo, the theme from "Love Story." Three student soloists will be featured in the "Brandenburg Concerto No. 4" by Bach. They include Beverly Cartuck on the violin, Barbara Behar on the flute, and Barbara Cox on the flute.

The orchestra is directed by John Higgins.

Tickets for the concert will be $1 for adults. Students will be admitted free of charge.

Historical Society

Plans Beer, Brat Fest

A beer and brat fest is going to be held in Wheeling Aug. 1.

The fest, sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society, will be similar to the German beer garden held during the 1969 Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Walter Diens said Tuesday that the fest would include a German band, beer, and bratwurst. He said the celebration is expected to be held in the parking lot behind the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

Diens explained that the festivities would give local residents a chance to celebrate Wheeling's German heritage.

He said the collection of the books, about 150 volumes, will be placed in the school library for use by ROTC members.

The collection, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Durham of 130 Circle Ct., DuPont, was presented last Friday to Capt. L. Commander David Lark, commander of the Wheeling Jr. ROTC unit.

Official Predicts No Flood Unless Bad Storms Ensur

A federal government official has predicted flooding in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area will not take place this spring unless "we have some rather heavy storms."

Lee Bridgeman, of the United States Soil Conservation Service, a branch of the Department of Agriculture, said yesterday none of the predicted Mississippi River flooding will effect the northwest suburban area.

Bridgeman said Buffalo Grove and Wheeling's current flooding problems are not related to the larger rivers, but rather to construction on areas that were farm land, or are in flood plains.

"Under normal agricultural drainage, the creeks can take it," Bridgeman said, but added the creeks cannot handle "urban-type drainage" from commercial and residential developments.

"When you pave an area with concrete, you cover soil which used to absorb water. A roof has no absorption at all," Bridgeman pointed out.

"When you add this together, you have a run off that the creeks cannot take," he said.

Bridgeman said construction on the watershed north of the village "will definitely have an effect on the flooding in Buffalo Grove especially when there is a sewerage treatment plant that constantly discharges water into the watershed."

Lake Zurich which is at the northern end of Buffalo Creek, has opened a new sewerage treatment plant recently in connection with the development of the Old Mill Grove subdivision. Some construction has started in the 1,500-home development.

Bridgeman said to solve the flooding problems "it takes over-all planning, including restricting construction in the flood plains. People have the tendency to develop in the flood plain and then complain about their losses when it floods," he said.

According to Bridgeman, a "river basin planning staff" is being formed to study all stream basins in Cook, Lake, Kane and DuPage counties. The project is being financed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District for the first year.

AFTER THE first year the cost of the project would be shared between the soil conservation service and the MSD.

Bridgeman said the study is "long term and could take as long as 10 years to complete. In the study we intend to identify locations where flooding structures can be developed," he said.

He said the project would identify as many as "two dozen" retention basins, which would be built as work continues on other areas of the study.

The basins would be built with soil conservation service funds, Bridgeman said.

L.O.V.E. Missing

What the Randhurst Cinema needs now is love, sweet love.

The manager of the theater told Mount Prospect police Monday that the letters L.O.V.E. were stolen from the marquee. The Cinema is currently showing "I Love My Wife," starring Elliott Gould.

Eight letters, which spelled "love" on both sides of the marquee, were stolen. Value of the letters was estimated at $100.

JACKIE GLEASON? No, this is Bob Watson, one of the performers in "Cities After Dark," a fund-raising show which will be presented at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Buffalo Grove tomorrow and Saturday nights.

Show Slated At St. Mary's

"Cities After Dark," a show featuring night club style entertainment, will be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday at St. Mary's Catholic School in Buffalo Grove.

The show will feature seven different performances, each with its own theme and own room in the school. Each performance will represent a different city, from Brooklyn to Honolulu.

The performances are called: "Club Ha-Li-Kau," representing Honolulu; "Stardust Room," Las Vegas; "Long Branch Saloon," Dodge City; "Bellee Queen," New Orleans; "Swing Inn," Nashville; "Garden Spot of the World," Brooklyn; and "Nothing Like Buffalo Grover Ever Was," Buffalo Grove.

Professional performers and parishioners will appear. They include Adam Crown, a guitarist from Fox Lake; Terry Kroepel, a singer and dancer who has performed at county fairs, and Melinda Henson, a dancer choreographer.

Tickets are $5 per person and proceeds will be given to St. Mary's parish. Additional information can be obtained by calling Paul Raupp at 537-3507.

'Loot' Found Behind Files

More than a thousand dollars which had been reported stolen in a burglary of a store in Wheeling four months ago has been found behind a filing cabinet in the store.

Wheeling police said that burglars took a safe containing $238 from the Ben Franklin store last Nov. 30 but missed $1,176 which apparently had fallen behind the cabinet.

Employees discovered the money while moving office equipment in the store, at 1920 S. Wolf Rd., this week.

The early morning burglary was discovered by two Wheeling policemen who noticed an open door at the store while on patrol.

Three men have been charged with the Ben Franklin burglary and with a burglary at the Hapsburg Inn at 600 River Rd., Mount Prospect. They are awaiting trial on burglary charges, Wheeling police said.

The men are Burkhard Stein, of 146 Anita, Mount Prospect, Vincent Badalamenti, 1727 E. Foundry, Mount Prospect, and Steven Bass, 224 Graylynn Dr., Mount Prospect.

Wheeling police explained that the reduction in the amount of money believed taken in the Ben Franklin burglary will not affect the charges in the case.

Rathjen: Backs Goals Of The BGA

by CRAIG GAARE

Randall Rathjen, a Buffalo Grove Alliance (BGA) Party candidate for trustee, is a member of the alliance because "they are just normal people and they are easy to work with."

However Rathjen finds more in common than the group's congeniality. "I feel the general goals of the BGA were the kind that I could support," he said.

Rathjen believes that he "can bring to the position (of trustee) the degree of interest and expertise that is necessary."

The three biggest problems facing Buffalo Grove in Rathjen's opinion are: the hiring of a village manager, the formulation of a village development plan, and what he refers to as "ecology."

RATHJEN PROPOSED writing to schools that have municipal government management programs to obtain a list of potential candidates for village manager and to place ads in professional periodicals to attract additional candidates.

He called the development of a village master plan "more difficult." The primary hindrance here is finances. It's a costly operation at best and the village is going to have to look into the possibility of acquiring federal funds.

"I think every effort should be made to get voluntary help from people in the village such as taking the traffic count and finding out what some of the problems are right now," he said.

In explaining what he means by "ecology," Rathjen said there is an overabundance of water in the spring and a drought in the summer.

AS FAR AS solutions for the flooding problem are concerned, Rathjen said "the first thing that has to be done is to seek the support of other municipalities on the watershed. Then the construction of one or two local flood retention basins."

Concerning the future development in the village Rathjen said there is "no question that there will be more apartments. The major problem is how or where the apartments are going to be constructed, not only from the point of view of the present residents, but from the point of view of the future apartment residents. I think the thing can be done so everybody comes up a winner."

Rathjen termed industrial development "necessary." However he qualified the statement saying, "you want to get the kind of industry and commerce that won't produce long range ecological problems. These are the electrical and certain kinds of plastic industries which would require no great amount of water and can take advantage of a good transportation system to the west—Rte. 53."

Rathjen feels that a sustained effort must be made to attract industry, but "the actual performance of these ideas rests with the village manager."

TO STABILIZE the village's financial situation Rathjen proposed to "make a concerted effort to get some kind of cash base which doesn't require the expenditure of village monies. To do that you have to get some type of light industry."

"We've also got to get away from non-recurring sources of income which in

Randall Rathjen

Election '71

Buffalo Grove has been building permits. "To rely on building permit financing means that it makes it easier not to enforce the kind of building restrictions that I think should be kept in mind."

Rathjen supports moderate-income housing, but in a slightly different manner. "I disagree with the general idea to have localization of these kinds of developments. I think a scattered development is to the advantage of everybody."

"The village can take some active steps in that direction to encourage a developer who might want to do this (build moderate-income housing) to look into the possibility of not localizing or putting them as groups into one section, but to spread it out. What you're looking at are pre-annexation agreements."

RATHJEN BELIEVES that "the general attitude at village board meetings could undergo a healthy change" and proposed a system which village trustees could offer "office hours to be available to the public at different times."

Rathjen said the problem is the "accessibility of the people to the village board. They (the village trustees) are not accessible."

He said unity in the village could be achieved if the present village board would "show a general concern for the problems in the village."

Rathjen, 30, lives at 840 Beechwood Ct. with his wife Joanne and three children. He has lived in the village two and one-half years. He is an assistant professor at Northeastern Illinois State College in Chicago.

Rathjen holds four college degrees, including a Ph.D. in Geography from Michigan State University. He is a member of several professional geography-related organizations.

Turnout For School Board Candidate Forum Is Low

Future growth in School Dist. 96 and plans for educating high school youth in Dist. 125 highlighted the discussion Tuesday at a forum for candidates for the school boards of the two districts.

A small group of residents in the two Lake County school districts turned out for the forum held at Kildeer School in Long Grove.

Three candidates are running for two four-year terms on the Dist. 96 board and four candidates are running for three four-year terms on the Dist. 125 board in the April 10 election. A two-year Dist. 125 term is uncontested.

Duncan of Buffalo Grove, a candidate for the Dist. 96 board, stressed the need for constant dialogue with village plan commissions. The dialogue is necessary, he said, so that school district views on proposed new developments can be incorporated into plan commission recommendations to the village boards.

Rapid growth will characterize Dist. 96 in years to come, Duncan stated.

SCHOOL BOARDS are at the mercy of village government as far as development is concerned, and for this reason it is important to be on the offense with village government to avoid playing catch-up ball in handling increased enrollment, he said.

Dist. 96 candidate George Dickson of Long Grove told the audience that he feels the current school board could have taken more positive or faster action regarding school sites.

Dickson said that planning for future sites is one of the things the board must face up to. The most important aspect of the board is to do everything possible to avoid split sessions.

In his presentation at the forum, Dist. 96 candidate Frank Clayton of Buffalo Grove stressed community involvement and commitment.

He said he can't find fault with the present school board and stressed that the district is only beginning to look at the problem of growth.

WE WILL HAVE to work very hard to provide school sites and adequate finances to pay for schools, Clayton said.

Incumbent Dist. 125 candidate Walter Zorn of Buffalo Grove, who is running unopposed for a two-year term on the board, outlined some of the action taken recently by the board to improve education in the district.

He said that the new senior study program which will allow eighth semester seniors to work on independent projects is designed to remove lagging interest in schoolwork which sometimes affects seniors due to graduate shortly.

Mrs. Justin Fishbein, speaking for her husband, an incumbent board candidate from Half Day, said that her husband believes it necessary to develop a sense of individuality in youth.

At the same time, however, she said Fishbein feels that community norms are necessary to curb unruly behavior.

She said he supports a sound curriculum for college preparatory students and a strong work study program for non-college bound students — and increased use of school facilities during non-school hours by the community.

Incumbent candidate John Balmes of Lincolnshire said he feels the Dist. 125 board has a good long-range plan to handle increased growth and at the same time keep district expenditures in line with income.

HE SAID THE district is 'one of the few in the area to have such a plan.'

Balmes said he felt the 'biggest detriment' at Adlai Stevenson High has been the 72-minute class sessions.

He said he feels that the new scheduling system to go into effect in the fall, which will vary the length of classes will help the situation by 'gearing the time to the needs of the subject rather than to the needs of the clock.'

Heinz Loeffler, incumbent candidate from Long Grove, said he feels the role of the school board is to 'give the best possible education at the lowest cost to the taxpayers.'

He said education should attempt to instill a sense of patriotism in students and the need for observing laws and regulations.

He also said he feels that the status and prestige of the Stevenson student council should be increased and that the school board should pay attention to its suggestions.

Loeffler said he is concerned with maintaining discipline at Stevenson High School. He feels he said that education at public expense is a privilege, not a right. The repeated offender forfeits that right.

THE FINAL candidate for the Dist. 125 board to speak was Glen Miller of Long Grove, who has never served on the school board.

Miller said he feels the high school has a serious discipline problem.

'I favor the three R's, but I would also add two others: respect and responsibility. I feel we have lost much of this in the past few years,' Miller said.

Miller said that the parents and students at Stevenson have to develop a feeling of working together.

Board Told To Check Proposed Retention Basins

The Wheeling Village Board has been warned to check to insure that retention basins in two proposed developments are large enough to control flooding.

In a recent letter to the board, the village consultant engineer on the flood control program pointed out that the retention basin sizes may have to be updated.

John Crane of Harza Engineering told the village that the only formal agreement existing between the village and the developers of the Lakeside Villas and Tahoe Village planned developments in western Wheeling is the agreement resulting from the settlement of the Cambridge suit.

That settlement called for the inclusion of a pond large enough to hold 6 acres of water one foot deep in the Tahoe Village development to take drainage from the Cambridge area of Buffalo Grove, Crane said.

IN 1969 HARZA computed proposed sizes for the detention and retention basins in Tahoe Lakeside and a multi-family development being built by Miller Builders in Arlington Heights west of Buffalo Grove Road.

Because Harza has been asked to review the latest submissions of plans for the developments, the values we computed about one and a half years ago may no longer be applicable, Crane told the village.

He noted that the corrections in the basin sizes might be necessary, especially since in the agreement with Richard J. Brown (the developer of Cambridge) the village was to allow a variation in the number of homes constructed to compensate for the amount of land lost by expansion of the detention basins.

The engineer also pointed out that the methods used by a developer to select the basin size and about the intensity of storm the basin is designed to handle.

CRANE POINTED out that village ordinances require the flood control systems be designed to handle a 10-year storm (a storm of such unusual intensity that it occurs on the average of only once every 10 years).

The developer should use a rational basis to select a basin size, Crane said.

Harza determines the rate of storm runoff using rainfall patterns for selected frequencies, infiltration rates based on soils and land use and depression storage, Crane said.

We develop inflow hydrographs (a plot of time vs. flow rate) and calculate the amount of storage required for various outflows by either pumped or gravity flow or a combination, he said.

Crane warned the village that instead of the Harza method there is another method being used by some consultants which although simpler than the Harza method has little hydrologic basis.

THIS METHOD generally results in detention basins smaller than those designed by the method we used, Crane said.

Moreover, naturally most developers prefer to lose as little land area as possible and therefore favor this latter method, Crane told the village.

Final approval for the plan of Tahoe Village was granted just recently by the village.

Final plat approval for the Lakeside Village development is expected Monday. The village has voted to refuse both developments building permits until the Cambridge suit is settled.

The two developments are located south of the Cambridge subdivision west of Jackson Drive, north of Hintz Road and east of Buffalo Grove Road.

School Innovates With 'Pod' Type Design

By SUE JACOBSON

When it comes to innovations, the new Willow Grove School on Checker Drive in Buffalo Grove ranks high on the list.

The school, which opened in February, is built in a 'pod' type of design which is becoming increasingly popular among school architects and educators.

In this design, a group of classrooms are clustered together in one part of the building. Instead of traditional solid classroom walls, the classes are divided by folding walls, which can be opened to join several classes.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzman said the new design will enable Willow Grove teachers to more easily start cooperative or team teaching programs at the school.

I DON'T want to detract from the traditional type of building, but I feel there is a place for the traditional school building. But I do feel this type of arrangement is more beneficial to students.

It should enable us to individualize our instruction and teach the students on a more one-to-one basis, he said.

Some of the folding walls are not in operation yet, but we hope to use them more and more as time goes on. Next year we plan to develop programs designed to make the greatest possible use of the folding walls, said Robert Lanum, Willow Grove's principal.

There are three separate pods in Willow Grove. One includes the kindergarten and first grade classes, one the second and third grades, and one the fourth and fifth grades. Each pod feeds into a large resource center in the center of the school.

Lanum said the folding walls won't be used to create a large classroom for large group instruction by teachers.

WE DON'T feel it would be beneficial to lecture to a large class at the elementary level. The children probably wouldn't learn much from it, he said.

Instead, what we will probably do is have all the students of one grade level considered a large homeroom for all the teachers. All of the students would be taught by all of the teachers for that grade.

For example, one teacher could teach all the science classes, or all the reading classes at one ability level. The fundamental subjects, reading and math, would be grouped by ability.

Subjects like social studies wouldn't be ability grouped, but the teachers would concentrate on letting the students progress at their own ability. One child could be using a third grade text while another could be using a text for seventh grade. The goal is to have as much small group and individualized instruction as possible.

AND WITH the folding walls, students won't have to pass through the corridors from classroom to classroom.

They just go back and forth between the folding walls. It generally creates a more flexible arrangement.

Although this system hasn't been put into effect yet, Willow Grove teachers have already combined their classes with the aid of the folding walls for movies and special guest speakers.

Another aid to individualizing instruction at Willow Grove is the centrally located resource center. Six thousand books are a fundamental part of the center, but it will also be stocked with an assortment of audio-visual learning aids. The aids are aimed at reinforcing the skills and concepts learned in the classroom, according to Lanum.

Fourteen individual listening stations or carrels have been built into the resource center. Students will be able to listen to educational cassette tapes in the carrels.

A PERMANENT rear projection screen has been built into one wall in the resource center. It is already in use for showing slides, filmstrips and movies.

Two televisions will enable students to watch educational TV programs.

We used one of the sets to watch the Apollo moon shot this year, and the second and third grades use it to watch a literature program, the Willow Grove principal said.

Gradually, the school hopes to build up its collection of books and filmstrips, Lanum added. Another future project could be to allow older students to produce their own original tapes to teach children in the lower grades, he said.

Camp Fire Girls Begin Candy Sale

The Camp Fire Girls annual candy sale is underway in the Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights areas, and will run until April 14.

The girls will be selling miniature toffee bars and mint truffles to raise money for the Chicago Area Council of the Camp Fire Girls. Some of the money is channeled back to individual chapters.

Hicks-Baldwin Traffic Signal Due In 3 Months

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun said yesterday that the long-awaited traffic signal at Hicks and Baldwin roads, will hopefully be installed in about three months.

For several weeks Braun has been seeking advice from the Illinois Division of Highways concerning the status of the project and this week received word that state officials will approve the signal installation.

Braun said the traffic signal will be installed only on a temporary basis, pending the major reconstruction of Hicks Road which state officials are now planning.

He said "I am hopeful that the cost will be substantially lower than my original estimate." At a board meeting several weeks ago, Braun said he expected the signal to cost $50,000.

More details on the design and cost of the project will be forthcoming as soon as Braun receives plans from the state highway department, he said.

HE ADDED THAT the village board has sought assistance from the state for the last three years to regulate traffic at Hicks and Baldwin, described as one of the most troublesome intersections in Palatine.

"The state informed me that their decision to give permission for this temporary installation was based entirely on the information which was provided by our staff over the past 18 months," Braun said previously.

During that time, highway officials have been fed accident reports and traffic volume counts by village officials who hoped to qualify for a signal.

Palatine police reported 17 accidents occurred at that intersection between November of 1969 and November of 1970. Most of the accidents were caused by failure to yield by eastbound cars on Baldwin that collided with vehicles on Hicks.

But Braun said the primary reason for requesting a signal was due to the increased traffic volume on Hicks Road and the difficulty motorists have in getting on Hicks from Baldwin.

WITHOUT THE SIGNAL, this difficulty might be increased by a K-Mart Department store planned for the northeast corner of Hicks and Baldwin, which will be under construction this spring and completed by 1972, according to Jack Jacobs, its developer.

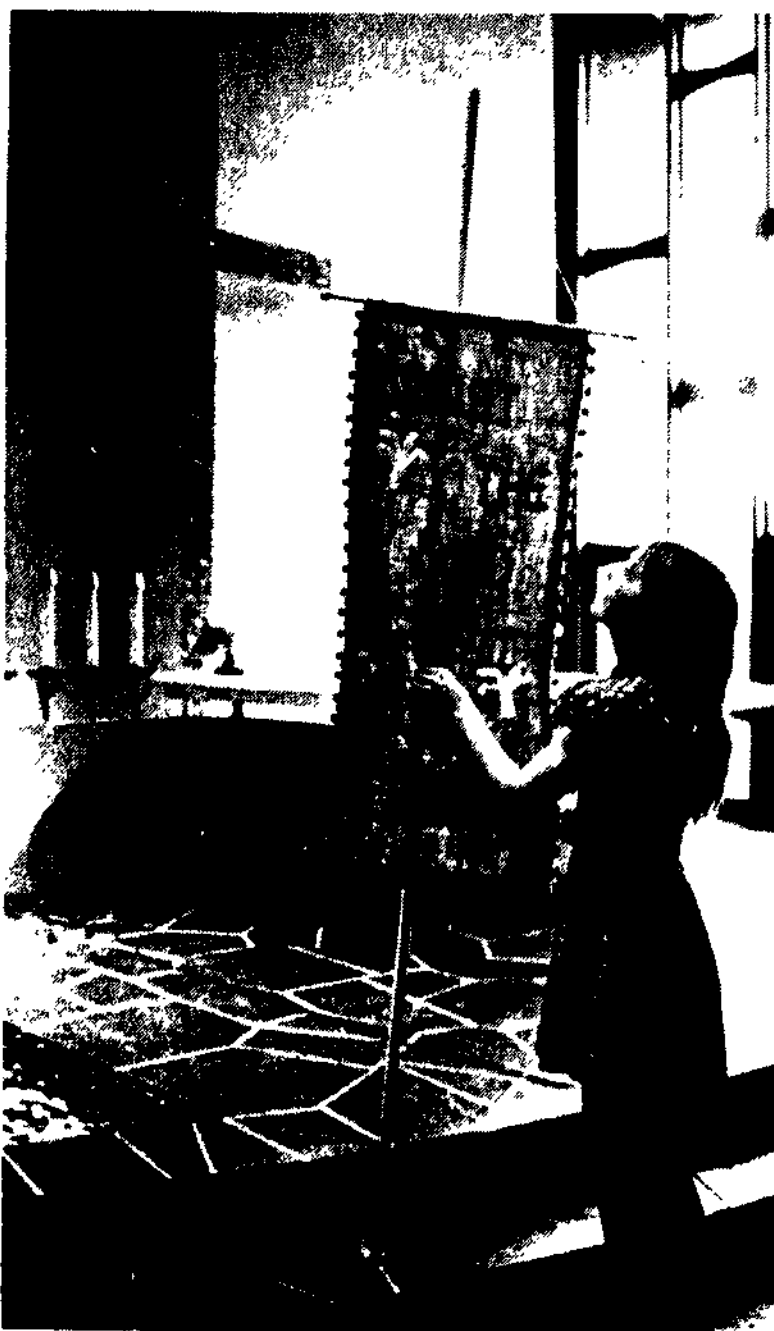

Also concerning Hicks Road, Braun said he has recently requested the state to inspect Hicks north of Baldwin Road within the corporate limits to determine if substantial reconstruction could be done to improve the deteriorated condition of that section of road.

Currently, the village maintains Hicks for the state between Cunningham and Baldwin Road.

The request was turned down, however, by Sigmund C. Ziejewski, head of the Illinois Division of Highways.

ZIEJEWSKI SAID such repairs would not be done in light of the state's proposed reconstruction of Hicks Road, for which a public hearing will be held in Palatine in about 10 weeks.

The state plans to widen Hicks to six lanes between the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and to four lanes between Baldwin and Rand roads.

A CONTEMPORARY INTERPRETATION of the Lenten season was offered by students of Immanuel Lutheran School last night during a special children's service.

Created by the students, the service depicted a musical and visual application of the scenes leading up to the death of Christ through projections of color slides.

Lent Service Is Presented By Students

Students presented their own modern application of the Lenten season last night at Immanuel Lutheran Church.

Through the use of slides projected on the front wall of the church, students illustrated scenes in the life of Jesus Christ from the time he was condemned to death to his resurrection. With each Biblical slide shown, a second slide depicting a comparable scene in modern society was projected.

To go along with the scene of Simon helping Jesus carry the burden of the cross, a modern slide was used showing one student aiding another student using crutches down the stairs. In between each set of 10 slides, an appropriate Lenten song was sung by Immanuel Lutheran School's 275 students.

Instrumentalists accompanied the singing with guitars, flutes and trumpets. Nine student readers presented the modern application of the Biblical scene while students in a speech choir read Biblical passages in unison.

STUDENTS SPENT over a month developing the ideas for the special service. Although the original outline for the program came from the faculty, the actual presentation was totally student created and developed.

All students in the school were involved in the program, either as singers-instrumentalists, members of the speech choir or readers. Several students took on additional duties in preparing special light and sound effects.

The student-created service was the first presented in the church during the Lenten Season. Students have previously participated in many services for the Christmas holidays.

The children's program was the last in a series of Wednesday services held at Immanuel Lutheran throughout Lent. Each week's service dealt with a different aspect of the events leading up to the death of Christ, some of which involved a chancel drama presentation.

According to Orville Schaeffer, principal of Immanuel Lutheran, the children's service not only provided the church congregation with a contemporary approach to the meaning of the Lenten Season, it offered the students the chance to use their creative talents in expressing a basic Christian ethic that is instrumental to their education.

$245,300 Is Appropriated

New Road Budget Approved

Electors from Palatine Township approved the 1971-72 township road budget and appropriation Tuesday evening.

Following their approval, the township board of auditors voted unanimously to accept the new budget for the fiscal year beginning today. This was the first time the board accepted the budget outside of the town meeting.

Francis Kelly, township highway attorney, said the budget could be approved at the hearing this year because of a new state law allowing this. The budget hearing lasted only 45 minutes.

The 1971-72 highway budget does not increase appropriations over last year's budget.

Totalling about $245,300, the new budget provides for $116,000 to maintain roads and $35,000 to construct roads. It also appropriates $30,000 for the oiling of roads, $5,000 for repairs to machinery, $3,000 for weed removal, $5,000 for building maintenance, $16,200 for administration,

$1,000 to maintain township bridges, $4,000 for contingencies and $5,000 tree removal along rights-of-ways.

DISCUSSION at the hearing did not center on the proposed appropriations, but on the actual amount of tax money the highway department would get.

While the budget was set at $245,300 for the 1971-72 fiscal year, the highway department would only get about $150,000 of that, Kelly told the electors. He explained that half of all the tax money collected in corporate areas must go to municipal highway departments.

Since about 60 per cent of the township is in municipal areas, Kelly said, about 30 per cent of the appropriation would go to them. He said that the corporate areas of Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Inverness, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights within the township would split about $95,000.

Objecting to this was Mrs. Ann Scollay who complained that people in incorporated areas would pay $1 to get their roads fixed while the people in municipalities would pay $2.

Kelly told her the budget followed the state law to the letter. He added that if he just submitted a highway budget for the unincorporated areas of the township, the courts would throw it out.

TOWNSHIP AUDITOR Dick Bayer pointed out that since he does his shopping in Palatine, taxes paid on sales go to Palatine, even though he doesn't live in Palatine.

Another auditor, Carl Bals, cleared up the matter by explaining that the budget doesn't say who will get the appropriation but how the appropriation is to be spent by local highway departments in the township.

Kelly told Mrs. Scollay that the law calling for such budgeting was archaic and suggested she write her state representatives to get the law changed.

Cracker Barrel

SAY IT AGAIN, Sam: After attempting to explain why the Palatine Township Highway Department had to draw up a $245,200 budget from which it would only get $150,000 to two citizens at the budget's hearing, Francis Kelly, highway attorney, ended up with a few more people not understanding why. Township board member Russ Brammell asked for Kelly to reexplain the reasons to him because all the explaining confused him to the point that he no longer understood it.

AND SPEAKING of budgets, the village board decided the other night during an informal 1971 budget review session that they'll be able to reduce expenditures by so much that taxes will be nearly wiped out — April Fool!

Jauch's Image: Non-Stereotyped

by DOUG RAY

The suburban analyst is a stereotyped professional.

Most of us see him sitting in his overstuffed lounge chair listening to the troubles of others and shaking his head not moving his horned-rimmed glasses while periodically straightening a fashionable tie. Before he makes another appointment for a troubled suburbanite, he may give a piece of advice in his slow-soft speech.

But the man who might be called the local analyst is a man not at all in the stereotyped image.

Thomas Jauch, director of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center located in Rolling Meadows, looks more like a stand-in for Santa Claus than the streamlined stereotyped analyst. His speech is faster than an auctioneer's and he doesn't even have a comfortable chair in his office.

HE'S A TEACHER, a psychiatrist and a counselor.

Jauch is a teacher for area residents who have volunteered their time to become counselors to youth who have problems. But he explains that these people "won't become social workers, just aware citizens."

Already he's trained 10 residents to become counselors for youth in Rolling Meadows. The program consists of training in causes of delinquency, drug use and social psychology.

"This training is going to help the residents understand the causes of some of the traditional youth problems," Jauch explained.

"After four weeks of training, the counselors will be able to take their first referrals," he said.

An overriding theory of Jauch is that problems can be worked out within present social structure including the family.

"When a child runs away from home for instance, he needs counseling and so do his parents," he said.

Jauch takes them both into a session so they can learn to communicate with one another. Parents will find out that their child can interact if they give him a chance.

MOST RECENTLY JAUCH received a crime grant from the State of Illinois to train local law enforcement officials in crime and delinquency.

He works both sides. He talks to the kids and to the police in hope that an understanding can be worked out. He pampers no one. "If a child needs correction, he will get it," he said.

"There must be a control. If he needs a watch then that is what he needs." It's the old theory and the theory is one the non-stereotyped suburban analyst believes in.

PACKED CROWD watched with special wonder the performance of a group of marionettes at Randhurst Shopping Center. The special program was held this week focusing on the Easter season.

Salt Creek Park District Candidates Speak

Kwasniac: Envisions Lake Parks

by JIM HODL

Candidate Norbert Kwasniac envisions a recreational area being developed at Rosser and Willow Lakes near Route 1 in the Salt Creek Rural Park District.

At these lake sites, residents of the district could go canoeing, fishing, go on a picnic and do other things. A trailer court will be located there for campers, he said.

Kwasniac said that while development of these lakes is way off, he said the district could turn them into recreational areas without increasing taxes.

He suggested that the district try to get a grant from the government to develop the lakes. Currently the Metropolitan Sanitary District is planning to develop retention basins in the area of the lakes.

Kwasniac is the only incumbent seeking reelection to the park board for a two-year term. He assumed the position in January of 1970 when another board member resigned. He is now attempting to keep the seat for the remainder of the time left in it.

IN RUNNING FOR reelection Kwasniac emphasized the need to keep taxes low in the district. Since the district's founding 15 years ago it has always had lower taxes than the surrounding districts.

He criticized some of the people in Winston Park Unit 6, a subdivision in the district, for being too eager in developing a park.

"These people say, but the taxpayer heavy and get things done now," Kwasniac said. "The district is getting the park in their subdivision developed within its budget."

He said there was no need for any new neighborhood parks. Instead, he said the three current parks in the district should be developed further.

Kwasniac said there was talk in the district about getting swimming pools. He type under discussion were the above ground kind which Kwasniac said aren't worth a hill of beans.

He added that the people who want these pools like swimming, they should buy a nonresident pool pass at a nearby park district that has a swimming pool.

HE ALSO SAID he was in favor of shortening the term of park board members to four years so other people could get a chance to serve on it. He said a shorter term would encourage more people to run for office.

Kwasniac said the park district's field house has not been used enough and suggested it be used to bring in a little extra revenue through rentals to local groups. He said all groups except those who would make trouble should be able to hold meetings in the Salt Creek field house.

Jones: Parks Need Development

by JIM HODL

If the Salt Creek Rural Park District can't justify its existence, then it should dissolve, said candidate Stanton M. Jones.

Running for a two-year term on the district's park board, Jones said Salt Creek could be really good in two years, but it will need professional help. He said the district will also have to use the resources it has on hand.

"about 79 or 80 per cent of the Salt Creek district is occupied by industry," Jones said. "It has tremendous potential which hasn't been adequately used."

Jones said that the three parks in the district need to be developed further. He said the two lakes in the district, Rosser and Willow Lakes, also need to be developed.

HE POINTED OUT that Salt Creek doesn't have to dissolve since it could have everything the other districts have without joining them. He compared Salt Creek to the Palatine Park District.

By doubling its taxes, Salt Creek could build a swimming pool for its residents. Jones pointed out that the district dissolved and joined Palatine, its taxes would be tripled and the pool it could use would be hard to get into.

"It is always crowded," Jones said.

While the Palatine district has a golf course, one needs a reservation to play on it, he said. However, Salt Creek could strike an agreement with the Arlington Park Race Track to use its golf course during low business hours.

"SALT CREEK COULD offer golf lessons to local housewives on Wednesday mornings when hardly anyone visits that course," Jones said.

On other matters, Jones suggested that Salt Creek could get use of facilities from other nearby districts through a sharing program. He said residents could use a neighbor district's pool at reduced rates in return for their residents getting into Salt Creek special classes at similarly reduced rates.

Jones said that factionalism has hurt the district from realizing its potential. He pointed out that when one neighborhood gets something, the other two neighborhoods want exactly the same. As a result, there is a lot of competing to stay equal.

Last winter, he said, Winston Park Unit 6 tried to put up an ice rink. They asked for bales of hay to help set up the rink. Because of factionalism, each neighborhood park got exactly the same number of hay bales.

Jones fears that a swimming pool could not be built in Salt Creek because all neighborhoods will want one. He said the only solution would be to get a portable pool like they use in Chicago and move it from neighborhood to neighborhood during the hot months.

Palatine High Celebrates Phynxcoming Day

Today is Phynxcoming Day at Palatine High School.

To celebrate this gala occasion, people at the school will have a parade, complete with a kazo band. The Phynx Pom Pom Squad will be in the parade, leading cheers for all Palatine Phynx.

All of this leads up to the big Phynx vs. Lettermen basketball game, to be played in the Palatine gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

Who are the Phynx? They are the faculty at Palatine High School. Each year, the faculty plays the lettermen in a game of basketball at the end of the sports season. Over the past few years, the event grew into a week-long activity.

Five years ago the faculty titled their team the Phynx. The legend of the Phynx grew and soon, special days were declared.

This year, everybody in school wore sneakers on Monday. On Tuesday, Casual Dress Day was celebrated with people wearing blue jeans and faculty members wearing their "Phynx are loyal" buttons.

Yesterday was Beanie Day, and everybody in school was given a beanie to wear.

However, today is the big day. There will be a school assembly, a parade and the crowning of the Phynx royal court. Faculty members nominated some of their own to be king and queen of the Phynx last week and the students have voted for their favorites. The king and queen will be announced today.

At 6:30 p.m., the Phynx and the Lettermen will engage in a clown game, playing a weird game of basketball. At about 7:30 p.m., the real game will begin.

This year, the lettermen will be trying to break the Phynx's streak, which stands at four games in a row. The lettermen won their last game five years ago, the first year of the tournament.

Coaching the Phynx will be former Palatine basketball coach Norm Jones. Co-coach will be current basketball coach Ron Finrock. The lettermen will coach themselves.

With all the silliness going on, it seems appropriate to hold Phynxcoming Day on April Fool's Day. However, this is the first time the game will be held on this day.

Usually, the game is held on a Friday. This year, the school could not reserve a Friday for the Phynx vs. Lettermen game, so April 1 was chosen as the best possible date.

According to officials at Palatine, the entire week of events is held to simply increase enthusiasm in the school.

From The Library

by the staff of the Palatine Public Library

What is the "silent majority" really like? This is what Peter Binzen attempts to reflect in his extensive study of white America in "Whitewash U.S.A.," one of several new books available at the Palatine Public Library this week.

Noted scholar Arnold Toynbee examines the growth of American cities of the past two years in "Cities on the Move." He presents a theory in this volume that the world will eventually evolve into one international city. Romaine Gary writes of the American conflict between racism and the pursuit of human dignity in "White Dog."

"Hassling" by Sylvia Berry Williams is an unusual book about suburbia. It examines the confrontation of suburban high school students, teachers, parents and administrators on the issues of war, race, drugs, the draft, black power, student power and politics. Robert Ardrey engages in a personal inquiry into the evolutionary sources of order and disorder in "The Social Contract."

WHO CONTRIBUTES to a college student's failure in his studies? According to Robert W. Piche, families and high schools are causes. He explains this and how to correct the problem in "Why College Students Fail." James McLachlan tells the history of our country's schools away from home in "American Boarding Schools."

American education critic John Holt drops another bombshell on schools in his latest book, "The Underachieving School." Harry Kemelman presents some practical suggestions for improving today's schools and colleges in "Common Sense in Education."

With the warm and damp months coming, mushroom season will open at local forest preserves, and possibly, our own backyard. Emil F. Guba tells how one can recognize a good mushroom from a poisonous one in "Wild Mushrooms: Food and Poison." Leonard Pearson edits "Death and Dying," a volume of essays on the current issues in the treatment of the dying person.

"AN OWL ON EVERY POST" by Sarnora Babb is a personal recollection of life on the plains of America. Donald Croughon relates the early history of our neighbor to the north in "Canada's First Century."

Irving Stone has a new work of fiction titled "The Passions of the Mind." Set in Vienna, the glamor capital of Europe, around the 1800's, Stone tells an extraordinary story about Sigmund Freud, the father of psychiatry.

Three Los Angeles policemen and their five nerve grinding years of training and experience on the force is the topic of "The New Centurions." Author of this novel is Joseph Wambaugh, who has served as a policeman himself.

Elizabeth Goudge weaves a poignant tale of the beautiful Lucy Walter, secret wife of England's Charles II. This novel is set in 17th century England and is sure to please all of Miss Goudge's fans.

Library Workers Attend Seminar

Five local people associated with the Palatine Public Library recently attended a tutorial on library automation at the Gail Borden Public Library, Elgin.

Attending the meeting was Mrs. Ida Bullen, Palatine librarian, Dr. Ralph Morris, library board chairman, Mrs. Mabel Ellering, library board member and library workers Mrs. Eleanor Robben and Mrs. Donna Grove.

Sponsored by the North Suburban Library System, the tutorial was a two-day seminar and workshop instructing area library people in the uses of automation techniques in library work.

Homeowner Policy- No Endorsements

The Willow Wood Homeowners' Association does not endorse the Republican village board candidates for the coming election, according to an officer of the group.

Ron Hunter, association director, said it's against the by-laws of the group to become involved in politics.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors a motion to take no stand or action and to make no endorsement concerning the coming election was approved," he said.

Earlier this week 10 members of the Homeowners' Combined Council consisting of several homeowners groups in Palatine announced their endorsement of the GOP slate. President of Willow Wood George Hursig is a member of the council and has announced his support of the Republican slate.

North View Officers Elected

A new slate of officers for the North View Homeowners Association in Palatine was elected Tuesday night during the group's general membership meeting at Thunderbird Country Club.

Officers for 1971 are Thomas Smith, of 680 N. Benton St., president; George M. Temple, of 661 N. Wren, vice president; Kenneth Kohr, of 638 N. Wren, treasurer; and Mrs. Mark McDonald, of 18 E. Heron St., secretary.

They succeed the outgoing officers Bob Wedel, president; Loren E. Schelffo, vice president; and Mrs. Robert Lotka, secretary. Kenneth Kohr was reelected as treasurer.

4 Restaurants Scheduled For Construction

The spring building boom is here and Rolling Meadows has been picked as a site for four restaurants, the latest a Chinese restaurant on Algonquin Road.

Don Moy, owner of land east of the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road, has submitted plans for a Chinese restaurant and lounge on the property. According to architect Robert Drews, the building will be 4,000 square feet and have a partial basement.

"We have already requested bids on the building," Drews said. Work may begin in two weeks and a completion date of Sept. 1 has been set.

Moy, also owner of a carry-out diner in the CoachLife Shopping Center on Kirchoff Road, said all the decor will be imported from Hong Kong and Taiwan and the cafe will serve "Atlantic-Chinese food."

Allgauer restaurant representatives will appear before the special zoning commission tonight to ask zoning change to allow a restaurant at the intersection of Euclid and Hicks roads in the city.

THE RESTAURANT may be one of the largest in the area with accommodations for 1,000 persons. A lounge and banquet rooms are also planned.

Another cafe, which submitted plans to city officials months ago, will begin construction soon. The restaurant, Yodel-Inn, plans to build on land on the east side of the Three Fountains Apartments on Algonquin Road. Yodel-Inn is a franchised chain with restaurants in Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Arizona.

The fourth cafe, planned this spring is Mr. Steak, also to be located on Algonquin Road. Mr. Steak is a nationwide organization with 200 restaurants open or under construction. Seating capacity is 128.

Building and Zoning Officer Sverre Haugh said construction of Mr. Steak should begin within a week.

A huge Ramada Inn, with a large dining area, also may be constructed this year on land near Euclid and Hicks. Ramada Inn representatives will appear before city officials tonight to ask for a zoning change.

Sign Ordinance Here Explained By Officials

Roger Tobin, a representative of the city Chamber of Commerce, questioned city officials this week on a sign ordinance, which requires each business sign be inspected for compliance with city codes.

"Everyone is talking about it," Tobin told Mayor Roland Meyer. Tobin said many chamber members thought the sign inspection was "inequitable."

The sign ordinance, which began being enforced a month ago, charges each business displaying a sign a fee depending upon the size of the sign. City Mgr. James Watson said the fee is about 15 cents per square foot of sign.

"The sign ordinance is for the betterment of the health and welfare of the people," Meyer said. "Almost every municipality has a similar sign ordinance."

Meyer said the sign ordinance was established because a few businesses would not repair their signs to bring them up to the city standards.

According to the ordinance, each business with a sign is billed annually and two inspections of the sign are made each year.

Theft Count Lodged

A 43-year-old Rolling Meadows woman was arrested Monday night and charged with theft following a complaint signed against her by a security agent for Carson Prime Scott and Co. at Randhurst Shopping Center, Rand and Elmhurst roads, Mount Prospect.

Marsha Richards, of 2083 Vermont was charged with the theft of clothing valued at about $17. She was released by police on $1,000 bail.

Mrs. Richards is scheduled to appear in the Mount Prospect branch of the Cook County Circuit Court April 15 on the charge.

AMID THE BLUE CLAD figures at the Rolling Meadows Cub Scout Pack 184 meeting Tuesday, a group of fully costumed Indians performed a ceremonial dance.

Scouts in the newly formed pack created their own costumes, as well as the tomahawks, spears and tom-toms used in the Indian program.

Hall Filled By Cubs With Indian Lore

Indian lore and culture filled the hall of St. Colette Church Tuesday when boys in the newly formed Cub Pack 184 participated in an Indian Night program.

All Indian costumes, moccasins, tomahawks, spears and drums used in the program were hand made by the scouts. Members of Den One provided the group with an Indian dance while Bernie Howarth supplied the scouts with Indian music with a guitar.

A number of scouts also received awards during the program. Brad Evans was awarded two gold arrows and a silver arrow. Bob Soto received a wolf badge and two gold arrows. Mark Horwath received a wolf badge and Mike Proskey received a Bobcat award.

The Indian Night was the third pack night program held since the pack formed in January. The pack began with eight members, led by Mrs. Elaine Soto, den mother. Several weeks later two additional dens were formed at Meadow Trace apartments, bringing 10 more boys to the troop.

AT THE FIRST pack night, 16 scouts received Bobcat pins with a special ceremony. The Rev. Thomas Fielding presented the cub pack with its charter from scout headquarters at the February pack night.

Several area parents attended an open house at St. Colette Church in October sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America which encouraged them to start a cub pack at the parish.

Having established the cub pack, the parents are now looking towards forming a new boy scout pack. An open house meeting at which the plans will be discussed is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at St. Colette Church Hall.

Cracker Barrel

SHADES OF Spiro Angewism were apparent at a meeting of the Rolling Meadows ordinance and judiciary committee last week. John Schultz, city health officer, had unkind words for the news media when he said most of what a person reads in the paper isn't correct. Sounds like the "ism" may be gaining disciples.

SAY IT AGAIN, Sam: After attempting to explain why the Palatine Township Highway Department had to draw up a $245,300 budget from which it would only get $150,000 to two citizens at the budget's hearing, highway attorney Francis Kelly ended up with a few more people not understanding why. Township board member Russ Brummell asked for Kelly to reexplain the reasons to him because all the explaining confused him to the point that he no longer understood it.

LIKE FATHER, like son: Thomas Bergman, son of the highway commissioner Vernon (Hans) Bergman, got to second a resolution calling for the passage of his father's 1971-72 highway budget by the electorate at Tuesday's highway budget hearing.

$245,300 Is Appropriated

New Road Budget Approved

Electors from Palatine Township approved the 1971-72 township road budget and appropriation Tuesday evening.

Following their approval, the township board of auditors voted unanimously to accept the new budget for the fiscal year beginning today. This was the first time the board accepted the budget outside of the town meeting.

Francis Kelly, township highway attorney, said the budget could be approved at the hearing this year because of a new state law allowing this. The budget hearing lasted only 45 minutes.

The 1971-72 highway budget does not increase appropriations over last year's budget.

Totalling about $245,300, the new budget provides for $116,000 to maintain roads and $135,000 to construct roads. It also appropriates $30,000 for the oiling of roads, $5,000 for repairs to machinery, $3,000 for weed removal, $5,000 for building maintenance, $16,200 for administration,

$1,000 to maintain township bridges, $4,000 for contingencies and $5,000 tree removal along rights-of-ways.

DISCUSSION at the hearing did not center on the proposed appropriations, but on the actual amount of tax money the highway department would get.

While the budget was set at $245,300 for the 1971-72 fiscal year, the highway department would only get about $150,000 of that, Kelly told the electors. He explained that half of all the tax money collected in corporate areas must go to municipal highway departments.

Since about 60 per cent of the township is in municipal areas, Kelly said, about 30 per cent of the appropriation would go to them. He said that the corporate areas of Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Inverness, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights within the township would split about $95,000.

Objecting to this was Mrs. Ann Scollay who complained that people in incorporated areas would pay $1 to get their roads fixed while the people in municipalities would pay $2.

Kelly told her the budget followed the state law to the letter. He added that if he just submitted a highway budget for the unincorporated areas of the township, the courts would throw it out.

TOWNSHIP AUDITOR Dick Bayer pointed out that since he does his shopping in Palatine, taxes paid on sales go to Palatine, even though he doesn't live in Palatine.

Another auditor, Carl Bals, cleared up the matter by explaining that the budget doesn't say who will get the appropriation but how the appropriation is to be spent by local highway departments in the township.

Kelly told Mrs. Scollay that the law calling for such budgeting was archaic and suggested she write her state representatives to get the law changed.

Countryside 'Y' Seeks Donations

by JIM HODL

Beginning tomorrow Countryside YMCA will be asking for contributions toward constructing a building facility on a 10-acre site north of Palatine.

Many local residents are volunteering time to help the drive for $17 million to build the facility by next year. Two such people are David George, 222 S. Plum Grove Rd., and Mrs. Frances Eichberger, 1160 N. Grove Ave., both of Palatine.

George serves as Palatine area chairman for districts 12 and 13 on the Residential Investments committee. He and his workers will be asking residents on Palatine's southside to help the Y. Mrs. Eichberger is chairman of District 19 which is located near the Baldwin and Collax roads site where the facility is to be built.

George describes his duties as a chairman as running an organization that will cover his districts. Working under him are 10 team captains with five workers each. Each worker will visit 10 residents in the districts.

CURRENTLY, THE WORKERS are performing informational duties before the actual drive begins. They are explaining to the people what the Countryside program is and why contributing to the facilities construction is actually an investment in the future of themselves and Palatine, George said.

George, who works for Motorola in Schaumburg, said he became a district chairman so he could play a vital role in the community. He said he was especially interested in the facilities the Y building will have, since they are suited for young families.

Mrs. Eichberger said she became a district chairman because she was tired of hearing people say they don't want to become involved in anything. By getting involved, she will be helping area children, she said.

She said her neighbors are excited about the proposed structure since they are within walking distance of the building site.

Both Mrs. Eichberger and George have been with Countryside since it was founded several years ago.

GEORGE POINTED out that nine priorities will be included into the structure when it is built with more to be added later. When built, the structure will have an indoor swimming pool, a gymnasium, a youth and family game room, an all-purpose program room, a snack bar and kitchen area, an arts and crafts club room, a shallow water instruction pool, a teen center and a preschool program area.

He added that if additional funds are collected, the facility will also include two adult fitness centers similar to those at the Mount Prospect YMCA.

PACKED CROWD watched with special wonder the performance of a group of marionettes at the Randhurst Shopping Center. The special program was held this week focusing on the Easter season.

Salt Creek Park District Candidates Speak

Kwasniac: Envisions Lake Parks

by JIM HODL

Candidate Norbert Kwasniac envisions a recreational area being developed at Rosser and Willow Lakes near Route 1 in the Salt Creek Rural Park District.

At these lake sites, residents of the district could go canoeing, fishing, go on a picnic and do other things. A trailer court will be located there for campers, he said.

Kwasniac said that while development of these lakes is way off, he said the district could turn them into recreational areas without increasing taxes.

He suggested that the district try to get a grant from the government to develop the lakes. Currently, the Metropolitan Sanitary District is planning to develop retention basins in the area of the lakes.

Kwasniac is the only incumbent seeking reelection to the park board for a two-year term. He assumed the position in January of 1970 when another board member resigned. He is now attempting to keep the seat for the remainder of the time left in it.

IN RUNNING FOR reelection Kwasniac emphasized the need to keep taxes low in the district. Since the district's founding 15 years ago, it has always had lower taxes than the surrounding districts.

He criticized some of the people in

Winston Park Unit 6, a subdivision in the district, for being too eager in developing a park.

Those people say, but the taxpayer has to get things done now," Kwasniac said. "The district is getting the park in their subdivision developed within its budget."

He said there was no need for any new neighborhood parks. Instead, he said, the three current parks in the district should be developed further.

Kwasniac said there was talk in a street about getting swimming pools. The type under discussion were the above ground kind which Kwasniac said aren't worth a hill of beans.

He added: If the people who want these pools like swimming they should buy a nonresident pool pass at a nearby park district that has a swimming pool.

HE ALSO SAID he was in favor of shortening the term of park board members to four years so other people could get a chance to serve on it. He said a shorter term would encourage more people to run for office.

Kwasniac said the park district's field house has not been used enough and suggested it be used to bring in a little extra revenue through rentals to local groups. He said all groups except those who would make trouble should be able to hold meetings in the Salt Creek field house.

Jones: Parks Need Development

by JIM HODL

If the Salt Creek Rural Park District can't justify its existence, then it should dissolve, said candidate Stanton M. Jones.

Running for a two-year term on the district's park board, Jones said Salt Creek could be really good in two years, but it will need professional help. He said the district will also have to use the resources it has on hand.

"about 70 or 80 per cent of the Salt Creek district is occupied by industry," Jones said. "It has tremendous potential which hasn't been adequately used."

Jones said that the three parks in the district need to be developed further. He said the two lakes in the district, Rosser and Willow Lakes, also need to be developed.

HE POINTED OUT that Salt Creek doesn't have to dissolve since it could have everything the other districts have without joining them. He compared Salt Creek to the Palatine Park District.

By doubling its taxes, Salt Creek could build a swimming pool for its residents, Jones pointed out. If the district dissolved and joined Palatine, its taxes would be tripled and the pool it could use would be hard to get into.

"It is always crowded," Jones said.

While the Palatine district has a golf course, one needs a reservation to play on it, he said. However, Salt Creek could strike an agreement with the Arlington Park Race Track to use its golf course during low business hours.

"SALT CREEK COULD offer golf lessons to local housewives on Wednesday mornings when hardly anyone visits that course," Jones said.

On other matters, Jones suggested that Salt Creek could get use of facilities from other nearby districts through a sharing program. He said residents could use a neighbor district's pool at reduced rates in return for their residents getting into Salt Creek special classes at similarly reduced rates.

Jones said that factionalism has hurt the district from realizing its potential. He pointed out that when one neighborhood gets something, the other two neighborhoods want exactly the same. As a result, there is a lot of competing to stay equal.

Last winter, he said, Winston Park Unit 6 tried to put up an ice rink. They asked for hales of hay to help set up the rink. Because of factionalism, each neighborhood park got exactly the same number of hay bales.

Jones fears that a swimming pool could not be built in Salt Creek because all neighborhoods will want one. He said the only solution would be to get a portable pool like they use in Chicago and move it from neighborhood to neighborhood during the hot months.

Palatine High Celebrates Phynxcoming Day

Today is Phynxcoming Day at Palatine High School.

To celebrate this gala occasion, people at the school will have a parade complete with a kazoo band. The Phynx Pom Squad will be in the parade leading cheers for all Palatine Phynx.

All of this leads up to the big Phynx vs. Lettermen basketball game, to be played in the Palatine gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

Who are the Phynx? They are the faculty at Palatine High School. Each year the faculty plays the lettermen in a game of basketball at the end of the sports season. Over the past few years, the event grew into a week-long activity.

Five years ago, the faculty titled their team the Phynx. The legend of the Phynx grew and soon special days were declared.

This year, everybody in school wore sneakers on Monday. On Tuesday, Casual Dress Day was celebrated with people wearing blue jeans and faculty members wearing their "Phynx are loyal" buttons.

Yesterday was Beanie Day, and everyone in school was given a beanie to wear.

However, today is the big day. There will be a school assembly, a parade, and the crowning of the Phynx royal court. Faculty members nominated some of their own to be king and queen of the Phynx last week and the students have voted for their favorites. The king and queen will be announced today.

At 6:30 p.m., the Phynx and the Lettermen will engage in a clown game, playing a weird game of basketball. At about 7:30 p.m., the real game will begin.

This year, the lettermen will be trying to break the Phynx's streak, which stands at four games in a row. The lettermen won their last game five years ago, the first year of the tournament.

Coaching the Phynx will be former Palatine basketball coach Norm Jones. Co-coach will be current basketball coach Ron Finrock. The lettermen will coach themselves.

With all the silliness going on, it seems appropriate to hold Phynxcoming Day on April Fool's Day. However, this is the first time the game will be held on this day.

Usually, the game is held on a Friday. This year, the school could not reserve a Friday for the Phynx vs. Lettermen game, so April 1 was chosen as the best possible date.

According to officials at Palatine, the entire week of events is held to simply increase enthusiasm in the school.

North View Officers Elected

A new slate of officers for the North View Homeowners Association in Palatine was elected Tuesday night during the group's general membership meeting at Thunderbird Country Club.

Officers for 1971 are Thomas Smith, of 600 N. Benton St., president; George M. Tempie, of 661 N. Wren, vice president; Kenneth Kohr, of 630 N. Wren, treasurer; and Mrs. Mark McDonald, of 18 E. Heron St., secretary.

They succeed the outgoing officers Bob Wodel, president; Loren E. Schell, vice president; and Mrs. Robert Lotka, secretary. Kenneth Kohr was reelected as treasurer.

Smith, the new president and a candidate for a six-year term on the Palatine Library board, added that the group also recognized its 10th anniversary Tuesday, which makes North View one of the oldest homeowner associations in Palatine.

Styles for guys and dolls seem to be reverting back to our great-great-grandparents.

As we watch the young men of today proudly, and even defiantly, trying to prove their independence by wearing long hair, we say — Guys, long hair has been around for sometime. Remember what happened to Sampson, whose strength and his downfall all resulted from his hair? Besides, when the girls began wearing granny glasses and granny dresses, what else could the chivalrous guy do but let his hair grow and acquire a beard?

If you want to know more about hair styles for men, then read "The History of Hair." This book is an illustrated review of hair styles for men throughout the ages. "The History of Hair" should be of interest to any man who has hair or used to have hair. History tells us man may be perfectly comfortable prancing around in the nude but he would die of embarrassment if you caught him with his hair down.

Dolls, want to hear something amusing? The men used to roll their hair up at night in curl papers. The book also covers such subjects as barbering, hair care, beards and men's cosmetics. Shaving was unknown in Rome until 296 B.C. when a Sicilian man named Vicinius Mena landed in Rome with a troop of beard-happy barbers.

"IF THE SHOE FITS," We have heard the expression many times but did you ever stop to think about the history of shoes? We are told that in Ancient Rome, when chariots came into prominence, the Roman shoemaker became concerned. As a result they organized patriotic parades so people would walk more and wear out their shoes faster.

There are over 600 million pairs of shoes made in America each year and a million or more pairs imported. Going barefoot in Greece was a sign of slavery, while the Romans removed their shoes in funeral processions. It is said shoes, or a lack of them, reflect the prosperity of the times. The Anglo-Saxon father of the bride always presented the groom with one of his daughter's shoes, signifying the transfer of parental authority. To match their new image, the guys and dolls set will be interested in reading the chapter of the book entitled "Buttons, Buckles and Laces."

Dolls, how many wigs do you own? In Colonial American days, wearing a wig was a sign of a man's position, pride and dignity; wigmaking was a thriving business. In 1624 Europe was a restless, unhappy continent. The Dutch were waging war against the Spanish. Denmark had entered the war in Germany. In France 23-year-old King Louis XIII entrusted his affairs to Cardinal Richelieu and retreated to his chambers to worry about his loss of hair.

As a result, a royal decision was made to wear a wig. The French called it a perruque, and not until King Louis XIII put on his perruque in 1624, were they generally worn. If the wearers were not bald to begin with, they soon would be by constant use of the hot, heavy fashion. In 1675 wigs were banned in Massachusetts Court because it made men look like women, while in Virginia there were eight wigmakers. After the Revolutionary War, the wig making business in America grew smaller, a new era was beginning.

The illustrations show styles of wigs and looms they were made on. Only the finest human hair was used, preferably woman's hair. It is stronger than the man's. Read Leonard & Fisher's book "The Wigmakers."

No Corporation Tax Could Mean Large School Losses

Local school districts could lose between 5 and 10 per cent of their tax income because of a circuit court ruling Tuesday that outlawed the collection of personal property taxes from corporations.

If the Illinois Supreme Court agrees with the circuit court decision declaring the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional, the effects would be felt by districts next year.

However, most school districts, already anxious about their financial situation, are looking at their tax rolls to see what effect the loss of corporate personal property tax revenue will have on their income.

In River Trails School Dist. 26 Supt. Winston Harwood estimated the district could lose about $130,000 of its tax income. Harwood said one estimate placed the total assessed valuation of all corporate personal property in Dist. 26 at $6 million. He said this was made up primarily of the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect Plaza, and Northern Illinois Gas Co. property on Foundry Road just west of River Road.

LOSS OF THIS from the tax rolls could cost the district $130,000 in tax income. "They are leaving the schools high and dry," he said. "Unless there is some other source of revenue we will really have to pare into the 1972-73 budget."

The decision handed down this week does not affect the 1970 personal property tax collections. But, the plaintiff in the court case, a Chicago auto parts corporation is seeking to have the supreme court apply the ruling to the 1970 assessments as well. At least one school official feels the court will not grant the request.

However, yesterday a Cook County tax official indicated that the appeal with regard to the 1970 assessment could result in still more delays with the personal property part of this year's tax distributions, already expected to be late.

J. C. Busenhart, business manager for Mount Prospect Dist. 57 said that personal property taxes from individuals and corporations combined, made up more than 10 per cent of the district's total tax revenue. He said the total tax loss resulting from the end of personal property tax would amount to about $275,000. There were no figures available showing how much of that would be from corporations.

Residents in last November's elections, voted to remove from the statutes provisions for taxation of individual personal property after calendar year 1970. The move did not apply to corporations, however.

Dist. 23 in Prospect Heights will feel the effects of the decision less than many other school districts. "It will affect us least of any of the school districts in the Northwest suburban area. We don't have that many corporations in our community," said Supt. Edward Grodsky.

JAMES O. HENDREN, business manager, estimated the district would lose about $25,300 in tax revenue next year, about five per cent of the district's total tax income. However, he predicted the loss would be made up with increased tax revenues from other areas.

In Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, school officials have not yet determined how much the district will lose if the ruling is upheld.

Robert Weber, High School Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for financial affairs, estimated Tuesday the court decision could cost that district $1.5 million annually.

Walker To Speak At WHIP Rally Dinner

Daniel Walker, the only announced candidate for Illinois governor in 1972, will speak at a rally and dinner in Wheeling on April 13.

Walker is being brought to the village by the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) which is seeking election April 20 to the village board in a write-in campaign.

Walker is seeking the Democratic nomination for the governor race in 1972.

Author of the famed Walker Report on the disturbances during the 1968 Democratic convention, and former chairman of the Chicago Crime Commission, Walker was campaign chairman for the successful U.S. Senate bid of Adlai E. Stevenson III last year.

The fund raising rally and dinner for WHIP will be held at the Hartmann House at 391 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Wheeling.

THE DINNER, a roast beef buffet, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for the dinner can be made by calling 337-2049 evenings. The price is $7 for an individual and $12 for a couple. Reservations must be made for the dinner before April 12.

Persons unable to attend the dinner can attend the speech and rally beginning at 8:30 p.m. by paying a $1 contribution at the door.

Daniel Walker

Walker will be the main attraction at the rally and dinner being sponsored by the WHIP organization.

The party has been supporting a write-in election of Michael Moran, Otis Hedlund, Donald Duncan and Harold Fagan to the village board since the municipal electoral board removed the WHIP candidates names from the ballot.

'Loot' Found Behind Files

More than a thousand dollars which had been reported stolen in a burglary of a store in Wheeling four months ago has been found behind a filing cabinet in the store.

Wheeling police said that burglars took a safe containing $238 from the Ben Franklin store last Nov. 30 but missed $1,175 which apparently had fallen behind the cabinet.

Employees discovered the money while moving office equipment in the store, at 1920 S. Wolf Rd., this week.

The early morning burglary was discovered by two Wheeling policemen who noticed an open door at the store while on patrol.

Three men have been charged with the Ben Franklin burglary and with a burglary at the Hapsburg Inn at 600 River Rd., Mount Prospect. They are awaiting trial on burglary charges, Wheeling police said.

The men are Burkhard Stein, of 146 Anita, Mount Prospect, Vincent Badalamenti, 1727 E. Foundry, Mount Prospect, and Steven Bass, 224 Graylynn Dr., Mount Prospect.

Wheeling police explained that the reduction in the amount of money believed taken in the Ben Franklin burglary will not affect the charges in the case.

Finances No. 1 Problem: Crise

(Editor's note: Today is the last of a pair of interviews with the two candidates running unopposed for the two Dist. 21 school board posts this year.)

by SUE JACOBSON

"Finances" are the Number 1 problem facing School Dist. 21 according to incumbent school board candidate Jeremiah G. Crise.

Crise, 40, lives at 611 W. Hintz Rd., Arlington Heights. He is running unopposed for a second three-year term on the school board. School board elections will be held April 10.

"Finances are a problem with Dist. 21 as they are with all districts. We've built six or seven schools in the past three years and we'll have two more open in the fall. In a district such as ours, with so much undeveloped land, financing and equipping new schools will continue to be a problem. Government bodies get hit by inflation, just like everyone else."

Dist. 21 will attempt to obtain additional revenue through a referendum on April 10. The referendum will ask voter approval for a 20 cent increase in the educational fund tax rate and a 10 cent increase in the building fund tax rate.

Crise feels the district will be able to cope with the financial problems of keeping up with the growth rate and inflation.

"I'VE DONE A LOT of traveling throughout the state and I feel that Dist. 21 is the best school district in the state of Illinois. Dist. 21 takes a realistic approach to its problems. And because of this, it's been able to solve them."

Crise does not feel that the $500,000 worth of cutbacks in programs and services made in the 1971-72 budget were the result of poor planning by the board or administration.

"The funds will not be coming in from the state as we had thought. There are some things that a board just can't predict. We projected that enrollment would grow by 600 or 800 this year. Actually it grew by only about 200."

Crise said a "realistic" approach to the problem of financing Dist. 21 will be taken by the board if the April 10 tax hike referendum is defeated.

"We'll take a realistic approach to the problem if it fails. I wouldn't want to threaten people now with further budget cuts. I don't think that is something that should be held over people's heads."

Crise feels the present system of local school districts financed primarily by local taxes and state aid, "will have to be adequate in the foreseeable future. I can't see developing any other type of taxation system for schools."

THE ROLE OF THE school board member should be "to see that policies are carried out and to formulate policy. The administration and the board have to work together on policy," Crise feels.

Concerning proposed new housing developments in the school district, Crise said, "If a development proposal would seem to hurt the district, the board and administration should appear before the city council and make their opinions known. But their opinions should be based on well-founded information."

"Encouraging new industry to come into the area is really up to the villages. They write the ordinances. I don't know how a school district could actively take any part in this."

Crise is strongly in favor of area school cooperatives, such as the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) and the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), an association of High School Dist. 211 and 214 and their underlying elementary districts.

He is currently president of the NEC and chairman of the building committee for the NSSEO school for the handicapped, now under construction in Palatine.

Crise said he is not opposed to school boards bargaining with teachers' associations concerning salary scales.

"As with any other group, with good faith bargaining on both sides, both win. Our district has always pursued this policy."

Crise feels that a school board should rely on the administration for proposing new types of curriculum or changes in the curriculum.

A NEW SANCTUARY for the First Baptist Church of Wheeling is under construction next to the existing church building at Elmhurst and Edwards streets. The new sanctuary is expected to be completed by Aug. 1 according to Rev. Stanley H. Dill, Pastor.

This Morning In Brief

The State

Votes from two Republicans enabled Illinois Senate Democrats to pass a bill making voting machines mandatory in counties or municipalities with a population over 40,000.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said he has requested representatives of the Illinois Commerce Commission to meet with the staff of the Railpax Corp. in an effort to insure the broadest possible rail passenger service for Illinois.

The Nation

Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was sentenced to life at hard labor for the premeditated murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, but the sentence likely will be taken to the nation's highest courts and perhaps the President himself.

The U.S. Parole Board denied Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa's second request for parole. It said further consideration of his release from prison would be deferred until June 1972.

An Eastern Air Lines jetliner with 82 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba but in Birmingham, Ala., a 14-year-old schoolboy was talked out of hijacking by a stewardess.

The House Democrats voted 138 to 62 to support ending U.S. military involvement in Indochina by the end of 1972.

The World

Pope Paul VI roundly condemned sexual permissiveness and urged men to become as concerned about cleaning up pornography as they are about pollution. While the pontiff spoke, pretty girls in hot pants strolled along the nearby Via Della Conciliazione under the spring sun.

Egypt will ask European nations to prompt the United States into a more forceful persuasive policy toward Israel.

The War

Military sources disclosed that Viet Cong guerrillas stormed into a South Vietnamese village killing or wounding nearly 200 civilians in one of the worst such assaults since the 1968 Tet offensive.

The Weather

Much of the nation was basking in the warmth and sunshine of an unusually beautiful spring day but cold air crept into Montana and the rain turned to snow.

Temperatures from around the nation:

	High	Low
Atlanta	58	37
Boston	48	32
Houston	69	54
Los Angeles	70	51
Miami Beach	76	51
Minneapolis	50	38

The Market

The stock market scratched out a small advance but many analysts said this was no assurance the list had broken out of its sideways pattern. The Dow Jones blue chip barometer finished with a net gain of 0.98 at 904.37. Prices were firm in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

MORE THAN 100 different exhibits were set up Friday at the annual St. Paul Lutheran School science fair. The exhibits were built by science students from the school's sixth, seventh and eighth graders. Subjects ranged from environmental pollution to the science of sewing. Hopefuls View Home-Rule Provision

This is the main part of a continuing newspaper debate among the five candidates seeking election to the Mount Prospect Village Board April 20.

The candidates answered to questions sent to them by the Herald. Their responses have been appearing in daily issues of the paper. The "forth and fast" part of the debate will appear in tomorrow's paper.

The five candidates for village trustee are: George Anderson, Richard Hendricks, Richard Monroe, Lloyd Harris and Kenneth Scholten. Norris, an incumbent trustee, and Hendricks are seeking election as independent candidates.

Anderson, Monroe and Scholten are running under the banner of the United Village Party. Three of the five candidates will be elected to serve four-year terms on the village board.

Question Nine: What are some of the ways that you think the home-rule provision of the new state constitution may help or hinder local government and Mount Prospect?

ANDERSON

The new constitution, adopted by the voters on Dec. 15, 1970, takes effect on July 1, 1971. The new home-rule provision can be a means for permitting governments at all levels to cooperate in working out common problems, as "the Brother" does not intervene. Thus, one local government can contract with another government or private parties to share services and divide costs equitably.

Also, the constitution allows the county to classify properties into different classes, making it possible to assess industrial, commercial and residential at different rates; in return reflecting a possible savings to Mount Prospect.

However, if the powers given to municipalities are not judiciously employed, the general assembly by a three-fifths vote can remove local authority.

HENDRICKS

It gives the local government the ability to govern itself, independent of state government, in a manner previously impossible under the 1870 constitution. With this procedure, however, the local body has gained a power to derive revenue sources which, if not used wisely, will possibly plague both individuals and business.

MONROE

The home-rule article can be amended by the general assembly, but the present statement reads "to regulate for the protection of public health, safety, moral and welfare; to license for regulatory purposes; to tax and incur debt." Disallowed is "to punish felons, impose income taxes or tax occupations."

It would appear the ability to impose new taxes without consent of the legislature and class properties for different tax purposes could allow exemptions for new industries, senior citizens, etc. This power could be heavily used if not handled judiciously.

Commercial and industrial properties must have a climate conducive to remain in Mount Prospect and lighten the tax burden on the homeowners.

NORRIS

The home-rule provision of the new constitution will not hinder local government but presents the opportunity for new ways of financing village government. The constitution will permit local income taxes, local sales taxes, easier debt financing and does not contain rigid referendum requirements.

Whether the home-rule provision will help or hinder local government will depend upon the considered action of the board acting in the best interests of the citizens of Mount Prospect. I do not believe that the home-rule provisions should be utilized without thorough consideration of all facts and circumstances.

SCHOLTEN

The home-rule provision is one that is not clearly understood by most individuals. It limits a municipality as to what it cannot do, instead of what it can do.

This may have repercussions in communities where the power given to them is abused. These areas can force legislation to further restrict local government and thereby defeat the purpose.

One important area is the revenue article which allows property to be taxed at different rates, thus allowing some relief to the individual homeowner. I feel this entire home-rule provision must be studied carefully in order to help the citizens of Mount Prospect to the fullest degree.

Tomorrow, Question 10: How would you solve area problems such as traffic, flooding and public transportation?

Hersey Band To March At All-Star Game

The John Hersey High School Marching Band has accepted an invitation to perform at the half-time of the All Star Football Game July 30 at Soldiers Field in Chicago.

This year's game will pit the Baltimore Colts against the College All-Stars. It will be the first time that an Illinois band will perform in the sports classic. Traditionally the half time entertainment has been provided by bands from outside the Midwest.

Donald Caneva, band director, said he received the invitation from George Strickler of the Chicago Tribune Charities. "In his search for an outstanding band, Strickler called three or four 'Big 10' university band directors and all of them mentioned the Hersey band as one of the finest in the country."

"OUR BAND men have been invited to the Soldiers Field on the two evenings prior to the game to rehearse and meet the members of the teams. A crowd of approximately 70,000 will be on hand to witness the game and it will also be televised nationally."

"We intend to put on a truly unique show which will include dramatic lighting effects on the hats of the individual bandmen and strobe lighting effects from the sidelines," said Caneva. "I expect it to be one of the most rewarding experiences that the students have had."

Prior to their performance at Soldiers Field, the Hersey band will travel to Virginia Beach, Va. to compete in the national band competition there. They will also compete in the Midwest Music Festival in Plainfield, Ill. where they are the defending champions.

THE EASTER BUNNY came to Randolph Shopping Center this week and much as Santa Claus. This fascinated girl is Karen Lukas, 18 months, from Wheeling.

District Found To Be 'In Shape'

A visitation team from the state office of the superintendent of public instruction (OSPI) found Mount Prospect Dist. 57 "in excellent shape," according to Asst. Supt. Richard Percy.

Percy said Tuesday the 22-member team found "this district to be one of the better ones they had viewed this year. They were most complimentary."

Dist. 57, which serves northern and central Mount Prospect, will not receive a written report on recommendations for 60 or 90 days, according to Percy.

The team has been checking area schools to see if they met state requirements. Last week the team visited schools in Elk Grove Dist. 59. Such visits are required by state law every three years. However, Percy said the last time an OSPI came to visit was "six or seven years ago."

Burglary Is Reported

About $20 in cash and a stereo tape were reportedly stolen Monday night from the Gustav Litting residence, 1510 E. Thayer St., Mount Prospect.

Litting told police 20 Kennedy half-dollars and a $10 bill were stolen from an end table in the living room.

Police said burglars gained entry to the house by prying open the back door. Litting discovered the theft when he returned home at about 9:30 p.m.

Prospect Students Slate Paper Drive

You can get rid of old newspapers and help the environment at the same time today.

Students at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect will collect old newspapers as part of a "Save Our Trees" campaign. The papers will be sent to a recycling firm to be reused by news printing agencies. Each ton of recycled newspaper saves 17 trees.

Residents in the northwest section of Mount Prospect and the eastern part of Arlington Heights, those areas served by the high school, are asked to tie their old newspapers in bundles and put them at the end of their driveways before 10 a.m. Saturday. Newspapers can also be brought to a container outside the Prospect cafeteria, 801 W. Kensington, Saturday morning.

If ANY NEWSPAPERS are not picked up by 3 p.m., residents can call the high school at 255-9700 and someone will be sent to pick them up.

The drive is sponsored by the Prospect Student Council. The papers will be brought to Southminster Church in Arlington Heights, which is working on the project in cooperation with the West Side Community Church in Chicago.

Seniors Dan Braakman and Carol Collins are chairman of the project.

Board To Hold Special Meeting

The District School Board will hold a special meeting Monday night prior to its regular committee meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 in the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School Library at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Prospect Heights.

Supt. Edward Grudsky said the meeting is being held to take official action on certain matters. Board members will discuss policy changes and change the date of the next meeting from April 12 to April 19. They will also consider keeping the speech correctionist full time. It was proposed at an earlier meeting that the speech correctionist be cut back to half time along with other cutbacks.

No Corporation Tax To Mean Big School Cuts?

Local school districts could lose between 5 and 10 per cent of their tax income because of a circuit court ruling Tuesday that outlawed the collection of personal property taxes from corporations.

If the Illinois Supreme Court agrees with the circuit court decision declaring the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional, the effects would be felt by districts next year.

Lions Set Up Fund For Local Fire Victims

A special fund has been set up by the Mount Prospect Lions Club for the Juan DeHoyas family, left homeless last week after a fire extensively damaged the house they were renting.

The family is now staying at a motel. Mrs. DeHoyas, who fell and injured her arm while trying to keep her four children away from the fire, is in the hospital.

Jan Erskine, a tutor at Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect, said the family lost "most of its possessions in the fire."

The house had been furnished by the landlord, but the family lost "a television set and a clock radio." Mrs. Erskine said that DeHoyas had bought the radio "to make sure his son Richard made it to school on time every day."

Donations can be sent to the family in care of the Lions Club, 703 E. Shabonee Tr. Mrs. Erskine said the fund "will basically help them to reestablish themselves. They're very proud people, and they don't like to take charity. But, we explained that giving money to those in need is an American custom."

The Lions Club has already donated $200 to the fund, and the Robert Frost PTA contributed $50.

School Burglarized

A tape recorder, two microphones and eight tapes were reportedly stolen Monday night from Forest View Elementary School, 1901 Estates Dr., Mount Prospect.

Police said burglars gained entry to the school by breaking a window on the north side of the building. The equipment was kept in a closet in one of the classrooms. School officials estimated the value of the stolen property at about $100.

Correction

An article in yesterday's Herald incorrectly stated the Mount Prospect Park District's plans with regard to issuing tax anticipation warrants. The district does not plan to issue any warrants.

However, most school districts, already anxious about their financial situation, are looking at their tax rolls to see what effect the loss of corporate personal property tax revenue will have on their income.

In River Trails School Dist. 26 Supt. Winston Harwood estimated the district could lose about $130,000 of its tax income.

Harwood said one estimate placed the total assessed valuation of all corporate personal property in Dist. 26 at $6 million. He said this was made up primarily of the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect Plaza, and Northern Illinois Gas Co. property on Foundry Road just west of River Road.

LOSS OF THIS from the tax rolls could cost the district $130,000 in tax income. "They are leaving the schools high and dry," he said. "Unless there is some other source of revenue we 'will really have to pare into the 1972-73 budget.'"

The decision handed down this week does not affect the 1970 personal property tax collections. But, the plaintiff in the court case, a Chicago auto parts corporation is seeking to have the supreme court apply the ruling to the 1970 assessments as well. At least one school official feels the court will not grant the request.

However, yesterday a Cook County tax official indicated that the appeal with regard to the 1970 assessment could result in still more delays with the personal property part of this year's tax distributions, already expected to be late.

J. C. Busenhardt, business manager for Mount Prospect Dist. 57 said that personal property taxes from individuals and corporations combined, made up more than 10 per cent of the district's total tax revenue. He said the total tax loss resulting from the end of personal property tax would amount to about $275,000. There were no figures available showing how much of that would be from corporations.

Residents in last November's elections, voted to remove from the statutes provisions for taxation of individual personal property after calendar year 1970. The move did not apply to corporations, however.

Dist. 23 in Prospect Heights will feel the effects of the decision less than many other school districts. "It will affect us least of any of the school districts in the Northwest suburban area. We don't have that many corporations in our community," said Supt. Edward Grodsky.

JAMES O. HENDREN, business manager, estimated the district would lose about $25,300 in tax revenue next year, about five per cent of the district's total tax income. However, he predicted the loss would be made up with increased tax revenues from other areas.

In Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, school officials have not yet determined how much the district will lose if the ruling is upheld.

Robert Weber, High School Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for financial affairs, estimated Tuesday the court decision could cost that district $1.5 million annually.

HEY, IT'S MY TURN! Students in Jeff Golob's sixth grade science class at Lions Park School in Mount Prospect match wits in a drug game of chance. Groups of students designed drug "That way they learn and have fun at the same time," Golob said.

Special Projects Teach About Drugs

by KAREN RUGEN

Drugs can kill. Ask almost any one of the sixth graders in Jeff Golob's science class at Dist. 57 Lions Park School in Mount Prospect.

They'll also tell you — "Some kids take drugs; smart ones don't." Students learned the warning from a science study unit on drug abuse that began in November and officially ended last month. Unofficially, the study of drug abuse continues.

"The kids are still bringing in articles from magazines and newspapers which show they are still thinking about it," Golob said. "And that's good."

SOME OF GOLOB'S 27 students are still working on their projects for the unit. For one student, Debbie Ricotta, 806

S. Edward St., the hard work she put into her project is on the screen every time she shows the five-minute movie she made.

Debbie, 11, and her photographer father used Mount Prospect as a set and Debbie as an actress to show "How Do Drugs Affect You?" "Drugs will crumble your world," the actress tells her audience as she warns that children on drugs can't play, are often sick and eventually lose their family and friends.

"The best place is down the drain with drugs," says Debbie, who wrote her own script. "Be smart; don't start."

Debbie said she made the film to encourage others not to start on drugs. All the students at Lions Park will get to see the movie at the school's science exhibit in April.

Besides special projects, students created the posters that now wallpaper Golob's science room. Daily, sayings like "Good-Bye Cruel World — I've Gone to Pot" stick out as a stop sign for potential drug users.

WHEN YOU GET tired of looking at colorful posters, there are always games to play. Students grouped together and became the designers of drug games for pleasure and knowledge at the same time.

There's "Chutes and Ladders" for those who want to climb the ladder for refusing heroin and fall down the shoot for accepting a pill. There's the "Monopoly of Drugs" where if you accept heroin you can lose $50. But if you're lucky and your parents listen to your problem, you become $25 richer.

"The kids worked really hard on these and even made up their own markers and rules," Golob said. He started the unit in November because "of all the deaths occurring here because of drugs."

No textbooks were used. He hung up a bulletin board and his students started bringing in the material from magazines and newspapers to fill it. The enthusiasm caught on and other science teachers also began a unit on drugs.

As one of Golob's students wrote: "Roses are red, violets are blue. We learned about drugs — What about you?"

Waiting For Park Officials To Move

Tentative Plans Made For Senior Citizen Center

Though space is not yet available, the Mount Prospect Park District has already drawn up tentative plans for its senior citizen drop-in center.

A stove, refrigerator and sink will be installed in one of the rooms next week, but most of the work cannot be started until park officials move into new offices at Lions Recreation Center. Officials estimate the move will not be made until June. The center will be located in what is now the district offices.

The center will consist of four rooms at 600 See-Gwan Ave. Plans include a kitchen area, a sitting and reading room, a craft and sewing room, a game room and a bathroom. The center will also have a television set.

Dick Julison, director of building and maintenance, drew up the plans. No architect will be involved because the only structural change needed is an extra doorway.

"The plans are our idea of a drop-in center," said Tom Cooper, park director. "When we get out of here is when we'll really start the work." Cooper said then the committee members of Young At Heart Club, the district's senior citizen group, will be called in to help select equipment.

THE KITCHEN equipment, valued at approximately $1,600, was donated by the Illinois Range Co. office in Mount Prospect. Other furnishings for the center will be paid for with park district funds. However, Paul Caldwell, assistant park director, said any donations would be appreciated.

The idea to provide a center for senior citizens came in December. Park district officials wanted a center for the 70 members of the Young At Heart Club that meets every Monday. Caldwell said the district wanted to provide a place for them that would be open more than once a week. Hours have not yet been set for the center.

The district then invited the Extensioners, another local senior citizen group, to consider the possibility of sharing the center. However, members of that group are worried about transportation to the community center and about the rooms being too small.

The center will remain under the jurisdiction and be staffed by the park district. It will be open to all senior citizens living in the park district, which includes a major portion of Mount Prospect, the eighth ward in Des Plaines, and small sections of Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

MORE THAN 100 different exhibit were set up Friday at the annual St. Paul Lutheran School science fair. Hopefuls View Home-Rule Provision

This is the ninth part of a continuing newspaper debate among the Mount Prospect Village Board April 1.

The constitution proposed in the referendum is the subject of the debate. The board will vote on the referendum on April 1.

The board members are: Anderson, Richard, Hendricks, Kenneth, and Scuderi. They are all in favor of the referendum. They believe it will give the citizens more control over their own government.

Question Nine: What are some of the ways that you think the home rule provision of the new state constitution may help or hinder local government and Mount Prospect?

ANDERSON: The new constitution adopted by the voters on December 1, 1969, takes effect on January 1, 1971. The new home rule provision can be a means for putting in a new government structure to cope with the growing problems of the community. The board does not intend to interfere. The new government can continue with the same services and divide cost among the citizens.

Also the constitution allows the county to classify properties into different classes, making it possible to assess industrial, commercial and residential at different rates in return reflecting a possible new Mount Prospect.

However, if the voters are given an opportunity to choose a new form of government, they will have to decide whether they want to move to a new form of government.

HENDRICKS: The new constitution will give the citizens the right to elect a mayor and a board of trustees. This will give the citizens more control over their own government. The board will have to decide whether they want to move to a new form of government.

MONROE: The home rule provision can be a means for putting in a new government structure to cope with the growing problems of the community. The board does not intend to interfere. The new government can continue with the same services and divide cost among the citizens.

SCUDERI: The new constitution will give the citizens the right to elect a mayor and a board of trustees. This will give the citizens more control over their own government. The board will have to decide whether they want to move to a new form of government.

NORRIS: The new constitution will give the citizens the right to elect a mayor and a board of trustees. This will give the citizens more control over their own government. The board will have to decide whether they want to move to a new form of government.

Hersey Band To March At All-Star Game

The John Hersey High School Marching Band has accepted an invitation to perform at the half time of the All Star Football Game July 30 at Soldiers Field in Chicago.

This year's game will pit the Baltimore Colts against the Chicago Bears. It will be the first time that an Illinois band will perform in the sports classic. Tradition calls for the half time entertainment to be provided by bands from outside the Midwest.

Donald Caneva, band director, said he received the invitation from George Strickler of the Chicago Tribune. In his search for an outstanding band, Strickler called three or four "Big 10" university band directors and all of them mentioned the Hersey band as one of the finest in the country.

"OUR BAND men have been invited to the Soldiers Field on the two evenings prior to the game to rehearse and meet the members of the teams. A crowd of approximately 70,000 will be on hand to witness the game and it will also be televised nationally.

We intend to put on a truly unique show which will include dramatic lighting effects on the hats of the individual bandmen and strobe lighting effects from the sidelines," said Caneva. "I expect it to be one of the most rewarding experiences that the students have had."

Prior to their performance at Soldiers Field, the Hersey band will travel to Virginia Beach, Va. to compete in the national band competition there. They will also compete in the Midwest Music Festival in Plainfield, Ill. where they are the defending champions.

District Found To Be 'In Shape'

A visitation team from the state office of the superintendent of public instruction, OSPI, found Mount Prospect District "in excellent shape," according to Asst. Supt. Richard Percy.

Percy and Tuesday the 2 member team found this district to be one of the better ones they had viewed this year. They were most complimentary.

Dist. 7, which serves northern and central Mount Prospect will not receive a written report on recommendations for 60 or 90 days, according to Percy.

The team has been checking area schools to see if they met state requirements. Last week the team visited schools in Elk Grove Dist. 59. Such visits are required by state law every three years. However, Percy said the last time OSPI came to visit was six or seven years ago.

Burglary Is Reported

About $20 in cash and a stereo tape were reportedly stolen Monday night from the Gustav Lattig residence, 1510 E. Flayer St., Mount Prospect.

Lattig told police 20 Kennedy half dollars and a $10 bill were stolen from an end table in the living room.

Police said burglars gained entry to the house by prying open the back door. Lattig discovered the theft when he returned home at about 9:30 p.m.

At Least 23 Teachers Cut

Major School Cuts; Dwyer To Be Closed

Sweeping cuts in the educational programs of Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 were announced by the board of education last night.

Included is the elimination of at least 23 teachers, the closing of Dwyer School, and termination of the junior high school French language program.

The entire district instrumental program meanwhile hangs on a decision of the Illinois Supreme Court on the constitutionality of corporate personal property taxes, which provide $200,000 in revenue to the district.

If the music program is dropped, nine more teaching positions will be empty.

In what Board President Theodore Seiler called "an agonizing decision," the panel also dropped eight administrative and consultant positions, one nurse, one psychologist, all library book processors in the central office, and lunchroom supervisors.

CLERICAL WORKERS for team teachers are to be reduced in number.

Students who are currently in the Dwyer School attendance area will be moved to Westgate School, and Dwyer will be rented to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization for use as a special education center.

Among the teaching positions dropped are two local music and two physical education teachers.

If the Supreme Court rules personal property taxes for corporations constitutional, the instrumental music program will remain if the decision comes in time to rehire teachers for the program.

Supt. Donald Strong told the board many of the personnel reductions will be the result of not refilling positions that would open because of normal resignations.

He added, however, that a few teachers will have to be "honorably terminated."

BOARD MEMBER Robert Powell called the action "the most painful experience I've had in the school business. We made some effort in the referendum to explain our problems to the community and it is unfortunate that we were not successful."

He was referring to a recent tax rate increase proposal overwhelmingly defeated by voters. In the wake of the referendum defeat, parents appealed to the board not to make education cuts, but to trim the budget in the area of teacher salaries.

That was promptly termed "ludicrous" by representatives of the teachers.

At the end of the meeting last night, Strong told the board "I know that all of us in the professional staff will do the best we can to keep this school system the best we know how. We will all do our jobs, and though the price in people is high, I'm sure the best we can do will as always be exceptional."

Elimination of book processors will mean that all school library work will have to be done at the local schools. Termination of lunchroom supervision is part of school district encouragement to have more students eat lunch at home rather than at school.

Bennett Attacks Caucus Slate

During the next-to-last whistle stop on the long road to Tuesday's election, incumbent Charles Bennett shipped and fell into the mud Tuesday night.

During the three to four weeks of campaigning, some of the other candidates have engaged in personal attacks while Bennett has answered charges, but not taken an initiative in the political tactic.

However, Tuesday night Bennett had apparently reached the end of his rope and openly attacked the candidates on the Caucus Party slate which is opposing Bennett and the other members of the Village Party slate.

Addressing the audience at the meeting which was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area, Bennett started off with a cordial congratulatory to league members on their 50th anniversary and praise of the group's activities.

THE FOUR-YEAR veteran of the Village Board then said the Caucus Party candidates "have attacked my record and personal integrity, the demonstrated records of my fellow Village Party candidates and the records of all Village administrations past."

"While the name Chuck Bennett has been a principal target of their negative attack, I have, until tonight... until tonight... avoided directing my remarks to specific opposition candidates. I would like to pose a few questions to each of these New Caucus candidates."

Directing his attention to Caucus candidate John Collins, Bennett said the Caucus candidate cites Lexington Mass., and East Brunswick, N.J., "as examples of his planning abilities and effectiveness in encouraging new industrial development."

"Mr. Collins was so spectacular the newspapers in those towns don't even remember him. East Brunswick's Mayor Sheehan's office doesn't recall his participation in attracting new industry or his expertise in developing any new comprehensive plan," Bennett said. He added that the two communities do have industry but asked "just what part of Arlington Heights would you turn into another Rosemont or another Schiller Park?"

BENNETT THEN turned his attention to Caucus Candidate Eugene Griffin and said, "I would ask Mr. Griffin to clarify his position in the Daley machine in Chicago. Does this explain his reluctance to take a firm position on low and moderate income housing in Arlington Heights?"

Election '71

The incumbent candidate continued by suggesting that if Caucus candidate Theodore Salinsky had all the foresight he claims, then Salinsky should be serving as the right hand of a famous clairvoyant, Jean Dixon.

Bennett then accused three of the candidates, Kenneth Banet, Salinsky and Collins with changing the "absolute positions" of opposing moderate-income projects they expressed during the Caucus slating meeting in January. Bennett asked if their statements at that meeting "would in any way jeopardize the village's legal position should they be elected and voted as they stated (then) they would?"

BENNETT THEN attacked the Caucus Party's use of phrases like "we've heard" and "it is rumored" during their campaign.

The incumbent then charged that "I have heard rumors, too." Among those rumors was that Griffin plans to remove members of the village administration when the Caucus slate wins the election. "Do you propose to introduce patronage politics into our village government?" Bennett asked.

Turning his attention to Banet, the incumbent said that if Banet was really so concerned about the high number of apartments in the village then why did he choose a home which is "not more than a block or so in all directions from then existing apartments and/or land zoned" for apartments, Bennett said.

Speaking about Collins who has strongly opposed the utility tax, Bennett said the Caucus candidate had used "economic theories and figure manipulations" in his speeches.

BENNETT THEN said that Salinsky

An error appeared in the headline on page 4 of yesterday's Arlington Heights Herald.

The headline over the second part of an interview with Village Board candidate Theodore Salinsky read "Salinsky Sick of Caucus Party Accusations." The first part of the article was on page 1 and the interview continued to page 4.

The headline should have read, "Salinsky Sick of Village Party Accusations." Salinsky is a member of the Community Caucus Party slate which is opposed in Tuesday's election by four candidates running on the Village Party slate.

Meet The Candidates For Library Board

See Pages 6, 7

Candidates To Make Last Plea Tonight

Today's candidates night will probably mark the last chance for Arlington Heights Park Board candidates and probably the only chance for Arlington Heights Library Board candidates to present speeches before Tuesday's election.

A candidates' night sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Mount Prospect-Arlington Heights area will begin at 7:45 p.m. in the gymnasium at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights.

In addition to park and library board candidates, the session will include candidates for the Elementary School Dist. 25 board of education, the High School Dist. 214 board of education and the Harper College Board.

School candidates will be speaking first because some of them have another forum to attend the same evening.

The school elections will be held April 10. Candidates who have been invited to tonight's session include the three people running for the three seats on the Dist. 25 board, the six people running for the two seats on the Dist. 214 board and the eight people running for three seats on the Harper Board.

After the school candidates speak, the candidates for the Arlington Heights Park Board and Library Board will speak. Candidates who have been invited include the 10 people who are running for the two seats on the park board and the six people who are running for the four seats on the library board.

The election for these board positions will be held Tuesday, the same day as the election of four people to the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The meeting is open to the public and members of the audience will be allowed to ask some questions of the candidates. The event is sponsored by the league as a voter-service project.

Complaint Leads To Arrest Of 3

Two men from Palatine and one from Grayslake, Ill., were arrested on a variety of charges Sunday night following a complaint from an Arlington Heights gas station attendant.

Arrested were Gary Mathis, 20, of Rte. 83, Grayslake, the driver of the car; Martin W. Krenzke, 23, of 154 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine; and Thomas Deuel, 17, of 104 N. Wilke Rd., Palatine.

Arlington Heights police said the men were arrested about 20 minutes after a complaint from the attendant at the Arlington Park Shell Service station.

The attendant told police the driver of the car pulled away from the pumps while the nozzle was still in the tank, causing damage to the pump. He also said the driver did not pay for the 70 cents gas received.

The three were charged with theft, criminal damage to property, possession of open liquor and possession of a hypodermic needle. Mathis was also charged with driving while intoxicated and failure to signal a turn.

Krenzke and Deuel were released on bond Monday. Mathis was reportedly unable to post $5,000 bond and was taken to the Cook County Jail.

Three juveniles in the car were released in the custody of their parents.

Resident Raps 'Adults Only' Pool Time

At least one adult is unhappy with the Arlington Heights Park District's proposal to have "adults only" time every weeknight this summer at the five outdoor swimming pools.

Mrs. Vincent Cunningham, 802 N. Harvard Ave., told the park board Saturday the adult-only time was "defeating the purpose of the park district. It's the youngsters you're trying to keep busy in this town."

The district is planning to offer an adult-only time from 6:30 to 8 p.m. every weekday at all the five outdoor swimming pools.

During this time, only swimmers 18 years old or older will be admitted to the pools.

From 8 to 9:30 p.m., the pools will be open for general recreational swimming. Also, the wading pools will be open during the adult swimming hours, including during the adult swimming times.

Mrs. Cunningham told board members during their rescheduled regular meeting Saturday, she disagreed with the proposal because the number of days for adults nights was so high. She said she could understand occasional adult nights, but disagreed with offering the "adult only" time every night of the week and at all the five outdoor pools.

THE RESIDENT TOLD board members that closing the pools to people under 18 years old didn't make sense and, "you wonder why there's so much vandalism."

Board president Charles Cronin said, "If we took a vote on each issue, then we'd know what people thought. We want to do what people want. This is an experimental program."

Recreation supervisor Jack Peleck

said yesterday the proposal would be tried this summer because "adult only" times were so popular last summer. The program may be cut back if park district staff members find people aren't using the time. Peleck said. The adult only time will be tried for at least the first few weeks of the summer, he said.

At Saturday's meeting, Cronin used one of his off-beat phrases when citizens complain. He told Mrs. Cunningham, "We appreciate hearing your views and we'll take it into consideration," he said.

BOARD MEMBER Edward Condon

told Mrs. Cunningham the program was "not that rigid. If it doesn't work, we'll change it." He also said it would take "quite a while" to determine if the program would be popular because it takes a while "for people to learn about it. We don't know if it'll work unless we try it."

Mrs. Cunningham said she had read about the adult-only time in the Herald last week and then called at least 10 people about it. She said many of the people agreed with her views and added, "I'm not dropping it here. A lot more people will be upset when they learn about this."

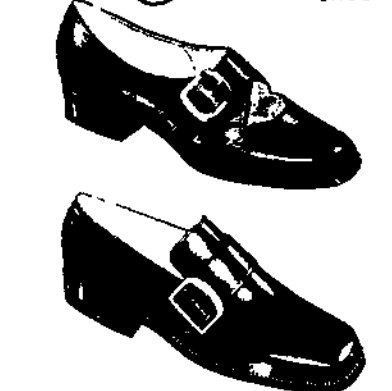

The resident said it would be more practical for adult times to be offered at different locations during the week. This way, an adult "who wants to swim that badly can drive to another park," she said.

Cronin thanked Mrs. Cunningham for her comments and then said the board had other business to discuss.

April 15 Is Drug Abuse Plan Meet

The date for presentation of a master plan to combat drug abuse in Arlington Heights has been changed to April 15.

Originally scheduled for April 8, the meeting will be held one week later at the Hersey High School Auditorium, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. The public meeting will begin at 7:40 p.m.

The master plan of coordinated solutions to the drug abuse problem has been developed over the last four or five months since the beginning meetings of the Community Action Program started last fall.

Interested residents have been invited to attend the meeting to show their support for the various programs. During the Community Action Program, residents have studied the problems which cause drug abuse and have worked on proposing programs which would help solve these problems.

THE PROGRAM IS coordinated by Robert Willford, a clinical psychologist on the staff of Forest Hospital, a private psychiatric hospital in Des Plaines. The Arlington Heights Village Board hired Willford and the hospital staff to conduct the program. The cost of it is not to exceed $9,000.

In addition to presentation of the master plan, the meeting will include the selection of a coordinator of the plan, responsible for working out the details of the plan with the various committees formed last fall.

The committees include school principals, elected leaders, clergymen, service clubs, homeowners' associations, parent-teacher organizations, special interest groups, students, lawyers and others.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh sent letters to committee chairmen asking them to attend the April 15 meeting. Walsh wrote, "This meeting is open to the general public, and you are requested to bring family and friends — as many as possible — so that the base of support will be as community-wide as possible. I cannot overstate the value of your attendance at this final general meeting."

The date of the meeting was changed from April 8 to April 15 because the earlier date conflicted with the activities of Easter and Holy Week.

Keller Really Didn't Break Camera

When Arlington Heights Park Board candidate Jerome Keller was introduced to a meeting of election judges this week, he told the audience, "I'm the only park board candidate who broke the newspaper's camera."

Keller's picture was inadvertently omitted Monday when the Herald printed interviews with the four candidates who are seeking the four-year term on the park board. Pictures of the other three candidates were printed with the interviews.

Two members of the park board will be chosen in the election Tuesday. One person will be elected for an unexpired four-year term and one for a full six-year term.

In addition to Keller who lives at 2007 N. Kennicott Dr., candidates for the four-year term are Richard Konrad, 503 W. Haven Dr.; William Meister, 133 Rammer Ave.; and Ronald Riba, 16 W. Canterbury Dr.

Candidates for the six-year term are Lewis O'Donnell, 315 Kimber Ln.; Robert Stenzel, 310 S. Dwyer Ave.; William Heise, 628 S. Walnut Ave.; William Schumann, 1104 W. Derbyshire Dr.; David Griffin, 308 N. Windsor Dr.; and Marcia Troch, 1011 Brookwood Dr.

Hersey High To Present 'Hello Dolly'

One of Broadway's most successful musicals, "Hello Dolly," is being staged this week by the John Hersey High School fine arts department.

Performances will continue through Saturday at the school's theater beginning at 8 p.m.

Reserved seats, on sale for $2, can be purchased by contacting the school office, at 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

The play, which holds the record for longest Broadway run in history, is directed by Jerry Lowe, Hersey theater director.

Bonnie Bowker and Jack O'Connor are in the starring roles in the musical which centers around a poor girl's struggles to make good in the theatrical world. "Dolly," played by Miss Bowker, becomes a star and marries "Vandergelder," a millionaire, played by O'Connor.

The 50-member cast has been rehearsing for the production since February. The dance routines were directed by Betty Clayton and the singing by choral director Charles Jenks. Assistant director is Joan Sandberg. The technical director is Marian Davis.

'Sweet Charity' Performance Set

The musical "Sweet Charity" will be performed this weekend by the drama department at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

Tickets are $1.50 per person for performances at 7:30 p.m. tonight and at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the little theater at 2121 S. Goebbert Rd.

Stars in the cast are Becky Hysel and Cheryl Jorgensen as Charity, John Tofilon and Gary Douglas as Oscar and Nancy Guagilone and Debbie DeFlavio as Nicki. Drama director is Judy Ross and Joseph Hammond is student director. Costumes were made by Andrea Mock.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling the school.

Kindergarten Registration Set

Parents whose children will be entering kindergarten in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 next fall should start making doctor's and dentist's appointments now.

The school district has announced a schedule for kindergarten registration for May. To register a child must have a copy of an official birth certificate, a record of a physical examination and dental examination completed since Jan. 1 and current immunization records.

To enter kindergarten in the fall, a child must be five years old on or before Dec. 2, 1971.

Kindergarten roundups will be held on one day in May for all elementary schools in the district except Olive School. Registration at Olive will be the week of May 24.

Dates for other schools are May 10, North; May 11, Ridge; May 11, Wilson; May 12, Patton; May 13, Kensington; May 14, Windsor; May 17, Park; May 19 Dwyer; May 20, Dryden; May 21, Dunton; May 24, Berkley; May 25, Greenbrier and May 26, Ivy Hill.

Registration will be spread throughout the day by alphabetical order. Questions about registration should be referred to the schools or to district Administration Building, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights, phone CL 3-6100.

Bennett Attacks Caucus Party Slate

gets very upset when I suggest six of the 19 hurry up campaign pledges would cost an estimated $17 million. Bennett said he has been questioned about the estimated cost and then said, "but then any way you want to Mr. Salinsky, it still adds up to a hell of a lot of money."

Absentee Ballots Are Available

Voters who plan to be out of town for Tuesday's election may vote by absentee ballot through Saturday, the final deadline.

Applications for absentee voting and ballots for Arlington Heights village board and library board candidates are available in the village clerk's office on the first floor of the municipal building, 135 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

The village clerk's office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both today and tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Voters who want to cast ballots for the Arlington Heights Park Board candidates must apply for these ballots at the park district's administration offices in Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave. The office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Park District Pet Show Set

A pet show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights.

Residents interested in entering their dog, cat, parakeet, fish or other pets in the show should contact Richard Seibert, 135 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Entrance fees or price for people who attend the show will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. Fee for pet show is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

the Caucus Party with a modern-day Christopher Columbus. Bennett told the audience, "You know he too, set out for something he never knew existed. When he returned he had no idea of where he had been. And he accomplished this all on borrowed money."

Later in the program, Salinsky said Bennett's comments "show me a man with panic in his voice" and added he would not "honor" Bennett's charges by answering them. Salinsky then said, "If you can't stand the heat, Mr. Bennett, then get out of the kitchen." The audience applauded loudly after Salinsky's comment.

During the question and answer portion of the program, Griffin was called upon to answer a question and took the opportunity to say that Bennett had "violated the rules of civil society" by the charges.

SAYING THAT Bennett was "mud-slinging and using gutter politics."

Griffin said he had no connection with the Daley machine "whatever that is." He added that he had the "highest respect" for the present village employees and denied Bennett's charge about these employees being fired if the Caucus slate was elected.

Griffin said Bennett's charges were merely rumors which were "only floating around in his head and believe me, they've got a lot of room to float around in."

"I believe tonight that Mr. Bennett has blown his integrity and blown the election," Griffin added.

Answering Bennett's charge to clarify his position on low-income housing, Griffin said that if any low or moderate income housing development is ever built in the village, "it will be built under our standards and our regulations."

When Griffin was through speaking, Bennett stood up and said, "Thank you, Mr. Griffin, I accept your answer."

Melroy: Opposes Mandatory Borrowing

When Robert Melroy decided to move from his home in the Hasbrook subdivision to a new one in Surrey Ridge West, he and his family also made the decision to make Arlington Heights their permanent home.

And serving on the Board of Directors of the library is one way he sees to serve his community, he said.

Melroy was appointed to the library board in June, 1970, to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Francis Higgins. Now he is running for a four-year term on the board.

He is a lawyer and during his tenure on the board has become involved in the problems of the library — especially the question of reciprocal borrowing.

Reciprocal borrowing is a program that would allow any library cardholder in any of the 31 libraries in the North Suburban Library System to check books out from any other library in the system. Last week the library board here voted not to participate in any reciprocal borrowing program.

"I don't disagree with the principle of reciprocal borrowing so long as it is not to the detriment of the people whose library it is," he explained recently.

However, he said, probably only a small proportion of Arlington Heights library users would benefit from reciprocal borrowing and many of the residents of surrounding communities with weak libraries might drain the Arlington Heights library.

IN ADDITION, he said he is completely opposed to having the system make reciprocal borrowing mandatory for membership in the system. "If we allow that we are effectively giving up our responsibility to the village and becoming an instrument of the system," he said.

If the system or the state library makes reciprocal borrowing mandatory, he said, the library should withdraw even if it meant giving up some benefits.

"I think there are other ways to obtain the benefits without the system with contractual arrangements with libraries and things like that," he said.

If, as a member of the board, he were ever faced with complaints about the types of books or magazines in the collection, he said he would reply that the library should be balanced and purchases should be decided on by professional librarians with the guidance of the library board.

"We have qualified people who have the responsibility for selecting our materials. As a board I think we would be remiss if we started qualifying book by book what they can and cannot purchase," he said.

Another problem he sees facing the library in the next few years is the perennial one of growth.

"There is a question of how we will expand to meet the needs of the village.

Robert Melroy

We may expand the building, or go to branch libraries or use bookmobiles," he said.

HE ADDED THAT he does not know now the detailed problems in bookmobiles, but added, "I would project a review of mobile units in the very near future."

The important thing, he said, is to expand and improve the present library services. "We have a fine library facility and I think it should be maintained," he said.

Barron: No Library Politics

Branson Barron has been a resident of Arlington Heights for 14 years, but his voice still carries evidence of his origins in the state of Georgia.

In his southern drawl, Barron describes himself as "one of the library's best patrons over the years."

Now, Barron is a candidate for the Arlington Heights Library Board of Directors. He is opposing incumbent Robert Melroy for a four-year seat on the board.

He said he has always been interested in the library and since he retired in August from his job as manager in general accounting for Union Oil Co., he has decided he would like to serve the library.

"I know very little about the operation, but I have attended a library board meeting and I had a lot of questions," he said.

One thing he has found out about since he became a candidate is the issue of reciprocal borrowing, which would allow library cardholders from other libraries to use the Arlington Heights library and vice versa.

"WHILE I COULD agree with the philosophy, I don't agree with the present thinking on compensation. We probably stand right at the top in libraries in this area and we should be compensated for that," he said.

He added that if reciprocal borrowing should become mandatory for membership in the North Suburban Library System, the Arlington Heights library should withdraw even though the library gets benefits from the system.

Barron also said he wants to see the library stay out of politics, whether in the use of its facilities like the Dunton Room or its choice of books.

If anyone should ever complain to him about books on the shelves, he said he would stay in the middle of the road.

"If we tried to orient the library toward the feelings of the population that would be sort of variegated, like a chameleon or a plaid coat," he said. "We should keep a good cross-section of things."

Castor: Close To The Libraries

As superintendent of Palatine School Dist. 15, E. S. (Pat) Castor worked with elected officials constantly.

Now that he has retired from the district, he has decided to change his role and is running for a six-year term on the Board of Directors of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

"After 34 years in public service, even though I retired voluntarily, I still feel I want to continue and keep in touch," he said.

Castor served Dist. 15, as principal, assistant superintendent and superintendent for 17 years and now, he said, he wants to serve the village that has been his home all that time — Arlington Heights.

"I have had experience and background that has put me close to libraries," he said, "and I feel the library board is something I can handle and have time for without it swallowing me."

He had heard discussion of reciprocal borrowing plans while he was in the school district and working with the Palatine library, he said.

A RECIPROCAL borrowing plan turned down recently by the Arlington Heights board would have allowed any library cardholder from 31 libraries in the North Suburban Library System to check books out of any other library in the system.

"Libraries do have obligations to their own people," Castor said, "but if they can help their neighbors that is good too."

He said he thought details could be worked out to make reciprocal borrowing more acceptable to libraries like Arlington Heights. "It always bothers me when an organizational pattern is superimposed on people. Rules should be livable."

If anyone complained about specific books in the Arlington Heights collection, he said, he would tell them, "they have a perfect right to object, but they should not dictate what someone else reads."

He said he has used the library a great deal since his retirement. "It's been such a relief to go to the library and get books that aren't professional books," he said.

He said libraries can provide services for children which complement the schools because they "provide for places for children to read when they are not in school."

He said he is pleased with a general trend in which librarians and teachers get together, share common problems and respect each other's work.

HE ADDED THAT the problem of a growing library getting cramped for space is a continuing problem, just as are the growth problems in the schools.

He said when his staff moved into the

E. S. Castor

Dist. 15 administration building they were delighted with the space and then, after a few years, it began to seem cramped.

"Then you always wonder how you could get along with less space," he said.

The Arlington Heights library should plan carefully for these problems as they arise, he said, but he continues to be delighted with the building.

"I remember when I first went inside that new library. I thought to myself that schools ought to look like that," he said.

Ley: Form Plans For The Future

The one candidate for the Arlington Heights Library Board who is sure that he will be serving for the next two years is Roland Ley.

Ley, who was appointed to the board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of George (Bud) Beacham, is running unopposed for a two-year term on the board.

Since he joined the board in August, Ley has been an active board member, getting ideas for planning for the future and recently sponsoring a change in the Dunton Room policy.

Since the new library opened three years ago, the Dunton Room, a meeting room with 90 seats, has been open for public meetings but closed to political and religious organizations.

THE CHANGE Ley proposed, which had been turned down by previous library boards, opened the room to religious and political groups and brought the policy in line with the American Library Association Bill of Rights.

"I just hope it results in the Dunton Room being used more. The new policy should result in the room being wide open now," he said.

The main thing the library board should be doing now, he said, is forming plans for the future. "We know the physical facility will be adequate until about 1974 or 1975. Now is the time to do some serious thinking about the future, when we are not under pressure," he said.

Roland Ley

One area of change might involve closer cooperation between the library and local schools, he said. Eventually the library might set up branches in school for use by students during the day and the public after school, he added.

In addition, he said the library should start considering expanding services with a bookmobile in the near future.

DURING RECENT library board debate on reciprocal borrowing within the North Suburban Library System (NSLS) Ley voted with the majority not to participate in reciprocal borrowing at this time.

He also made a motion, which the board passed, supporting the concept of reciprocal borrowing at some future time.

He said he believes the NSLS should devote itself to building up strength in local libraries before it worries further about reciprocal borrowing.

"I am concerned that the system will exert undue influence on local libraries so they become financially dependent on the system. There is a potential for state domination in the system," he said.

If libraries in neighboring communities build themselves up, Ley added, "I can visualize circumstances where it would be good to take part in reciprocal borrowing."

If library patrons ever complained to him about books in the collection he said, he would refer them to the library's book selection policy and would then read the book in question to see if it violated the policy.

"Unless I found that book to be clearly in violation of the policy, I would not interfere with the professional judgment of the people we hire to make those determinations," he said.

Students Today: They Want To Make Life Meaningful

State Supreme Court Bars MSD Rehearing Request

by ROBERT CASEY
The Illinois Supreme Court yesterday denied a request by the City of Des Plaines for rehearing of a decision that allows construction of a sewage treatment plant on the city's west side.

The MSD and in January the supreme court announced its ruling, saying the MSD's powers of condemnation would be hampered if it had to follow local zoning rules.

School Chiefs: 'Tax Rule Upsetting'

by LEON SHURE
If the Illinois Supreme Court upholds a Circuit Court decision declaring the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional, three school districts serving Des Plaines residents could lose approximately $2 million in taxes next year.

declared the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional because the levy violated the "equal protection clause" of the U.S. and state constitutions.

72 school year are now being held. District projections made public earlier this year show that a 28 cent increase in the tax rate — from the present rate of $1.63 to $1.91 per $100 assessed real estate evaluation — would be needed by 1972, just to cover school costs.

If the decision stands, and no other revenue is provided by the state, the district's efforts to "hold the line" on tax rates might be affected, he said.

Crane: Need Stimulus Of Young

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane R-13th Dist., sounded more like a history professor than a politician as he spoke to students at Forest View School in Arlington Heights.

An audience of approximately 2,800 students heard Crane, former history college professor, cite examples from American, world and ancient history to emphasize his views on the state of the problems in this country.

"We have to salvage what is best out of the historic tradition instead of running the risk of falling like the Roman empire," he told students Monday. "We have in our country people who want to destroy our institutions because of lack of understanding of those institutions and historic principles. And these people are not necessarily young people."

Long-haired, short-haired, blue-jeaned and dress-up teens listened as Crane explained. "There is no real generation gap when it comes to working together to find the solution to problems."

The contribution of any generation must stand on the shoulders of giants who have gone before us," he said.

"These are not new problems. Every one has had to live with them. But each generation does an insufficient job, and each will do an insufficient job because we're something less than angels."

"We need the stimulus of the younger generation to take a fresh look at the problems," he said. "But apathy is the biggest problem."

The congressman told students to "go to work for the party of their choice. Ring doorbells in your precinct."

When Norman Patberg, assistant principal, introduced the speaker he reminded the audience that Crane would be seeking re-election in 1972, "probably when most of you will be able to vote."

Crane's speech also touched on religion as he tried to correlate the origin of laws with the Ten Commandments.

As the gym emptied, several students rushed up to shake the Congressman's hand. One girl remarked to her friend, "He was good, but it's too bad everyone else didn't appreciate it. They were rude." Most of the audience started to squirm by the half-way mark of the 50-minute speech.

"OUR PROBLEMS GROW out of past experience," U. View High School in Arlington Heights. Crane gave his S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-13th, told students at Forest views on the present state of society.

There were others who didn't seem too enthused about what Crane had to say. "What he said about getting involved was good," said one female student. "But he shouldn't have dwelled on it and brought a little more relevant points into the speech."

"I didn't understand it," said one boy. "I think what he said went over most of the kids' heads, and he took too long to say it."

Crane said he spoke to the assembly because "I want any chance I can to speak to young people." He said he has recently spoken at other high schools in northern suburbs and also spoke at Harper Junior College in Palatine Monday.

Crane Tells Who Shouldn't Be On School Boards

by STEVE NOVICK

Students, teachers and school administrators don't belong on boards of education, Rep. Philip Crane (13th) and Elk Grove Township GOP Committeeman Carl Hansen said Tuesday.

Their comments, which Hansen said did not represent any official GOP stance, were made as an appeal to Elk Grove Township Republican Organization members.

"We can't condone having those matriculating in the schools involved in the machine of decision making," Hansen said.

"It is no help putting those spending money or on the receiving end on policy-making councils," he added.

Crane, at the meeting to pass out service citations, added, "As a former educator I assure you there's no more vital element than the school boards."

School board members can be "more important than who sits in the White House," Crane added.

"Lose one generation of your children and you stand to lose all the great institutions of our country," Crane said.

He defined school board members as policy makers, administrators as those selected to carry out the policy; teachers as employees, and students as young people given the privilege of receiving an education.

Hour-Long Lunch Is Bringing Happiness, Profit

Lunch has become an hour-long affair at Elk Grove High School and the trial plan seems to be meeting approval from students, teachers, administrators and local food service businesses.

Students and teachers are usually provided with a 25 minute lunch period but the hour-long lunch was instituted last week for a three week trial.

The plan is to implement it into the regular operation of the school next year if it works during this time, Robert Haskell, principal, said.

Several other schools in Dist. 211 already have the longer lunch time, he said.

"It allows students to break routine and get out and get some fresh air. They have a longer period to eat, or a chance to go home and eat with parents," Haskell said, listing the advantages.

"THOSE ARE the good parts. I don't know the bad parts of it yet. Things are going so well right now," he said.

Meanwhile the drive-in restaurants, snack shops and carry out businesses have increased their lunch-time business and record no complaints over a noon avalanche of teens.

Asked if he noticed any additional teenage patrons at noon, Pat O'Malley, manager of Corky's in the Grove Shopping Center said, "You don't have half the school come in here and not notice it." He added, "They've been real well behaved—excellent."

Other places receiving additional business since the one-hour lunch began, include Chicken Unlimited on Devon Avenue, and McDonalds on Higgins Road.

Edward Schneider, manager at Chicken Unlimited commented, "The youngsters are great. They are very orderly."

JACK CARTER, general manager at McDonalds, said he couldn't tell how many more people were coming in since the change but there were definitely more students there. He added that he saw no drawbacks in the program. "It's good from the business viewpoint, anyway," he said.

The cafeteria is crowded, since students who were split into four groups for eating before are now divided into only two. However, it is not overcrowded, according to Haskell.

He added, "Sales are down in the cafeteria. How much I don't know yet. Ours was one of the schools in the district with the largest sales prior to this."

THE TEACHERS seem to advocate the idea, with one calling it "delightful." Another pointed out "the halls are quieter."

Even some parents have commented in favor of the program, according to Haskell. He said several parents he talked with enjoyed having their children come home for lunch.

"It gives the students more time to socialize. For some of them it is the only time they get to see their friends," said George Erickson, instructor.

How do the students feel? Some of them like the longer time to just sit, eat, and talk. Others use it to study or work in the library. Many of them, however, were "out to lunch."

Humanities Learned: The Upside Down Way

by JUDY MEHL

Humanities students at Elk Grove High School have taken an upside down approach to things in efforts to better relate the arts to one another and themselves.

Last month the students were found lying on the floor painting on cardboard, taped to the bottom of desks. They were experiencing the problems faced by Michelangelo when he was working on the Sistine Chapel ceiling.

Each day students can be found in the humanities center working on a special area of interest or arguing about things such as "What is the ideal tree?" or "What is art?"

It is all part of what Richard Calisch calls the "exciting concept of the humanities division."

The division, more traditionally known as the English and fine arts division, has expanded in the last few years, starting earlier than the other schools in High School Dist. 211 and progressing further, according to Calisch, division head.

The division has three functions according to Calisch.

First is to offer courses in the English and fine arts disciplines. Next semester the school will be offering 85 courses, 71 of which are English or literature courses. Calisch considers this the most important phase of the division function.

BUT HE ALSO takes pride in the development of the other two phases which began when the school opened in 1966. One is the operation of a humanities center. It is a library, resource room, listening room, record and slide library, art gallery and social center for those people interested in the humanities, he said.

The center has 400 albums, 1,500 books and art reproductions and slides. Students can obtain special permission to use the center.

The third function of the division is the operation of the humanities forum. The forum includes the traditional non-class activities such as producing plays and concerts, but also offers a wide variety of extra trips, guest appearances and movies.

The 40 or 50 events planned for humanities week, a month long art festival, are only an example of the extent of the humanities forum. More than 40 other events have been held throughout the year.

Humanities Week began in 1967 as a five day week of musical programs and art exhibits. Three years ago it began to grow into almost a month of activities. Calisch is working towards the day when humanities week will be a year-long program.

This year it begins April 23 and includes jazz band and other musical concerts, guest appearances by a poet, architect, actress, musician and ballet dancer. It will include an architectural tour of Chicago, a study in rhythm, a serenade in brass, an ice cream social and fashion show and other events through May 24.

SOME OF THE programs and displays will be results of semester projects done as part of the humanities class, another concept which first started at Elk Grove High School and has spread to others in the district, Calisch said.

The class meets two hours a day and has a team of four teachers of art, music and literature. Its purpose is to provide a study of the relationship of the arts to the past and present, to each other and to the students taking the course.

It is here where the students learned what it is like to paint lying on their backs, to play Mozart on homemade instruments, and to be creative in other media.

"The class is in its fourth year at the school and others come to us for advice," Calisch said.

The class revolves around three questions. They are, "What has man thought and felt about himself?" "How has he expressed those thoughts and feelings?" and, "How do these thoughts and feelings affect man today?"

We read books not to discover pieces of literature but ideas," Calisch said. "One of the main purposes is to teach appreciation and to tempt them to go further," he said.

The class has met with an "excellent response," and is "emotionally charged," according to Calisch, one of the instructors.

He said, "The most unique thing about it is the idea that music, English and art, are all parts of the same thing, of life, of education, and all make specific contributions but all together they make an even bigger contribution."

Man Charged With Disorderly Conduct

A Northlake man was charged with two counts of disorderly conduct last week by Des Plaines police in connection with two incidents where he allegedly exposed himself in the parking lot of a local office building.

The man, Frank J. Bogdan, 42 of 405 W. Prater, Northlake, was released on $1,000 bond and will appear on the charges May 7 in Des Plaines court.

Police said Bogdan was arrested by Rosemont police after a secretary who had witnessed the two exposure incidents in November and February reported that Bogdan had been seen in a parking lot at 2350 Devon Ave.

Happy April Fool's Day. And now on to some foolishness:

OTHER THAN THE fact that my body is beginning to resemble a crossword puzzle with all my new bruises, my fencing lessons are going just fine. Two weeks ago class was called off because of the massive power failure that hit Park Ridge (the class is at Main South High School).

Our instructor, Jerry Man, announced that the lights were off in the school because somebody forgot to pay the electric bill. Actually, a tree limb fell on a main power line.

So, this week we worked twice as hard to make up for last week. My combat partner was the only person in the class who really knows what she's doing. Kathy is our intermediate student and even fences in competition.

I was stabbed and jabbed and began to feel like the equivalent of a tackling dummy — just stand there and get killed.

A COUPLE WEEKS ago I attended the fencing competitions at Chicago Circle Campus. The entire day was devoted to epee and sabre matches (these weapons are heavier than foil and are only fenced by men).

It was both fascinating and startling. The age range of the fencers was about 15 to 60. Most of the contenders were slender and wiry but a couple were chubby and the fellow who won the sabre competition was about five feet ten inches, 220 pounds, had shoulder length brown hair, beard and mustache.

Foil fencing is to sabre fencing as ballet is to wrestling. I found out. Sabre is right out of the swashbuckling days with sound effects resembling of karate. And it's dangerous. The Viking who won took off his shirt to reveal big welts all over his back and arms and chest.

I'll stick to foil — bruises fade faster.

THE BEARDED WONDER with a pancake on his fork is Bill Jacobs, Des Plaines attorney and champion pancake eater of the Des Plaines Lions Club. This Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the Maitre West High School cafeteria contestants from all four Maine Township high schools will be challenging Bill in a pancake-eating contest.

The competition will be a high point of the Lions Club 12th Annual Family Pancake Breakfast which will be served from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Proceeds from the community event will go to local charities.

A warm-up for the competition was held recently at the Golden Bear Restaurant, Elmhurst and Algonquin roads, Des Plaines. Mark Meyer of Maine West was the challenger but lost in the final moments of the 60 second sprint.

Word has it unbeatable Bill has been fasting for the occasion. May the biggest mouth win.

New Math Books, Study Aids Okayed

by LEON SHURE

New math textbooks and study aids will be used this September at the Des Plaines School Dist. 62 schools.

The Dist. 62 board Monday adopted a revised math curriculum at the recommendation of the district administration.

The new curriculum was developed over a two-year period by teachers from all 13 Dist. 62 schools, under the chairmanship of Robert Cowell, district assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum.

Although changes are made constantly in curriculum, this is the first major change in the math curriculum since 1963. Each curriculum is revised every few years, and studies are being made now for changes in the district's science and drug education curriculum, Cowell said.

CHANGES INCLUDE purchase of textbooks by the Addison-Wesley publishing company for students, grades one through six. Textbooks and teaching aids will be purchased from Science Research Associates for junior high school students.

For the grade school students, changes include "a clearer presentation" of math principals, a review workbook, and material which can be duplicated to provide extra help for slower students.

For the junior high math program, cassette tape recordings have been added so that students can do more self-teaching.

The math curriculum committee, in their evaluation of current math-teaching materials, found the new texts to be clearer in form than the presently-used textbooks by the Silver-Burdette publishing company, Cowell said.

The new grade school materials include "getting ready" workbooks, to help students review what they may have forgotten during summer vacation.

THE NEW TEACHING materials also include mimeograph duplicating forms, which a teacher can use to produce lessons specifically for a student having difficulty with a math concept.

Instead of a workbook, which might have many lessons most students don't need, individual lessons could be produced for those students who do need extra help, Cowell said.

On the junior high school level, cassette tape recordings will be used by students during their library periods. A student who is having difficulty with a concept, or who has missed a class, may listen to a tape cassette until he has mastered a subject.

Tables also would be provided for those students who want to learn more than what is being taught in classrooms, Cowell said.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, April 1, the 91st day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Aries.

Russian composer Sergei Rachmaninoff was born April 1, 1873.

On this day in history:

In 1853 Cincinnati, Ohio, began paying its fire department a regular salary. Ordinary firemen drew $60 a year.

In 1918 the Royal Air Force was founded and two months later Britain began bombing industrial targets in Germany from French bases in World War I.

In 1932 Virne Mitchell, 19, became the first woman to sign with an all-male baseball team. She signed as a pitcher with the Chattanooga, Tenn., club.

In 1963 the 114-day New York City newspaper strike, longest in the history of the industry at that time, came to an end.

A thought for today: German philosopher Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche said, "Blessed are the forgetful. For they get the better ever of their blunders."

Students Strive For Meaningful Life Today

become friends, Schultz said.

Each counselor serves about 340-360 students. This is not considered a heavy workload for counselors, Schultz said, according to national surveys and studies.

For especially difficult or complex problems, counselors can rely on the help of social workers and school psychologists.

Each school has a career counselor, who can help students in applying to colleges or for jobs. A recent survey, done by Schultz, showed that more than 70 per cent of the present senior class will go on to college.

IF COUNSELING staff members cannot solve a student's problems, the school district will recommend other agencies.

There is also the Maine Township Special Education District, which has facilities in the center of Des Plaines East, Des Plaines and Potter Park Ridge, the Maine Township Mental Health Association, 1022 Lee St., local hospitals and other facilities in the Chicago area or in the nation.

The counseling staff at Maine West includes Wayne Rosenquist, director of guidance; James Kilham, career counselor; Emma Krevsky, social worker; and counselors Kendra Adams, Bruce Erickson, James Gary, Randall Johnson, Kay Koeley, Harvey Kelber, Robert Manuvas, Randall Raybourn, Merry Rung, and Marilyn Rick.

At Maine East Richard Van Scoyoc is director of guidance and Keith Homn is career counselor. Gertrude Wilson is a social worker.

Counselors include Ronald Giusti, Judith Juers, Florence Lamson, Walter Lusky, James Simmons, Marjorie Stanz, Nicholas Stumpf, Jack Tanner, George Vukovich, Louis Willis and Margaret Wolf.

At Maine North Sherman Roth is director of guidance, John Allison is the career counselor and Lucy Hayward is the social worker.

Counselors are Janice Cannon, Marian Pedersen, Robert Simmons and William Zibell.

AT MAINE SOUTH, James Bonney is director of guidance, Kenneth Reese is the career counselor and Twyla Freeman is the social worker.

Counselors are Robert Born, Robert Choffer, Alfred Drummond, Virginia Feuer, John Huzinga, Miriam Noff, Barbara Stites, Helen Stuart, Helene Tierman, Betty Wakefield.

District psychologists are George Krueger, Richard Panek, and Victor Costanza.

Sunday Blood Drive To Aid Victims Of Leukemia

For victims of leukemia, a financial burden shouldn't be added to the tragedy of disease.

This is the philosophy behind a blood drive from noon to 6 p.m. this Sunday at the Maine West High School cafeteria, 1775 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, sponsored by the Des Plaines Jaycees.

The goal of the drive is to supply 100 pints of blood for victims of cancer of the blood-producing tissues.

Victims of leukemia sometimes require up to 30 pints of blood per week to replace diseased blood, according to Alan Lapides, 2001 B Pine St., Des Plaines, who heads the blood drive of the Jaycees. A pint of blood costs $32 at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

Credit Card Thieves Hunted

A ring of credit card thieves has been blamed for recent thefts of furnishings from several Mannheim Road motels, including two incidents this week, according to Des Plaines police.

The thieves, using credit cards stolen from the mail in the Cicero and Berwyn areas, check into motels using the credit cards and then strip the rooms of sheets, towels and other furnishings before leaving, police said.

Officials of two motels, O'Hare American Inn, 2175 E. Touhy Ave., and O'Hare Travel Lodge, 3003 Mannheim,

THE BLOOD is being collected on behalf of the Leukemia Research Foundation of Chicago, which serves all of Cook County. Blood donor procedures will be performed by a doctor and licensed technicians.

Jaycee wives, led by Mrs. Bob Swearingen, group chairman, will provide coffee, sweet rolls, and orange juice for donors. Pancake breakfasts will be served to donors and their families.

Supervised movies will be presented for the children of donors, Lapides said.

Other Jaycee members who helped plan the blood donor program are Bill Seaman, 1187 Third Ave., Tom Noesges, 2160 Ballard, Russ Bertone, 9120 Lincoln, Greg Felty, 9122 Lincoln, and Joseph Marcey, 931 Cora.

Police said five Mannheim Road motels were hit by the thieves in January and investigators have warned other area police departments to be on the look out for the credit card ring.

Graveside services were held yesterday in Veterans Cemetery in Wood, Wis., for William L. Richmond, 78, a life-long resident of North Maine Township, who died Friday in Veterans Administration Hospital in Downey, Ill.

Mr. Richmond, who was born Jan. 15, 1893, in North Maine Township, was a veteran of World War I. He was preceded in death by his wife, Helen, and leaves no survivors.

Des Plaines Funeral Home, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Ward Forum Planned

Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) will hold a ward forum next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the West Park fieldhouse, 651 S. Wolf Rd.

Hinde, who is running unopposed for re-election to a second term, wants to "rap" with residents about the problems facing the community, according to a statement released by his campaign office. Hinde lives at 301 Oxford Rd.

Candidate Coffee Set

Campaign supporters of Ald. John Leer (3rd) will hold a coffee at 4 p.m. Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hinde, 965 S. Wolf Rd.

Leer, 1051 Jeanette, is seeking his third term as alderman. Residents interested in attending the coffee have been asked to call 299-6986.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY'S geography department has been keeping detailed records of the weather for the last 38 years. This is the 1970 weather chart for northern Illinois. It shows a basic cooling trend in the summer, particularly during the month of July.

Chilly Old Summertime?

The good old summertimes are becoming increasingly colder, according to a report compiled by Northern Illinois University's weather service.

One of the most outstanding trends the report showed for weather in Northern Illinois in 1970 is a "cool July" phenomenon.

Independence Day for example last year got as warm as 65 degrees and as low as 55 degrees. Furthermore, July was not the hottest month of the year, as most people assumed.

August had far more 90 degree days than did July, even though July 28 was the hottest day of the year with a 97 degree reading. A 100-degree temperature was not reached during the entire year.

THE "COOL JULY" trend has been showing up in weather reports for the last several years, said Jack Villmow a meteorologist with NIU's geography department.

Generally, the past several summers have been cool and the first killing frost — on Oct. 10 last year — has tended to be early.

On the whole, temperatures fell below the normal temperatures during the summer months and above those temperatures in the winter months.

Precipitation for last year was about 12 inches over the normal level of 32 inches for the year, mainly because of an extremely wet September which saw more than 11 inches of rain.

'Loot' Found Behind Files

More than a thousand dollars which had been reported stolen in a burglary of a store in Wheeling four months ago has been found behind a filing cabinet in the store.

Wheeling police said that burglars took a safe containing $238 from the Ben Franklin store last Nov. 30 but missed $1,000 which apparently had fallen behind the cabinet.

Employees discovered the money while moving office equipment in the store at 15 S. Wolf Rd. this week.

The early morning burglary was discovered by two Wheeling policemen who found an open door at the store while patroling.

Three men have been charged with the burglary. They are awaiting trial on burglary charges. Wheeling police.

The money was Burkhard Stein of 146 N. Mount Prospect, Vincent Badalamenti of 1727 F. Foundry Mount Prospect and Steven Basso 224 Graylyn Dr. Mount Prospect.

Wheeling police explained that the recovered amount of money believed taken in the Ben Franklin burglary will reduce the charges in the case.

$176,000 Road Budget Approved

A $176,000 road budget for Elk Grove Township was approved Tuesday by the board of trustees. The budget represents a 10 percent increase over last year's budget.

The budget originally proposed as a $150,000 budget was added for the reconstruction of some roads in the town.

The town has 21 miles of road in its incorporated area, bounded by Central Road to the north, Mount Prospect Road to the south, and Elk Grove Road to the east.

It was believed not find any holes in the budget and one member of the audience after he voted in favor of the budget.

Surviving Tenant Can Get Immediate Funds

Q. My father died recently and he and my mother had everything in joint tenancy with right of survivorship. How long must my mother wait before she can use the money to meet living expenses?

A. When bank accounts are in joint tenancy the survivor becomes the owner upon the death of the other joint tenant. Sometimes a bank will withhold payment of half the account until an inheritance tax waiver is issued from the Attorney General's Office. Usually the survivor has use of half the account immediately and the other half after obtaining the tax consent. However if there is a lien against the property or bank account or a cause of action complaint there may be a delay in releasing the money. If this is the case your lawyer can assist you in settling the matter. — Illinois State Bar Assn.

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

Hansen's Biggest Forte Is 6 Years Of Experience

Milton Hansen of Palatine watched as other incumbents did before he announced his decision to seek a third three-year term for the Harper board of trustees.

The 51-year-old patent attorney watched as John Haas and James Hamill, both members of the original board, announced they would not seek reelection.

"I felt that the board was falling apart," said Hansen.

Unlike many of the other candidates, Hansen will not campaign vigorously. "If it takes that (electioneering) I don't want it. If the public won't elect me (on the basis of six years of experience) then I figure so be it."

HANSEN SAYS the prime duty of a board member is to "conserve money and property in the district." He stresses that, as a candidate, he's looking out for no special interest.

He feels last year's referendum was defeated because faculty and students did not go out and support it. If they had, it would have passed, he said.

A committee which includes administrators, teachers, students and members of the general community were formed to help reach voters, it might pass despite the bad economic climate, Hansen said.

POLITICAL ACTIVITIES by teachers in this election? Hansen said he is disturbed by it. The result of too much student and teacher activism in an election can be a loss of public confidence in Harper.

However, he doesn't feel there's "conspiracy" to take over the Harper board, as board chairman Hamill has publicly stated.

President Robert Lahti has done a "very good job" as college president, Hansen said. Lahti's "prime role is to carry out the policies of the board" and Hansen disagrees with the concept that Lahti should be a representative or responsible to the faculty.

His views on some of the issues: —CAREER PROGRAMS: "I favor career program as there is a demand for them." He realizes the college must have a minimum number of career programs, but that he only favors them if they draw a "reasonably sized class."

—Student Unrest: "There's not much of it at Harper. There's been some controversy about such invited speakers as Eva Jefferson and U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh. The type of speaker indicates the freedom of political thought and expression." He believes, too that it is a bad policy to "saddle" other districts with controversial speakers when Harper needs a large auditorium. He'd like to see a large auditorium at Harper. There's no possibility of state funds immediately for one, but "it's on our master plan and greatly needed."

—CAMPUS PUBLICATIONS: Perhaps the Student Senate should hold more control over student publications. "The Harbinger," the college's student newspaper, should reflect student opinion.

—Faculty: "I just don't feel a strike is right." Public employees generally have no moral right to strike. He said he's not anti-union and that groups which choose to do so should be represented by unions if over 50 per cent of the group want the union.

—Faculty: "I've heard they're a cut above the average. In fact I believe Harper freshmen are getting a better education than freshman in four-year public universities are getting."

—Drugs: He doubts that there's more use at Harper than at area high schools — but he doesn't want to minimize the problem, either. The college's education program and security measures are dealing adequately with the problem. However, the fact security officers cannot indiscriminately search locked cars prevents complete drug control on campus.

—CLASS SIZE: "I'm not aware of any unjustifiably large classes." He feels many students can be properly taught in a large classroom.

Finally, he believes a charge by the state budget director that Harper costs over $39 per square foot to construct is "a phony issue." Harper is not a palace but it is adequate, and it would have been a waste of the taxpayer's money to put up substandard buildings, he says.

Hansen has not always stood out when controversies have swept the board, as he's a quiet, tactful man. He's running for reelection on his six years of experience in dealing with Harper's first six years' life.

He works for Quaker Oats Co. in Barrington, is married and has two daughters.

On the Harper board he's served as vice chairman, and has been a chairman of three separate committees, including a site selection committee.

Ax-Grinding Or Not . . .

She's Concerned About Harper

Mrs. Hannah Wilson of Mount Prospect stresses "communication" and "responsiveness" as two of her greatest concerns about Harper College.

She's familiar with Harper — it's her second try to gain a seat on the board. Last year she ran and finished third in a field of six candidates.

To some persons, especially James Hamill, the retiring board president, Mrs. Wilson is an "ax-grinder," a member of a "conspiracy" of educators and students seeking to control the board.

MRS. WILSON, she's a nurse in Elementary Dist. 54, said she's never met with Mr. Hamill — and will talk about the issue but will not "sling mud" at other candidates in the race.

She asserts, "There's no particular interest group backing me, just citizens in the community." She said students have asked to leaflet for her, but that anyone who wishes can help.

She said she's the only candidate among the seven challengers for three open seats (incumbent Milton Hansen is seeking reelection) to have attended board meetings regularly for the past year.

A major concern for Mrs. Wilson is college finances, and the "priority of expenditures" at Harper.

ANY EDUCATIONAL institution must first serve the education of students. She reports a study shows Harper College spent 9.1 per cent of its budget on its learning resources center, compared to a mean percentage of 4.1 per cent in Illinois. She questions the need for that amount.

Second, she's concerned about large lecture classes. She reports 39 or 48 Illinois community colleges surveyed in another study have classes over 100, and eight have from one to four classes over 100. Harper has 19 classes over 100, she says.

Third, she says Harper "appears top-heavy" with one administrator per 3.9 faculty members. This couples with a high amount of contact hours for the faculty, she reports.

How about funding the college? A strong citizen's committee is needed, with representatives from each community Harper serves, Mrs. Wilson said. In each area, taxpayers could be made aware of Harper's needs before another referendum is attempted.

TO BE "SOLD" to the public is a college with "a great faculty, a quality staff and great programs" which are well articulated with four-year colleges and universities.

She believes Robert Lahti, the college's president, "has done a good job," to her knowledge in developing Harper. The excellent original organization of the college has helped, too.

Mrs. Wilson said a college president such as Lahti should have the role of leader and representative of the faculty before the board of trustees. She believes his role is to educate the trustees of the education of students and on the college's professional growth.

On other issues Mrs. Wilson advocates: —Counseling: There's a need for personal counseling within the present counseling department at Harper.

—DISSENT: "It can be healthy" in gaining a response, but I don't endorse violence. The important thing is to create an atmosphere where communication can settle most disputes "very amicably."

—Campus Publications: Certain published opinions on campus may be "pungent" in this type of conservative community. She'll represent that community when faced by the problem.

—Strikes: She doesn't believe teachers should have unions or strikes. However, "I feel the board is responsible for creating the type of climate so that any differences could be smoothed out."

In teacher-administration-board matters, "you can't have one group walking on eggs." Free and clear communications is desirable, communications problems were present when it took the college two years to develop a grievance procedure, she said.

SHE DEFINES a board member's role as "setting policy" and setting up the college to meet needs in terms of available money. The board shouldn't step into everyday matters, but it must represent the community, she said.

Can she speak for her own views, or should she follow the wishes of the community? She says she's serving as a member of the community, and "as a board member, I don't have my own opinion to consider."

She has lived with her husband for 22 years in Mount Prospect. She has two grown children.

Mrs. Wilson is a registered nurse employed by Elementary Dist. 54 Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates. She's worked as a nurse in Dist. 57 (Mount Prospect), has been a delegate to the Illinois Council of Exceptional Children convention in 1970, and is a member of the Schaumburg Educational Association.

Student Candidate Seeks Changes

Larry Moran should know his way around Harper College. In 1970 he was a student there and now he would like to change some aspects of life at the institution.

During the 1970-71 school year, Moran, a student at Northwestern Illinois State College, is seeking a seat on the Harper College board.

He says he was able to learn about the complexities and difficulties of administering an institution of Harper College's size under a Harper student.

AS AN OLDER student, Moran said he has been able to talk to administrators. During his discussions, he began to see the role and function of the college board of trustees, and the power it possesses.

He says he is able to see a liaison between the college and what exists and what is needed in the community. He says he is a student of the community, and he is a student of the college.

reason" could perhaps play a greater role in deliberations at Harper, he said.

One specific problem — what Moran termed a "very of help" — is a faculty member who is not receiving the proper minimum salary for his teaching job at Harper.

The president of Harper, he says, should call in the man and get the matter straightened out. He regards the problem as an accident, but a problem which should be safeguarded against in the future.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT Robert Lahti should remain as president, said Moran. He sees some problems created by the college administration's emphasis on management techniques, problems which he dehumanizing at Harper.

Basically, the board should investigate Harper's management techniques further, he said. There's a danger that such a system could produce a loss of recognition of "the employee as an individual," Moran said.

Moran's a bit concerned about the business trips which administrators take to Washington, D.C., and Springfield.

"It's a responsibility of the college to exhaust all means of support," Moran said, but he believes some of the travel may be unnecessary.

Harper should maintain state leadership, but "it should be the result of quality of education, not as an objective of the administration," Moran said.

ON THE ISSUE of class size, "someone must stand up and speak for the students." With the present budget, the college should work to maintain the present 25 to 1 student to faculty ratio.

How about raising money to support the college? First, Moran said that the impression before last spring's referendum defeat was that no referendum had been promised to the public.

He believes it is not proper for students to pay $600 tuition, nor should the college consider a limit on enrollment. Moran would like to see state and federal contributions to Harper increased. He believes if individuals or blocks of citizens "can get communities to work together," we can press public officials for more support.

Moran sees the present "generation gap" as a problem keeping both students and older persons apart. He's been talking with young students, persons his age and older persons; he feels the gap results from "radical and unpeaceful" approaches to problems.

"I DON'T WANT to take over anything at all, I just want to take up the cause of higher education," said Moran, in responding to charges he and others plot a "student-educator takeover of the board."

On other issues: —Faculty: They don't want an outside union to represent them and increase polarization, they seem to want to remain closely aligned with the administration.

He believes that teachers are co-workers with administrators, not "employees" of the administration. Teachers should not strike whenever it is possible to avoid a strike; it takes "constant and conscious dialogue" to avoid a strike.

—Campus Publications: Board members "should be constantly aware of the contents" of student publications, but they should have no overt interest in controlling what a publication may write.

MORAN NOW believes that, if elected, he would serve for three years and then retire. At this time in his life, he feels he can spend only three years on the board. Much of his first year or so, he says, will be spent learning how to be a board member.

LARRY MORAN

Moran recently wrote a letter to the "Harbinger," the college paper, urging students to support him. He's the only candidate to do so, but emphasizes he's not seeking only student support. Rather, he hopes to unify the community behind his candidacy for the Harper board.

Moran is single, has served in the U.S. Navy, and was an honor student when he attended Harper.

Groppi To Speak Sunday At Freedom Festival

Rev. Father Groppi, activist civil rights leader from Milwaukee, is scheduled to speak Sunday at a Freedom Festival at Forest View High School, 1115 S. Goodland Rd., Mount Prospect.

Rev. Groppi will speak at a memorial service and freedom festival, commemorating the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the assassinated civil rights leader.

He will appear on a program that includes Anna Loughran, one of two women arrested in the Chicago City Hall riot.

Rev. Groppi, 54, of Elk Grove Village, who brought the "Sidelwalk" Academy summer session to the Northwest suburbs last year, is the promoter of Sunday's festival, sponsored by the Catholic Interracial Council.

Brooks and Father Groppi has been arrested 17 times attempting to help the poor and disenfranchised over the past 10 years.

I feel there is a relationship between Father Groppi and Dr. King other than the fact that both have been arrested," Brooks said. "They both helped disenfranchised Americans and both were ostracized by the church and criticized from one end of the country to the other."

Rev. Groppi led a civil rights march last year to protest cuts in welfare payments. He has also led marches calling for open housing.

He was to have appeared in October, 1969, at Harper College in Palatine but the program was canceled when the priest was in jail in Dane County, Wis., on a charge of contempt.

His arrest followed a civil rights demonstration in the Wisconsin State Assembly at Madison where he and 1,000 of his followers protested cuts in welfare programs. The group was reportedly responsible for causing an estimated $26,000 in damage to the assembly's chambers.

A former youth adviser for the NAACP, Father Groppi is currently an associate pastor at St. Michael's Catholic parish.

Also appearing on the program will be the Englewood Gospel Choir and Betty Washington and the Ebenezer Spiritual Choral.

Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. There is no fee for children under six.

Communities Get $39,334 Revenue

Northwest suburban communities have received $39,334 in revenue from fines collected by the Cook County Circuit Court during February.

Matthew J. Danaher, circuit court clerk, announced yesterday the share for municipalities in this area was part of $508,327 generated by the county's five suburban districts since Jan. 1. Most of the fines stemmed from traffic violations.

Danaher said Elk Grove Village has received the highest income with a total of $21,684.

Combined figures for area communities in the second and third municipal districts showed total revenue for the year totaling more than $92,000.

Breakdown of February fines disclosed the following: Arlington Heights—$6,458; Buffalo Grove—$320; Palatine—$4,338; Rolling Meadows—$1,818; Wheeling—$2,164; Des Plaines—$5,667; Elk Grove Village—$9,048; Hanover Park—$1,435; Hoffman Estates—$2,456; and Schaumburg—$5,630.

STUDENTS AT the Des Plaines branch of the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded and the sheltered workshop in Elk Grove Village will both benefit from the proceeds of the Des Plaines Lions Club's 12th annual family pancake day. The event will be held from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Maine West High School cafeteria, 1755 S. Wolf Rd.

A Sunday Watching The Professionals

Sheer Delight For A Tennis Buff

by JIM VESELY

When John Newcombe is serving, his racket makes the sound of chopping wood. The steel racket comes across his body in a silver arc and the sound it makes when it hits the ball is the solid thump of steel and gut hitting something very hard.

It is one of the great performances in tennis, and it makes every casual, afternoon player in the audience take in his breath as the ball comes streaking into the service court.

To Arthur Ashe, standing on the other side of the court, Newcombe's service seemed at first to be just another daisy to swat across the net. Ashe stood close to the baseline and as John Newcombe rifled a serve toward him, Ashe put his racket in the ball's path and shoved it back across the net.

The scene was McGaw Hall, Northwestern University last Sunday.

Newcombe was serving to Ashe as both players were hunting for the top prize of $10,000 in the finals of the Sportface tournament of professional tennis players. Newcombe and Ashe had come to this court following a week of preliminary play at various locations in Chicago suburbs.

Newcombe's service was the first of the match and as Ashe returned it, the afternoon had begun.

Pro tennis requires incredible strength and agility, so much so that amateur players can find little to relate to when they mentally match their game with the speed of a professional performance.

Nevertheless, there was something in the style and pace of Newcombe and Ashe last Sunday that tells a lot about the game of tennis, and a lot about the men and women who play it here on hot, crowded suburban courts.

First, Newcombe's stamina. The Australian played world caliber tennis for about five hours Sunday, first in the single's match against Ashe — which Newcombe won in three out of four sets — and then again in doubles play against Marty Riessen and Tom Okker of the Netherlands. Newcombe and his partner lost that match, but it is safe to say that after such volleying most players out here would have melted into their shoes.

Second, the variety of play. A pick-up match staged at one of the hundreds of suburban courts in the area will generally find a man with a thunderous serve, another with a clever backhand, and — rarely — a player with excellent forehand control.

Newcombe and Ashe, of course, have all of these. Yet there is another, deeper difference between them and the puffing amateur. The difference is in the professional player's ability to make his shot as one of a series of volleys, and not as a reaction to the other man's ball placement.

In short, John Newcombe and Arthur Ashe seemed to be playing their game two or more shots ahead of the audience. The play was fast, but fast in the sense that it was controlled by one player at a time, and as the control shifted across the court so did the feeling that a final, decisive shot by Ashe was calculated two or more shots beforehand.

Tennis is a game of great subtlety. It requires power but it rewards the player with the mental firmness to withstand heavy serves and powerful drives.

In the third set, for example, with Newcombe and Ashe tied at one set each, Newcombe drove himself mentally. He was clicking through the games faster than the electronic scoreboard because he was playing two or three moves ahead of his opponent and the audience. You could see him bounce when the right combination caused him to win a game. You could see the computer inside turn another wheel.

Arthur Ashe, the lithe, calm athlete from Virginia, played as if the ice Age had come and left him in its wake. Imperturbable, controlled, smooth as a great ship, Arthur Ashe lived up to his reputation for unflapability.

And that should be another hint for the chairbound player. Ashe in midcourt or reaching for a backhand return, or facing a crucial service is the same Ashe that walks off the court at the end. He is apparently a man without nerve endings, or one who so controls himself that the end result is a game of tennis that would delight a brain surgeon.

Take Ashe's backhand, for example. There was only one good, clean example of his magnificent stroke last Sunday, but it was a joy to watch.

In the last set, with Newcombe clearly ahead, Ashe placed himself in the left-hand court and waited the fraction of a second that it took Newcombe's cannonball to arrive.

Ashe caught it and sent it back crosscourt to the far reaches of Newcombe's backhand but he did it with such accuracy, such flat and terrible speed that it brought the crowd to its feet.

It was Ashe at his best, and it was the kind of shot that many men dream of making and perhaps finally accomplish as a fluke of wind and luck.

For Ashe, it was his backhand, an example of the game as it should be played. It was definitely not a fluke.

It ended that Sunday afternoon with Newcombe sweaty and disheveled, driving his game like men drive nails into concrete. For Ashe, the calmness remained on the outside.

For the audience, and the tennis players who sat and watched, it was long flat strokes on summer days, biting serves that chew the court and beautiful, lofty parabolas of volleys that never end in the net.

St. Viator Falls In Tennis

St. Viator debuted in the 1971 tennis season, but if they had it to do over again, they probably would have postponed the undertaking.

Glenbrook North, a member of the Central Suburban League, visited the Lion courts and hung a snug 3-2 setback on the St. Viator netmen.

First singles entry Chuck Czeropski bowed in his match, 12-2, while teammate Greg Allare found the short end of a 12-4 final at the second singles position.

Junior Mike McMahon earned Viator's first individual victory of the campaign by romping to a 12-7 decision at the final singles match.

The doubles team of Jim Skarzynski and Kevin O'Leary were halted by Glenbrook, 12-0, but Lions Mike Revnes and Gary Aldrich posted a 12-9 verdict to make the eventual final score, 3-2.

St. Viator will try to even their young record this afternoon when Ridgewood arrives for another non-conference meet.

Fishing Trip Set For June 20-29

If you're a boy who likes fishing and the outdoors, read on.

Fishing, eating and sleeping will be the main activities as area boys, under the guidance of trip organizers Dick Mudge and Dave Theesfeld, visit Black Bear Lodge in Canada June 20 through June 29.

The entire cost of the trip is $130 per boy. The price includes the following:

1. Transportation to Black Bear Lodge and back (2,000 miles round trip)

2. Lodging for nine days (including two nights enroute)

3. Flight into and out of Black Bear Lodge from Red Lake, Ontario.

4. Meals while at Black Bear Lodge.

5. Fishing License.
6. Boat, motor and fuel.

8. Accident and sickness insurance.

Black Bear Lodge is not a sport skill camp, and boys are free to spend their time as they wish.

Black Bear Lodge is located on Red Lake, approximately 50 miles northwest of the town of Red Lake, Ontario. Northern Pike, Walleye and Lake Trout are three species of fish in the lake.

Black Bear Lodge is owned and operated by Walt Rundle, a teacher at Fenton High School. He has spent over 15 summers in the Red Lake area operating this type of camp.

Boys will be housed in log cabins, 8 to 12 boys to a cabin, and there is also a main lodge for eating and spending leisure time.

A typical day starts with sunrise between 4 and 5 a.m. Breakfast is at 8 a.m., lunch at 1 p.m. and dinner at 6 p.m. Shore lunches are provided for anyone desiring them.

The sun usually sets between 11 and 12 p.m., providing plenty of fishing time.

A car caravan, with an adult driver in each car, will take the boys to Red Lake, Ontario, and then the boys and baggage will transfer to planes for a trip to Black Bear Lodge.

Applications are being accepted now, and there will be a meeting and film on the camp on Thursday evening, April 1, at eight o'clock at Forest View High School, room A224. All boys who might be interested in the camp are urged to attend this meeting.

If you have questions on the fishing excursion, call Dick Mudge at 253-0804 or Dave Theesfeld at 259-0083 after 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, or contact your school representative: Arlington, Joe Scarpino; Elk Grove, Andy Anderson; Forest View, Dave Theesfeld; Prospect, Ken Kronvold; Wheeling, Dennis Toll.

Another Lady In City Council?

Christl Makes A Bid For 'Alderwoman'

by DOROTHY OLIVER

What could possibly motivate an attractive, 25-year-old executive secretary to enter the political arena?

It wasn't Woman's Liberation. "If my husband didn't have to travel in his job, I'd probably be supporting his candidacy instead of him supporting mine."

It wasn't a deep interest in politics. "I've had no previous special interest in politics. The only time I've been directly involved was campaigning in a mock election in college."

What brought Christl Plambeck, 831 Thacker St., into the contest for Third Ward alderman was Thacker Street. Chris is one of a number of residents on the street who are vocally opposed to plans for an underpass on Thacker and the Outerbelt tracks and a link-up of Thacker and Dempster by means of a bridge over the Des Plaines river. The plans are part of the redevelopment program planned for Des Plaines.

AFTER THE THACKER Street proposal was made public, petitions against the move were circulated among residents of the street. Chris and her husband, Norman, attended two meetings where the issue was discussed in depth.

Her ultimate decision to run for alderman was sparked by her feeling that the other two candidates for the aldermanic seat are not interested in what the people think, and by an invitation from one of her opponents. ("If you feel so strongly about Thacker Street, Mrs. Plambeck, why don't you run for alderman?")

Signatures for her petition were collected in a door-to-door campaign in early February. Norman and Chris weathered the cold to solicit support of their neighbors.

"IT'S AMAZING HOW much people want to be heard," Chris said. "They want someone to ask them questions about how they feel about things. I found that out when I went around asking."

Her being a female didn't prevent people from signing her petitions or voicing their opinions. At one household the husband happily signed; the wife, on the other hand, told Christl she should be home baking cupcakes — not campaigning.

Chris does bake cupcakes and cooking is one of her main interests "like every housewife," she said. She also enjoys photography, a string of participation sports and animals.

The Plambecks' comfortable house — on the edge of the Villa section of the Third Ward — is warmly furnished in Early American.

ENTER THE HOME and you are greeted by a welcoming committee of five — Norman, Chris, Agatha the cat, Schnapps the Schnauzer and Skoshi the German Shepherd. In addition to their four-legged friends, the couple has two tanks of fresh water tropical fish.

Chris inherited her love for animals from her husband. He brings them home and she takes over as "mother."

Besides keeping up with home-front duties, Chris holds down a responsible job as executive secretary to the head of the consumer credit department of Northwest National Bank of Chicago.

A native of northwest Chicago, she prepared for her career by attending Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., receiving a bachelor's degree in business administration.

SHE AND NORMAN have lived in Des Plaines since they were married three years ago. Her knowledge of the town is supplemented by Norman's background. His relatives have been in Des Plaines since Prohibition days, and he and his parents, Evelyn and Norman Sr., have been in Des Plaines for 18 years.

Norman's attitude toward his wife's campaign is one of complete support. "My wife feels she can do a good job and I feel she can cope with the situation."

Chris is not only the only woman running for alderman, but she is also the youngest candidate. Neither statistic is a detriment, she feels.

"A woman can be as effective in politics as a man — and possibly more effective," she said. "A woman will take a little more time to sit and listen to problems."

"I feel I'm aware of many things within the ward, but I realize there are many things yet to learn. I think I have the youth and ability to learn a lot."

MUSIC IS ONE of many interests of Christl Plambeck. Another is politics — as evidenced by her candidacy for third ward alderman. Skoshi, her 11-month-old "puppy," represents a third interest.

This Is No Joke

A Day For Every Fool

by MARY B. GOOD

April Fool's Day was always a comic little joke.

But thanks to the advertising media, the concept of April Fool's has been expanded into a really big joke.

When hardly one over eight believes in the tooth fairy or the Easter bunny.

April Fool's Day gives grownup kids something to hang onto. And the battery of "mum" Fool's Days throughout the year perpetuate the idea.

Look. National Panic Week for instance. It's a time to inject humor into any situation that creates unnecessary panic, according to the instigators of this obscure holiday.

"Panic Week" is preceded by "Mother-in-Law Day" (April 5), which seems appropos for those who miss that one, April 6 is "Old Lady Day" as celebrated in Great Britain. But bear in mind, "Respect Elders Day" comes later on in the year, with a stick.

FOR THOSE THAT overlook "National Pay-Your-Bills Week," it's little comfort to know that "I Gave Day" falls on April 15, income tax deadline.

Foolish fads of press agency shift into high gear with "Fight the Filthy Fly Month." A mere seven days in June are set aside for "National Insectocutor Week." (It promotes the use of insectocutors to zap bugs with electricity.)

June also heralds the arrival of "Ragweed Control Month," while June 16 is Bloomsday, but has no horticultural significance.

Do you have someone in mind to send to the National Hollerin' Contest Day in Dunn, N.C.? The Spivey's Corner Volunteer Fire Department sponsors this one to revive the almost lost art of hollerin' as a means of communication. (Evidently they haven't been to candidates' night.)

FOOD HAS ITS days — there are "Pickle Week," "Krautweek Week," "Root Beer Day" and a chicken festival during the summertime. It's no wonder that "National Indigestion Season" spans 37 days.

To capitalize on the American love of sports and recreation, someone has dreamed up a "Stone-Skipping Open," "Corn Dance," "Lumberjack Round-Up," "National Fence Painting," "Natural Chimneys Jousting Tournament Day," "We Love A Circus" weekend, "Arapahoe Glacier Hike Day" and "Bicycle Bethhops Boatmeeting Derby" days.

Single girls endangered by spinsterhood will have to wait until Nov. 25 for the "St. Catherine's Day Parade of Unmarried Maidens," but then there's always "National Dog Week" in September. Not to mention the "Choosing of the Wine Witch" festival over in Oberwesel, Germany.

"National Smile Week" is one thing. But "Think of What You Can Replace With Plastic" week or the "Crusade Against Too" (Much or Little of Anything) are so-called observances just asking for the hook. Look what you spawned, April Fool's Day, you old joker, you!

Equal Chance In Franchise Industry

by KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — One area where women never have known anything but equal opportunity is in franchising.

So says an expert on this type of sales — Sandy Alexander, a tiny blonde. Miss Alexander has written a paperback manual, "Franchising and You," which tells everyone — yes, the men get advice too — what should be known if one considers getting into this burgeoning, $100 billion a year business.

"Ladies are welcome in this booming industry and accepted without question or prejudice as hard-working members of the franchise team," Miss Alexander says.

"Of course, most women won't want to open a Midas muffler shop. But one franchisee, House of Nine, actually discriminates against men. It will sell its dress shop franchises only to women."

"AGE IS ALSO NO barrier to success in franchising. Mature judgment and experience are considered an asset."

Miss Alexander feels women are peculiarly suited to running a franchise "because they seldom lose their cool. They are patient with customers even if they aren't making sale right then. And that customer will come back."

Miss Alexander said during the three years she was women's editor of the "Franchise Journal" she received numerous requests for a guide book on franchising. She already had written several how-to books, including "How to Raise Your Own Mink Coat" and "How to Make the Most of Your Own Potential."

Her book, now being used as a text in business course at the University of Arizona, emphasizes how important it is for would-be franchisors "to investigate before they invest."

"FRANCHISING IS NOT for everyone," she warns. "Just putting up the money and liking it is not enough. You have to be willing to work harder than you've ever worked for anyone else."

Miss Alexander says, "There is a franchise for almost anything."

A Paddock Review

MOS Musical Is Enjoyable

by PAT ADAM

Music On Stage has injected much effort into its current production, "The Pajama Game," and it shows right down to the attractive playbill.

Despite a couple of bloopers — a confused exit by the dancers one time and inappropriate house lights another — the opening night audience loved the show. Director Tom Ventriss, Johnny-on-the-spotting weak places, made several trips backstage but he should relax. It's a most enjoyable evening.

"Pajama Game" offers some memorable tunes — "Hey There," "Steam Heat," "Hernando's Hideaway" — and it was especially pleasurable to hear them sung by good strong voices... with lyrics audible.

Excellent casting makes it high impossible to single out any one performer. Versatile Hank Vandenberg as the time and sturdy man, Hines, was his most amusing in the drunk scene at the company picnic and in the switch-of-characters dream scene with his girl friend, Gladys. But he was good, too, in his musical numbers, "I'll Never Be Jealous Again" and, even better, "Think of the Time I'll Save."

Pat Piper deftly portrayed Gladys, exhibiting a flair for comedy along with her singing and dancing talents. She was her funniest in the second act Hernando's Hideaway rendezvous with Sid, the superintendent of the pajama factory that provides the theme for the musical. Convinced she is a "fallen woman," the slightly inebriated Gladys tries to escape her conscience by falling asleep. Pat plopped her head on the table like a rag doll, and it was hilarious.

She was equally as good in her "Steam Heat" dance number with two male members of the dance chorus. Unfortunately the playbill neglects to identify them as more than "friends," but they deserve a round of applause too.

Jim Tuversen plays Sid, who falls in love with the grievance committee — more specifically, Babe. Jim's stage experience has been mostly in dramatic roles, but he demonstrated he can sing as well as act. While "Hey There" may linger longer in musical memory, I liked him and Beth Wouds, who plays Babe, in "There Once Was a Man." They maneuvered some fairly tricky dueting.

This is the first time I've heard Beth Wouds in a singing role, and she was very good. Her wardrobe is great too.

Pete Piper, mate of Pat, is Prez, another member of the grievance committee and eternal girl chaser. Whoever, "Her Is" the greatest to Prez, so long as she's female. No matter that he's married; he and his wife hardly speak any more, he assures.

Possessor of strong lungs too, Pete and Beth joined with the company in a rousing "7½ Cents." All union demands should be so tunelessly presented!

In other roles Karen Mason evoked laughs as the secretary sympathetic to the jealous Hines, Phyl MacCowan made her musical debut as Mae, one of the pajama girls, and Larry Mayer was a solemn Mr. Hassler, the boss.

The same effort that went into the music and the acting was apparent in the sets. They were very good — especially the revolving one of Hernando's Hideaway and Gladys' bedroom.

Costumes were colorful, and there was even a pajama fashion show to climax the production.

An efficient stage crew kept things moving so the show's pace never lagged, and Music On Stage didn't seem hampered by the barn-like atmosphere of the Sacred Heart of Mary High School gym. It has a good-sized stage, and the singers' strong voices, the orchestral accompaniment and good lighting overcame the handicaps of a non-theater, even a stubborn curtain.

Besides director Ventriss, music director Bill Cotsakis and choreographer Beth Vandenberg can take a bow along with the entire Music On Stage organization for a "good show."

"Pajama Game" will be playing again Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. Curtain goes up at 8:30 p.m.

Household Hints

The meaty ribs sold as country or farm style ribs offer more servings per pound than regular spareribs. Prepare them the way you do regular spareribs.

A guide used by drycleaners in settling claims gives these "life expectancies" on men's garments: Overcoats, four years; the same for winter suits, wool and wool-blend slacks and sports coats; sweaters, wool and wool-blend summer suits, suits, silk robes, three years; shirts and underwear, two years.

Among products typical of ones soon to come is a television set that can be turned off and on, tuned and adjusted by a wave of the hand. So say researchers at the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Tenderize wild game or chicken by parboiling with teaspoonful of lemon juice or vinegar before frying or baking.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have two small children so I thought it would be safer to buy an electric stove rather than a gas model. Now I find that you are supposed to leave the oven door open when broiling steak. Is this true and, if so, why is it necessary?—Jill W.

It's true that the oven door should be left ajar — approximately three inches. This is so that the broil unit will give full wattage. Both the temperature control and oven switch are set at broil which is the highest setting. With the door ajar some of the heat is given off and the broil unit stays on. If the door were closed the oven unit would cycle off when the thermostat sensed the temperature for which it was set. Keeping the broil unit on at full wattage cooks the food with radiant heat. In other words, with the oven door open, you get actual broiling; with the door closed it's more like baking.

Dear Dorothy: When we moved to an apartment I thought it would be safe to buy light carpeting. That is, it wouldn't be as likely to get dirty as having it in a home where one would come in directly from outdoors. I guessed wrong as our

Suggest you have the apartment manager put down treated mats leading from outside into the foyer. A treated mat on the floor of an elevator is also a great help. We now live in an apartment, too, and our carpeting is still spotless. I'm sure the treated mats are responsible.

Dear Dorothy: Does damage to the outside of a can mean the food is unsuitable for use?—Mrs. Robert Benton

Not necessarily. Rust or dents do not affect the contents of a can as long as the can doesn't leak. If the can is leaking or if the ends are bulged or if the contents have an abnormal odor or appearance, discard the can without tasting the contents.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Brightness Rating On Light Bulbs

Do you know what a lumen is? You should because it's a word that refers to something everyone uses everyday — an electric light bulb.

Because of a recent ruling by the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, it's a word that you are seeing on all light bulb packages sold in the U.S. and it's important to understand what it means in order to purchase the right bulb the right use.

Since Jan. 25, all light bulb packages must contain three items, the bulb's lumens rating, the watts rating and the hours rating (the time the bulb is warranted to last according to lab test).

Most people think that a bulb's wattage rating is the indication of how bright the bulb will be. Actually, the wattage is simply an indication of how much electricity that light bulb will use.

TWO BULBS of the same wattage can give out considerably different amounts of light. One might be a new longer-life model, for instance, and the other a regular bulb. Some bulbs use new krypton gas that produces a greater brightness than the normal argon-nitrogen bulb.

The lumens rating will tell you the light output each bulb is supposed to give. By checking the lumens rating on the package along with the other two indicators of watts rating and hours rating you can determine the right bulb for the right purpose and price.

The next time you go to buy a light bulb, look at the label and take advantage of this new requirement designed to keep you better informed as a consumer.
